PREFACE.

In preparing this completed edition of Caesar's Gallic War, the notes on the earlier portion have been diligently revised and largely re-written. In general, the plan and substance, approved by wide and satisfactory use for eleven years, have been retained. Besides the grammatical references to Allen & Greenough's Grammar, which have been carefully verified, references are given to the grammars of Gildersleeve and Harkness. The map of Gaul has been corrected according to the latest investigations, and a large number of illustrations, diagrams, and battle-plans have been introduced from the most recent and trustworthy sources.

A still more important feature is the elaborate study of the Roman military art as exemplified in the campaigns of Caesar, carefully prepared from the most recent authorities by Mr. H. P. Judson, Professor of History in the University of Minnesota, to whom its plan and execution are solely due. The special value of these military notes is quite apparent. The Commentaries are little more than a military history, — a story of battle and siege, — and to read the book understandingly the student must have a definite notion of the Roman army and its methods. This edition aims to enable him, with each sentence, to place before his eye a picture, — the same picture it suggested to the intelligent Roman reader.

The Vocabulary, by Professor Greenough, is on the same plan as his Vocabulary to Virgil. It attempts to give, first, the etymological meaning of each word as far as is possible; second, the general meanings of the words, representing the conceptions as they appeared to the Romans; third, such renderings as may be necessary to present the thought in a suitable English form. In the last case care is taken to indicate by the use of phrases and by notes the difference between the Roman and the English conceptions. In giving the etymologies, the actual mode of formation in each case, so far as it is known, is shown, and all the elements which have entered into the formation are noted. It is, of course, not intended that such etymological matter is to be studied as task-work by the pupil; but both teachers and students will do well to form the habit of analyzing words in this manner rather than content themselves with vague notions about roots, and with loose connections of words.

This edition of Cæsar follows, with slight change of orthography, the text of Nipperdey, the more important various readings being given in the notes. It is believed to be an advantage even to the youngest learner to deal with a standard text, and to know something of those variations which make the reading of an ancient classic differ from that of a modern author. In illustration of the narrative, constant use has been made of the more recent authorities, Mommsen, Kraner, Long, Merivale, and the "History of Julius Cæsar" by Napoleon III., with the excellent school edition of Moberley. Much care has been taken, with the earlier portion especially, to furnish in the notes a guide to the thorough study of syntactical construction, for which no author is, by general consent, so well adapted as Cæsar.

I. — THE LIFE OF CAESAR.

Caius Julius Caesar was born, by the common account, July 12, B.C. 100; or, by a probable reckoning, two years earlier.¹

He belonged to an ancient patrician family, which claimed descent from Iulus, or Ascanius, the son of Æneas. When "almost a boy," he was made a priest of Jupiter by Marius, his uncle by marriage. When still a youth of eighteen or twenty, he boldly refused to divorce his wife Cornelia, daughter of Cinna, and barely escaped the proscription of Sulla, who "saw many a Marius in that young man."

Though of patrician birth, Caesar was thus early allied with the popular party, which began to make head directly after the dictator's death. He went through the usual course of political honors to which a Roman of the higher ranks felt himself entitled. At the age of thirty-five, B.C. 67 (assuming the earlier date for his birth), he was Quæstor in Further Spain. Two years later (B.C. 65) he was Curule Ædile,—an office which gave great opportunity to court popular honor, in its charge of public games and exhibitions.¹ By this time he was recognized as a party leader who would not scruple at the most daring and questionable measures, and was even suspected of having a hand in the schemes of Catiline.

¹ The common date rests on the statement of Plutarch, Suetonius, and Appian that he died at the age of fifty-six. On the other hand: (1) Marius, who died B.C. 86, would hardly have given a priesthood to a child of thirteen; (2) he received the usual honors, by the common reckoning, each two years earlier than the legal age; (3) certain coins struck by him in B.C. 49 have the date LIII., apparently the years of his age.
Introduction.

At the age of thirty-nine (B.C. 63) he was elected pontifex maximus, — that is, official head of the state religion, — in opposition to the leader of the aristocracy, Quintus Catulus. This was an open declaration of war against the governing aristocracy. Cæsar, it is said, refused a large offer made by Catulus to buy him off the course; and when the day of election came, said to his mother, who would have kept him out of the struggle, “To-day shall see me pontifex maximus or an exile.” This office he held for life. The following year (B.C. 62) he was chosen prætor, and the next year went, as proprætor, to govern the province of Further Spain.

At this period he was chiefly known as a dissolute debtor and demagogue. Before leaving for his province, he was obliged to find security to the amount of eight hundred talents — more than a million dollars. He is reported to have said, in his reckless way, that he wanted four million sesterces to be worth just nothing at all. But in the government of his province he displayed the civil and military ability which afterwards made him famous, as well as the financial ability which enabled him to pay off his debts in one campaign.

He returned to Rome the following year (B.C. 60), and soon formed a political coalition with Pompey and Crassus, his contribution to the common stock being his influence in the political clubs and control of votes. This coalition is sometimes called “the first triumvirate.”² One part of the bargain was

² The term “triumvirate” means properly a commission or board of three men, invested by law with special powers and functions. This was that Cæsar should have the consulship for the next year (b.c. 59), and after that the government of Gaul for five years. This embraced the three provinces of Gallia Narbonensis, Gallia Cisalpina (North Italy), and Illyricum. Crassus and Pompey received no special authority at first, but remained in the city, ostensibly as private persons, to look after the interests of the coalition. This was further strengthened by the marriage of Pompey with Cæsar's young and beautiful daughter Julia.

After two successful campaigns in Gaul, in the spring of b.c. 56, Cæsar met his two confederates at Luca, in Etruria, to arrange their future schemes. The conference was held with great display, almost like a royal court. More than two hundred senators were present, and one hundred and twenty lictors were in attendance, attached to the several magistrates. At this conference it was agreed that Pompey and Crassus should hold the consulship the following year, and, after their term of office, should receive by popular vote a similar command to that held by Cæsar, — namely, that Pompey should command in Spain and Crassus in Syria for five years each; also that when Cæsar's five years were up, he should receive in the same way a second term of five years. His ten years' administration would then close at the end of b.c. 49; after which time — an interval the case with the triumvirate of Octavianus (Augustus), Antony, and Lepidus after the death of Cæsar; but this earlier one was only a private knot of political aspirants.

1 It was a law that both consuls and prætors should have their power (imperium) continued for a year after their term of office, and, under the title proconsul or præpator, govern one of the military provinces. If the proconsul was not relieved at the end of the year, his power continued by the necessity of the case. In one instance, that of Pompey, an extraordinary power was conferred upon the proconsul by act of the people (the Manilian Law). Regularly, however, the assignment of provinces was reckoned a part of the administrative powers of the Senate; and a law of Caius Gracchus directed that the consular provinces should be determined before the election, — that is, a year and a half in advance, — and that then the consuls should draw lots which to have.
of ten years having elapsed—he would be eligible again as consul,

The programme was duly carried out. Crassus departed (B.C. 54) to his province, where he was defeated the next year by the Parthians in the battle of Carrhæ, and shortly after entrapped and killed. Pompey put his province in the hands of one of his subordinates, and remained in the neighborhood of Rome, unwilling to remove from the seat of his personal influence. The death of his wife Julia (B.C. 54) soon sundered the ties which bound him to Cæsar. Jealous from the first, he gradually became openly hostile to him; and at last he found himself leader of the Senate and the aristocracy against Cæsar's revolutionary schemes.

2. Condition of Italy.

The Roman state was in form and in name a Commonwealth or Republic (res publica); but in course of time all political power had come into the hands of a rich landed aristocracy, made up of both "patricians" (patricii, men of family) and "plebeians" (plebeii, men of the people). The organ of this aristocracy was the Senate, a body ordinarily of six or seven hundred men, who became members of it by holding certain magistracies, from the quæstorship upward, and then kept their seats for life. These magistracies were elective, so that a seat in the Senate rested in theory upon the popular will; but the great houses exercised such controlling influence over the elections through their clients and freedmen, and also by means of the peculiar machinery of election, that it was very difficult for any person not of a noble family (nobilis) to be chosen to any office. Opposed to the landed aristocracy was a class of wealthy capitalists known as equites, the "Equestrian Order." Many of these were as rich as the senators; but their wealth—most of it gained by usury, state contracts, slave-dealing, and “farming” of provincial taxes — consisted in money instead of land. A passage in Cicero’s Cluentius (ch. 56) speaks of the motives which led young men of that day to renounce the anxious splendor of a political career for the safer pursuit of money-getting. The moneyed aristocracy, accordingly, held aloof from public life, except where it might aid them to obtain rich contracts, or to secure (through the lobby) the passage of some measure that should advance their private interests. There was no industrious middle class in Rome. Manufacture on a large scale, as a means of wealth, was absolutely unknown; while all mechanical industries were carried on by slaves. The poorer class of citizens, the plebs, were wholly influenced in their votes by their wealthy patrons or by scheming demagogues.

The rural portions of Italy were for the most part held in large plantations (latifundia), owned by nobles, or men of the senatorial order, and cultivated by slaves, or, more frequently, occupied by great droves of cattle tended by herdsmen. This plantation system had crowded out the class of free peasant proprietors in almost all parts of the peninsula. There still remained, however, here and there, especially in Northern Italy (Cisalpine Gaul), a considerable body of small land-owners; and the municipal towns (municipia), about four hundred in number, whose territories comprised, politically speaking, the whole area of Italy, were still (as we see in Cicero’s Roscius) the home of a fairly prosperous middle-class. The municipal nobility, who had in their hands the government of these towns, were classed with the Equestrian Order: of this important class Cicero himself (a native of Arpinum) is the best-known example. The equites of the municipal class, joined with the peasant population where it still survived, formed a considerable body of substantial character and intelligence, who might have served as an opposition party to the corrupt ruler and the aristocracy. But they were too scattered or too distant to exert, as a body, any perceptible influence on public affairs. Since there was no system of representation, they must go to Rome in person to cast their votes; and here they were wholly powerless against the hangers-on of the nobles or the turbulent political clubs of the metropolis.

In this class, however, lay whatever hope there was of escape from the corrupt and inefficient rule of the aristocracy. Partisans of the nobility were known as Optimates; those opposed to them, as Populares. To the party of the populares Caesar attached himself from his first entrance into public life, notwithstanding he was himself a member of the highest patrician stock; and, by his remarkable personal qualities as a leader, he succeeded in defeating all the power of the aristocracy in the elections. He appears in his policy to have been powerfully and from conviction influenced by the social and economical necessities of the rural communities and the municipal towns, as is shown by some features of his legislation during the short period of his rule. But the constitution of the Republic was hopelessly inefficient. The governing class was wholly incompetent to its task; and the only resource against anarchy appears to have been that some one man, by craft or force, should get all the reins of power into his single hand.

For a time, Pompey seemed likely to be this man. Both by military reputation and by personal qualities he might appear to have been well fitted for it; and a strong personal party — Cicero and Cato among the rest — stayed by him to the last. His sympathies were, on the whole, with the Senate; and he had neither the energy of political conviction nor the controlling personal ambition to break finally with the traditions of the State. Caesar had all the qualities, — statesmanlike insight, political ambition, and reckless audacity; and he put himself at the head of the populares, probably with a half-conscious assurance that the end would be to make him master of the Roman world,

The remainder of Cæsar's life belongs to the general history of Rome. At the close of the Gallic war, the senatorial party required that he should disband his army. This he refused to do, unless Pompey should make an equal surrender of military force. From these demands grew the charge of false play on each side, until the Civil War broke out (B.C. 49), and Pompey fled to Greece, where he was defeated the following year at Pharsalia, and shortly after was murdered in Egypt. Two years later (B.C. 46), in the decisive battle of Thapsus, in Africa, the Republic was finally crushed, and its leader, Cato, put himself to death at Utica. Cæsar now returned to Rome,¹ where he was made imperator — possessing the entire imperium, or military dominion of Rome, not of a single colony or province merely — and perpetual dictator (dictator perpetuo), which offices clothed him with all the political authority of the State. By the powers thus conferred he laid the foundations of the Imperial constitution, which was afterwards (B.C. 30) set in operation by his grand-nephew and adopted son, Octavianus, later known as Augustus. This scheme of government eventually became (as was possibly foreseen from the start) an hereditary monarchy, under the name and form of a republic. During the short period of Cæsar's rule he carried a series of measures of wise and practical statesmanship, such as the reform of the calendar, the regulation of the administrative system, and the policy of checks upon the abuses of the money power; but his possession of this exalted authority aroused the alarm and hate of a fanatic party, who vainly thought to restore the rule of an effete aristocracy; and on the Ides of March (March 15), B.C. 44, Julius Cæsar was murdered in the Senate-house by a conspiracy under the pedantic and ungrateful lead of Brutus.

4. Person and Character of Cæsar.

In person, Cæsar was tall and slenderly built, his face rather long and thin, his eyes black, vivacious, and keen ("falcon eyes"), his nose prominent, of the Roman type, his head somewhat bald in later life. It might seem certain that he was a man of extraordinary physical as well as mental vigor; but he was reproached for effeminacy in early life, and is said to have had attacks of epilepsy. "I should have liked," says Michelet, "to see that white and pale countenance, withered before its time by the debauches of Rome; that delicate and epileptic man, walking at the head of his legions under the rains of Gaul, swimming across its rivers, or riding on horseback among the litters in which his secretaries were borne, and dictating four or six letters at a time; agitating Rome from the remotest part of Belgium, sweeping away two millions of men on his path, and in the space of ten years subduing Gaul, the Rhine, and the northern ocean." He was a man of varied powers: a student of language, who composed a treatise on grammar while crossing the Alps; an orator, only second in his generation to 1 In several of the portraits the character of face reminds one of Henry Clay. That prefixed to this edition, from a bust in the Museum at Naples, is regarded as one of the most authoritative, but as somewhat idealized. An article by Mr. John S. Ropes, in Scribner’s Magazine for March, 1887, gives engravings of all the best of these portraits. It is interesting, however, to note, as illustrating the wide difference of opinion of many experts on this subject, that Mr. Ropes hardly mentions the Paris bust, which Professor Bernoulli, the highest German authority, considers the most authentic of all.

2 History of the Roman Republic, Book iii., chap. 5.
Cicero, and, as we can easily believe, of a more sober and masculine style than he. As an historian he has the high qualities of a keen and critical observation, and a style of much condensed vigor; his best ability in this line is shown in the Seventh Book of the Gallic War, which is a masterpiece of graphic and energetic narration. The earlier books, while hardly more than a collection of memoranda and military reports, are full of historical information of great interest and value.

II.—GAUL AND GERMANY.

1. The Gallic Province.

The district upon whose government Caesar entered in the spring of B.C. 58, consisted primarily of the two Gallic provinces, Cisalpine and Transalpine. Cisalpine Gaul was the northern portion of Italy, which had been several centuries earlier occupied by invaders from Gaul proper, and was not yet reckoned as politically a part of Italy: it was a wealthy, populous, and orderly country, the proconsul's main dependence for troops and supplies, and his regular winter residence. Transalpine or Narbonnese Gaul received its name from its capital, the Roman colony Narbo. It contained some thriving cities and peaceful districts; but it had as a whole been only recently brought under the authority of Rome, and was still essentially a foreign country. It comprised the whole coast of the Mediterranean, from the Pyrenees to the Alps, its northern boundary being an irregular and uncertain line, separating the conquered nations of Gaul from those which were still free. To these two provinces was attached Illyricum, which was a source of strength, but did not receive much of his attention.

The authority of the governor over his province was that of a military commander, who was not amenable to the laws which protected the citizens of Rome. A few privileged cities or nations, as the old Greek city Massilia, and the allied tribe of the Ædui (after they were brought within the limits of the empire), were wholly exempted from his authority; but all other parts of the province, even Roman colonies like Narbo, were liable to tribute, and more or less under the jurisdiction of the governor. Each province had its financial officer, or quaestor, who ranked next the governor himself; the commander was likewise attended by staff-officers (legati, usually three in number), appointed by the Senate from persons of rank and position; and by an indefinite number of aids (contuberales or comites), who composed what was sometimes, but incorrectly, called the praetorian cohort. A consular army consisted regularly of two legions (at this time of from 3,000 to 3,600 men); to these were added auxiliaries, both foot and horse, while the governor had power to levy new legions as he required them. Thus we find that Cæsar had six legions in his campaign against the Nervii.

The free territories adjoining a Roman province were in no respect under the authority of the governor; but they were regarded as a legitimate field for his ambition, and there was no lack of pretexts for war. The Roman policy was to enter into friendly relations with one of the parties or tribes in the free territory, load this with favors and privileges, and make use of it to overcome their rivals: in Gaul the Ædui were the favored nation.

Cæsar's province, at its western extremity, touched Spain, a country which had belonged to the empire for more than a hundred and fifty years. North of it lay three great nationalities, with all of which he was brought in contact. These were the Gauls, the Germans, and the Britons.

Free Gaul (Libera Gallia) consisted of all the unsubdued territory between the Pyrenees on the one side, and the Rhine and the Alps on the other, thus comprising, in general, modern France and Belgium, with parts of Holland, Germany, and Switzerland. The central portion of this territory, fully a half in extent and population, was occupied by the Gauls proper, or, as they called themselves, Celts. Southwest of these were the Aquitani, of Iberian race, cognate to the Spanish: these are represented by the Basques of the present day. Northeast were the Belgians, whose ethnic affinities are much disputed: all that can be considered certain is that they were largely mixed with Germans. The Belgians occupied more territory than that of the modern Belgium, including a considerable part of Holland, and the northern belt of France.

2. The Gallic State.

The Gauls were an intellectual and prosperous people, far more civilized than either Germans or Britons. The country, though extensively covered with forests, especially towards the north, was well provided with roads and bridges. The entire population has been reckoned at about seven millions. The people of the Gallic race were tall, fair-complexioned, of restless, sanguine temperament, and addicted to fighting, but skilled in many arts — some portions in weaving; the Aquitani, especially, in mining and engineering; and the Bretons (Veneti) in open-sea navigation, which they followed with stout, high-built ships, leathern sails, and iron chain-cables. The dress of the Gauls included trousers, and shirts with sleeves; they had a barbaric taste for gaudy ornament; their arms were showy, but clumsy and ineffective beside the tempered weapons of the Romans. They had numerous flourishing cities, which, however, had no political or corporate character like those of Greece and Italy, but were merely places of residence and trade.

The Gauls were not a nation, but a group of nations or tribes, about sixty in number, united by only the slightest bond of consanguinity and common religion. These tribes (which may be compared to those of the North American Indians, though they were at a much higher degree of civilization) varied greatly in extent and power, the smaller ones often maintaining only a nominal independence under the protection of some larger one. They were for the most part ruled by a turbulent and oppressive aristocracy, sometimes with an elected chief magistrate, while sometimes an ambitious leader, like Orgetorix, succeeded in establishing for a time a kingly power. Thus the several states were torn by hostile parties, and were at the same time grouped into national factions, under the lead of the more powerful states, like the Aledui, Arverni, and Remi. Of these factions, at the time of Cæsar’s invasion, the Aledui were at the head of one which sought to gain supremacy by entering into alliance with the Romans. Their nearest neighbors and antagonists, the Sequani, had naturally looked in the opposite direction for allies, and found them in the Germans.
Introduction.

The Britons were, like the Gauls, of Celtic race, and resembled them in every respect, except that, being further from the civilized world, they were ruder, freer, and more warlike.

It was the destiny of Julius Cæsar to bring the great Gallic people into the system of civilization and government represented by Rome: it was a definite and large extension of the bounds of civilized society. From him, too, we have the earliest authentic accounts of the other two nationalities,—the Germans and the Britons.

3. Germany.

The Germans occupied nearly the same territory as at the present day,—not so far west as now, but, on the other hand, extending farther to the east. Less advanced in civilization than the Gauls, they were still far from being savages. They appear to have been just emerging from what is known as the barbarous state,—beginning to acquire fixed habitations, and to cultivate the ground: they had nc cities. They had brought with them from their migrations a political system — similar in origin to that of the Gallic tribes — based upon an original community of descent, in which the patriarchal organization had already expanded into a multitude of petty nations, grouped into larger combinations of race. Their institutions, unlike those of the Gauls, were democratic; they had noble families, but these possessed no political prerogatives. Some nations had kings; but these were only a higher grade of magistrates, possessing no despotic or controlling authority. 'We find, however, among the Germans, the germ of the later feudal aristocracy, in the practice of their chiefs to surround themselves with a body of personal followers or retainers, whom they employed in war and maintained in peace.

Various considerations, says a recent writer, make it probable "that the Germans had come down from the northeast not very long before the Christian era, and intruded themselves, as a wedge, between those two more anciently recorded nations (Scythians and Celts). . . . We shall see evidence of the continuous advance of a civilized race from the confines of India to these islands, and nothing indicative of a great rush from the North of wild hordes bent upon robbery and destruction, as it has been usually represented to have been. The gradual drying of the Caspian Sea left the interior of Asia more and more barren; the knowledge of the useful metals facilitated the conquest of the savages of the West; and predatory bands of Huns and Turks, and allied nomadic nations, are likely to have accelerated the movement by rendering the labors of agriculture less remunerative. Thus the migration, being one that proceeded from constantly acting causes, extended over many centuries. . . .

"In these mere names [of plants and fruits], setting aside all other sources of information, we discover that these people came from their home in the East with a knowledge of letters and the useful metals, and with nearly all the domestic animals; that they cultivated oats, barley, wheat, rye, and beans; built houses of timber, and thatched them; and, what is important as showing that their pasture and arable land was intermixed, and acknowledged as private property, they hedged their fields and fenced their gardens. Cæsar denies this; but the frontier tribes, with whom he was acquainted, were living under certain peculiar Mark laws, and were, in fact, little else than an army on its march. The unquestionably native, and not Latin or Celtic, origin of such names as Beach and Hawthorn, of Oats and Wheat, prove that although our ancestry may have been indebted to the provincials of the empire for their fruit-trees and some other luxuries, for a knowledge of the fine arts, and the Latin literature, and a debased Christianity, the more essential acquirements, upon which their prosperity and progress as a nation depended, were already in their possession.” — Prior, Popular Names of British Plants. Introd. (1863).

1 The account here given of the civilization and social condition of the Germans is graphic and correct in its main features, and we have thought it best to cite it in full. It ought to be noted, however, that the description of their agriculture and landed institutions is not in accordance with the presently received opinions. There is no ground for disparaging or doubting the testimony of Cæsar and Tacitus, whose statements confirm one another and are confirmed by all that we can gather from other sources of information. The Germans were now passing from their migratory or semi-nomadic condition into that of settled habitations and regular industry, but they had not yet completed the transition. There was, as Cæsar informs us, no individual ownership of land among them, and it is doubtful whether there was such even in the times of Tacitus, one hundred and fifty years later. The events narrated in the last half of the first book form an important epoch in the history of civilization. The occupation of the Sequanian territory by Ariovistus was the last step forward in their migration; and to Cæsar belongs the credit of having put a final and decisive check upon this movement, and confined them within the limits of the Rhine. Fifty years before this, the Cimbri and Teutones had invaded the empire and excited great terror and consternation; but their invasion was
The campaigns of Cæsar in Gaul lasted through eight seasons (B.C. 58–51), and are told in eight books,—the last written by Hirtius, an officer of Cæsar,—each book containing the operations of a single year. The following is a brief outline:—

I. Cæsar checks the attempt of the Helvetians to colonize in Western Gaul, and forces them, after a bloody defeat, to return to their own territory. He then engages with a powerful tribe of Germans, who had made a military settlement in Eastern Gaul, and drives them, with their chief, Ariovistus, beyond the Rhine.

II. A formidable confederacy of the northern populations of Gaul is suppressed, with the almost complete extermination of the bravest Belgian tribe, the Nervii, in a battle which seems to have been one of the most desperate of all Cæsar ever fought. In this campaign the coast towns of the west and northwest (Brittany) are reduced to submission.

III. After a brief conflict with the mountaineers of the Alps, who attacked the Roman armies on their march, the chief operations are the conquest of the coast tribes of Brittany (Veneti, etc.), in a warfare of curious naval engineering in the shallow tide-water inlets and among the rocky shores. During the season, the tribes of the southwest (Aquitani), a mining population, allied to the Iberians or Basques, are reduced by one of Cæsar's officers.

IV. An attack from the Germans on Northern Gaul is repulsed; and Cæsar follows them, by a bridge of timber hastily built, across the Rhine. Returning, he crosses to Britain in the early autumn for a visit of exploration.

A predatory raid, permanently ended when they were defeated by Marius. Ariovistus, on the other hand, was the leader of a colonizing movement, like that of Hengist and Horsa on the shores of Britain.
V. The partial conquest of Britain (second invasion) is followed by various movements in Northern Gaul, in which the desperate condition of the Roman garrisons is relieved by the prudent and brave conduct of Labienus and Quintus Cicero.

VI. Cæsar makes a brief expedition across the Rhine, against the Germans. Some general disturbances are quelled, and Northern Gaul is reduced to peace.

VII. Vercingetorix, a brave and high-spirited chief of Southern Gaul, effects a confederacy of the whole country, which is at length subdued. Vercingetorix, in brilliant equipment, surrenders himself to secure the quiet of the country, and is taken in chains to Rome, where he is afterwards put to death in Cæsar's triumph.

VIII. Slight insurrections, breaking out here and there, are easily subdued; and by the capture of the last native stronghold, Uxellodunum, the subjugation of Gaul is made complete.
NOTE.—The following, taken from notes of a summer excursion made by one of the editors of this volume, may help the young student to conceive a little more distinctly one of the earlier scenes of these celebrated campaigns.

DID CÆSAR FORTIFY THE RHONE?

Some years ago, having occasion to look at the matter, I was struck to find that in the Life of Cæsar by Napoleon III., reports of engineers were given, to the effect that only a few points here and there in those nineteen miles needed fortification, or probably ever were fortified; and those same engineers reported that they had found traces, at such points, of what they supposed to be Cæsar’s forts. This may have been because they looked for them there; and perhaps if they had looked for something else, they would have found that too.

At least my curiosity was moved, and I thought to myself that if I ever had the chance I would look with my own eyes and see what I could see. Now it happened, in the summer of 1881, that I spent a few days at Geneva, and on the third day proceeded to put my scheme in practice. In the morning I went by omnibus over the five dusty miles to Ferney, to see Voltaire’s estate and chapel there; and from this elevation had a splendid view not only of the Mont-Blanc range to the southeast, but of the slope of the Jura, as plain as it is on the map, toward the Rhone and the southwest. At noon I was back in Geneva, and spent the afternoon in following the parched, rough, and dusty margin of the river as far down as I could conveniently go. A good deal of the way was through a rather scrubby growth of trees, and some of it over rough field cracked with the heat and drought of early August. I kept, as nearly as I could, the line which must have been followed by Cæsar’s engineers, and may fairly say that I stood on every “coigne of vantage” that commanded a fair view of the river for at least five miles below Geneva.

As to the remaining dozen or fifteen miles, I of course do not pretend to say. But the general impression I took from the survey I did make might be summed up by saying that General Scott might as well have claimed, for political effect, to have fortified the gorge below Niagara against the Canadians in the War of 1812. At Geneva, as everybody knows, the river rushes out of the lake in great body and force. Byron calls it "the arrowy Rhone," which the guide-book improves upon by saying that it flows "swift as an arrow." Some allowance must be made for this poetic but violent hyperbole. But it is no exaggeration at all to say that the Rhone, as it passes under and issues from the bridges at Geneva, is a gigantic mill-race. At its narrowest it is about four hundred feet wide (by my reckoning), and though it widens out a good deal below, it seems to abate nothing of its speed. The Arve comes in, a mile or so below the city, and its white-brown, clayey water spins along on the surface of the torrent, showing hardly any sign of mingling as far as I could follow it with my eye.

To all appearance it would be perfectly idle to float a boat in the current. Not a sign of a boat was anywhere to be seen, except where here and there some craft was moored to the shore, so as to take advantage of the stream to turn a mill-wheel,—possibly, too, to catch fish, or wash clothes. As for navigation, it seemed ridiculous to hint at any such thing. Yet just here, the river being perhaps half a mile wide,—or a few miles below, where it is wider yet and about as swift,—we are to believe that the unfortunate Helvetians made a serious attempt to cross in their pitiful canoes, and it is something of a victory for Cæsar’s troops to have prevented their landing! If they did try, it would be hard to persuade me that they ever got half way over, or that the victory was anything more than the fun of seeing them swept helpless down the stream.

I am, further, very sceptical as to their ever reaching the water’s edge on the other side. All the way along, on both sides, there are precipitous banks, coming close down into the river, which I roughly guessed to be (on the opposite side) about a hundred feet high. The cabarétier on the hither bank, where I got my humble repast, thought they were full three hundred. Either height is quite enough to make any such attempt impossible. In order to give the proportions of his victory, Cæsar tells us, afterwards, that the armed migration of the Helvetians consisted of more than 368,000,—men, women, and children, to say nothing of wagons and live-stock. And only a sharp fight prevents these poor creatures,—after they have climbed down that precipice and got somehow to the water’s edge, — from forcing a landing on the other bank, equally high, steep, and barricaded with trees! Where did the fleet of boats come from? And how was that multitude, cattle, carts, and all, to get across that half-mile mill-race? I ought to say that there is not even a respectable wall of rock to climb down by; but (so far as one can judge) a sort of indurated clay, — not slaty shale, like that at Niagara, which you can crumble off in your fingers, but lumpy, amorphous, and (one would think) the most treacherous climbing in the world.

I do not believe that Cæsar would have made his — real or imaginary — wall extend all the way from Geneva, as he did, if he had not been at a safe distance from Rome. With all his great qualities as a military leader, he was at the same time a shrewd politician, watching his chances at home when the war of conquest should be over. His notes of battle and march were hastily made up, in little packages, and sent to his friends at the capital, as powder for the campaign going on there. They were written for political effect; and I do not see why we should take them at their word, any more than other things written for political effect. At least in this part of the ground, I think the story is very suspicious. I dare say there may have been fortified spots here and there along the bank, as the French engineers assert, — probably for purposes of observation, not defence. But as to this "wall nineteen miles long and sixteen feet high, with a ditch," I conclude that we may take as much or as little of it as we choose.

THE GALLIC WAR.

BOOK I.

INTRODUCTION: Description of Gaul (Chap i).

The Helvetic War. — Orgetorix, an Helvetian chief, plans the invasion of Gaul: he conspires with the chiefs of several Gallic tribes; is brought to trial, escapes, and is put under the ban; soon afterwards dies (2-4). The Helvetians complete their preparations, and gather near the Rhone, requesting leave to pass peaceably through the Province. Cæsar delays them by pretexts, while he hastily throws up an earthwork to prevent their crossing the river. They attempt the passage, but are repulsed (5-8). Forming a league with the Sequani, they penetrate and ravage the territory of the Ėdui, friends of Rome, who solicit protection. Cæsar, levying a force of upwards of 30,000, overtakes and cuts to pieces their rear-guard (Tigurini), at the crossing of the Arar (9-12). An embassy of the Helvetians, headed by the aged Divico, leads to no result. A cavalry skirmish, in which the Romans are worsted, together with the delay of supplies, shows the bad faith of a party among the Ėdui, headed by Dumnorix; who is arrested, but spared on the intercession of his brother Divitiacus, and put under close guard by Cæsar (13-20). Cæsar makes preparations for attack, but is prevented by a false alarm, and moves towards Bibracte. The Helvetians, now well in advance, turn about for battle. They are forced to retreat to a hill, and attempt to flank the Romans; but are completely routed, and fly towards the north (21-26). They are at length forced to surrender. Six thousand escape, but are retaken, and put to death. The remainder are compelled to return to Helvetia, and rebuild the villages which they had destroyed (27-29).

The War with Ariovistus. — The chief populations of Gaul seek terms of amity, representing the condition of the country, especially under the invasions of the German Ariovistus, by whom the Sequani are chiefly oppressed (30-33). Cæsar sends envoys to him, but receiving a haughty reply sets out on a forced march towards the German frontier (34–38). His men are greatly terrified, but are cheered by his assurances, especially of reliance on the tenth legion (39–41). At the request of Ariovistus, a conference is held, but is broken up by signs of bad faith among the Germans (42–46). A second conference, proposed by Ariovistus, is refused, and he throws into chains the messengers sent by Cæsar. After a cavalry skirmish, an indecisive battle follows, and the Germans fall back to their camp (47–50). Cæsar attacks the camp: the Germans, marshalled by tribes, defend their families and equipage. A close and furious engagement follows, in which the Germans are routed and driven to the Rhine. Ariovistus escapes, a part of his household is taken, and Cæsar returns to his winter quarters (51–54).

GALLIA est omnis divisa in partes tres; quarum unam incolunt Belgae, aliam Aquitani, tertiam qui ipsorum lingua Celtae, nostra Galli appellantur. Hi omnes lingua, institutis, legibus inter se differunt. Gallos ab Aquitanis Garumna flumen, a Belgis Matrona et Sequana dividit. Horum omnium fortissimi sunt Belgae, propter qua quod a cultu atque humanitate provinciae longissime absunt, minimeque ad eos mercatores saepe commeant, atque ea quae ad effeminandos animos pertinent important; proximique sunt Germanis, qui trans Rhenum incolunt, quibuscum continenter bellum gerunt. Qua de causa Helvetii quoque reliquos Gallos virtute praecedunt, quod fere quotidianis proelis cum Germanis contendunt, cum aut suis finibus cos prohibent, aut ipsi in eorum finibus bellum gerunt. Eorum una pars, quam Gallos obtinere dictum est, initium capit a flumine Rhodano; contineitur Garumna flumine, Oceano, finibus Belgarum; attingit etiam ab Sequanis et Helvetiis flumen Rhe- num; vergit ad septentriones. Belgae ab extremis Galliae finibus oriuntur, pertinent ad inferiorem partem fluminis Rheni, spectant in septentrionem et orientem solem. Aquitania a Garumna flumine ad Pyrenaeos montes et eam partem Oceani quae est ad Hispaniam pertinet, spectat inter occasum solis et septentriones.

2. Apud Helvetios longe nobilissimus fuit et ditissimus Orgetorix. Is, M. Messala et M. Pisone consulis, regni cupiditate inductus, conjurationem nobilitatis fecit, et civitati persuasit ut de finibus suis cum omnibus copiis exirent: perfacile esse, cum virtute omnibus praestarent, totius Galliae imperio potiri. 2 Id hoc facilium eis persuasit, quod undique loci natura Helvetii continentur: una ex parte flumine Rheno latissimo atque altissimo, qui agrum Helvetium a Germanis dividit; altera ex parte monte Jura altissimo, qui est inter Sequanos et Helvetios; tertia lacu Lemanno et flumine Rhodano, qui provinciam nostram ab Helvetiiis dividit. 3 His rebus fiebat, ut et minus late vagarentur, et minus facile finitimos bellum inferre possent; qua ex parte homines bellandi cupidi magno dolore adficiebantur. 4 Pro multitudine autem hominum, et pro gloria belli atque fortitudinis, angustos se fines habere arbitrabantur, qui in longitudinem milia passuum ccxl, in latitudinem clxxx patebant.

3. His rebus adducti, et auctoritate Orgetorigis permoti, constituerunt ea quae ad proficiscendum pertinerent comparare, jumentorum et carorum quem maximum numerum coemere, sementes quam maximas facere, ut in itinere copia frumenti suppeteret, cum proximis civitatibus pacem et amicitiam confirmare. 2 Ad eas res conficiendas biennium sibi satis esse duxorunt, in tertium annum profectionem lege confirmant. Ad eas res conficiendas Orgetorix deligitur. 3 Is sibi legationem ad civitates suscepit. In eo itinere persuadet Castico, Catamantaloedis filio, Sequano, cujus pater regnum in Sequanis multos annos obtinuerat, et a senatu populi Romani amicus appellatus erat, ut regnum in civitate sua occuparet, quod pater ante habuerat; itemque Dumnorigi Haeduo, fratri Divitiaci, qui eo tempore principatum in civitate obtinebat ac maxime plebi acceptus erat, ut idem con-aretur persuadet, eique filiam suam in matrimonium
dat. 4 Perfacile factu esse illis probat conata perficere, propterea quod ipse suae civitatis imperium obtenturus esset: non esse dubium, quin totius Galliae plurimum Helvetii possent; se suis copiis suoque exercitu illis regna conciliaturum confirmat. 5 Hac oratione adduc-ti, inter se fidem et jusjurandum dant, et, regno occupato, per tres potentissimos ac firmissimos populos totius Galliae sese potiri posse sperant.

4. Ea res est Helvetiis per indicium enuntiata.
Moribus suis Orgetorigem ex vinclis causam dicere coögerunt. Damnatum poenam sequi oportebat, ut igni cremaretur. 2 Die constituta causae dictionis, Orgetorix ad judicium omnem suam familiam, ad hominum milia decem, undique coögit, et omnes clientes obaeratosque suos, quorum magnum numerum habebat, eodem conduxit; per eos, ne causam diceret, se eripuit. 3 Cum civitas ob eam rem incitata armis jus suum exsequi conaretur, multitudinemque hominum ex agris magistratus cogerent, Orgetorix mortuus est; neque abest suspicio, ut Helvetii arbitrantur, quin ipse sibi mortem consciverit.

5. Post ejus mortem, nihil minus Helvetii id quod constituerant facere conantur, ut e finibus suis exeat.
Ubi jam se ad eam rem paratos esse arbitrati sunt, oppida sua omnia numero ad duodecim, vicos ad quadringentos, reliqua privata aedificia incendunt; frumentum omne, praeterquam quod secum portaturi erant, comburunt, ut — domum reditionis spe sublata — paratiorem ad omnia pericula subeunda essent; trium mensium molita cibaria sibi quemque domo efferre jubent. 2 Persuadent Rauracis et Tulingis et Latobrigis finitimis, uti, eodem usi consilio, oppidis suis — vicisque exustis, una cum iis profisciscantur; Boiosque, qui trans Rhenum incoluerant, et in agrum Noricum transierant Noreiamque oppugnarant, receptos ad se socios sibi adsciscunt.

7. Caesari cum id nuntiatum esset, eos per provinciam nostram iter facere conari, maturat ab urbe proficisci, et quam maximis potest itineribus in Galliam ulteriorem contendit, et ad Genuam pervenit. Provinciae toti quam maximum potest militum numerum imperat—erat omnino in Gallia ulteriore legio una; pontem, qui erat ad Genuam, jubet rescindiri. Ubi de ejus adventu Helvetii certiores facti sunt, legatos ad cum mittunt, nobilissimos civitatis, cujus legationis Nammeius et Verudoctius principem locum obtinabant, qui dicerent 'sibi esse in animo sine ullo maleficio iter per provinciam facere, propterea quod aliuud iter haberent nullum: rogare, ut ejus voluntate id sibi facere liceat.' Caesar, quod memoria tenebat L. Cassium consulem occisum, exercitumque ejus ab Hel-

vetiis pulsum et sub jugum missum, concedendum non putabat; neque homines inimico animo, data facultate per provinciam itineris faciundi, temperaturos ab injuria et maleficio existimabat. Tamen, ut spatium intercedere posset, dum milites quos imperaverat convenirent, legatis respondit diem se ad deliberandum sumpturum; si quid vellent, ad Id. Apr. reverterentur.

8. Interea ea legione, quam secum habebat, militibusque qui ex provincia convenerant, a lacu Lemanno, qui in flumen Rhodanum influit, ad montem Juram, qui fines Sequanorum ab Helvetiis dividit, milia passuum decem novem, murum in altitudinem pedum sedecim, fossamque perducit.

3 Ubi ea dies quam constituerat cum legatis venit, et legati ad eum reverterunt, negat se more et exemplo populi Romani posse iter ulli per provinciam dare; et, si vim facere consentur, prohibeturum ostendit.

4 Helvetii, ea spe dejecti, navibus junctis ratibusque compluribus factis, alii vadis Rhodani, qua minima altitudo fluminis erat, nonnunquam interdii, saepius noctu, si perrumpere possent conati, operis munitione et militum concursu et telis repulsi, hoc conatu destiterunt.

9. Relinquebatur una per Sequanos via, qua, Sequanis invitis, propter angustias ire non poterant. His cum sua sponte persuadere non possent, legatos ad Dumnorigem Haeduum mittunt, ut eo deprecatore a Sequanis impetrarent. Dumnorix gratia et largitione apud Sequanos plurimum poterat, et Helvetiis erat amicus, quod ex ea civitate Orgetorigis filiam in matrimonium duxerat; et cupiditate regni adductus novis rebus studebat, et quam plurimas civitates suo beneficio habere obstrictas volebat.

3 Itaque rem suscipit, et a Sequanis impetrat ut per fines suos Helvetios ire patiantur, obsidesque uti inter sese dent perficit: Se-quani, ne itinere Helvetios prohibeant; Helvetii, ut sine maleficio et injuria transeant.

10. Caesari renuntiatur Helvetiis esse in animo per agrum Sequanorum et Haeduorum iter in Santonum fines facere, qui non longe a Tolosatium finibus absunt, quae civitas est in Provincia. 2Id si fieret, intellegebat magno cum periculo provinciae futurum, ut homines bellicosos, populi Romani inimicos, locis patentibus maximeque frumentariis finitimos haberet. 3Ob eas causas, ei munitioni quam fecerat T. Labienum legatum praefecit; ipse in Italian magnis itineribus contendit, duasque ibi legiones conscribit, et tres, quae circum Aquileiam hiemabat, ex hibernis educit, et, qua proximum iter in ulteriorum Galliam per Alpes erat, cum his quinque legionibus ire contendit. 4Ibi 15 Centrones et Graioceli et Caturiges, locis superioribus occupatis, itinere exercitum prohibere conantur. Com pluribus his proelii pulsis, ab Ocelo, quod est citerioris provinciae extremum, in fines Vocontiorum ulterioris provinciae die septimo pervenit; inde in 20 Allobrogum fines, ab Allobrogibus in Segusiavos exercitum ducit. Hi sunt extra provinciam trans Rhodanum prumi.

11. Helvetii jam per angustias et fines Sequanorum suas copias traduxerant, et in Haeduorum fines per 25 venerant, eorumque agros populabantur. Haedui, cum se suaque ab iis defendere non possent, legatos ad Caesarem mittunt rogatum auxilium: 21'\text{Ita se omni tempore de populo Romano meritos esse, ut paene in conspectu exercitus nostri agri vastari, liberi eorum in servitatem abduci, oppida expugnari non debuerint.'}

3Eodem tempore Haedui Ambarri, necessarii et consanguinei Haeduorum, Caesarem certiorem faciunt, sese, depopulatis agris, non facile ab oppidis vim hostium prohibere. 4Item Allobroges, qui trans Rhodanum vicos possessionesque habebant, fuga scad Caesarem recipiunt, et demonstrant sibi praeter agrisolum nihil esse reliqui. 5 Quibus rebus adductus, Caesar non exspectandum sibi statuit, dum, omnibus fortunis sociorum consumptis, in Santonos Helvetii pervenirent. 5 12. Flumen est Arar, quod per fines Haeduorum et Sequanorum in Rhodanum influit, incredibili lenitate, ita ut oculis, in utram partem fluat, judicari non possit. Id Helvetii ratibus ac lintribus junctis transibant. 2 Ubi per exploratores Caesar certior factus est, tres jam partes copiarum Helvetios id flumen traduxisse, quartam fere partem citra flumen Ararim reliquam esse; de tertia vigilia cum legionibus tribus e castris proiectus, ad eam partem pervenit, quae nondum flumen transierat. 3 Eos impeditos et inopinantes adgres-sus, magnam partem eorum concidit: reliqui sese fugae mandarunt, atque in proximas silvas abidine-runt. Is pagus appellabatur Tigurinus: nam omnis civitas Helvetia in quattuor pagos divisa est. 4 Hic pagus unus, cum domo exisset, patrum nostrorum memoria L. Cassium consulem interfecerat, et ejus exercitum sub jugum miserat. Ita sive casu, sive consilio deorum immortalium, quae pars civitatis Helvetiae insignem calamitatem populo Romano intulerat, ea princeps poenas persolvit. 5 Qua in re Caesar non solum publicas, sed etiam privatas injurias ultus est; quod ejus socii L. Pisonis avum, L. Pisonem legatum, Tigurini eodem proelio quo Cassium interfece-rant. 13. Hoc proelio facto, reliquas copias Helvetiorum ut consequi posset, pontem in Arare faciendum curat, atque ita exercitum traducit. 2 Helvetii, repentino ejus adventu commoti, cum id quod ipsi diebus xx aegerrume confecerant, ut flumen transirent, illum uno die fecisse intellegereNT, legatos ad eum mittunt; 35 cujuS legationis Divico princeps fuit, qui bello Cassiano dux Helvetiorum fuerat. 3 Is ita cum Caesare egit:
Embassy of Divico.

14. His Caesar ita respondit: 'Eo sibi minus dubitationis dari, quod eas res, quas legati Helvetii commemorassent, memoria teneret, atque eo gravius ferre, quo minus merito populi Romani accidissent: 2 qui si alicujus injuriae sibi conscius fuisse, non fuisse difficile cavere; sed eo deceptum, quod neque commissum a se intellexeret quare timeret, neque sine causa timendum putaret. 3 Quod si veteris contumeliae obvisci vellet, num etiam recentium injuriarum, quod eo invito iter per provinciam per vim temptassent, quod Haeduos, quod Ambarros, quod Allobrogas vexassent, memoriam deponere posse? 4 Quod sua victoria tam insolenter gloriarentur, quodque tam diu se impune injurias tulisse admirarentur, eodem pertinere. 5 Consuessa enim deos immortales, quo gravius homines ex commutatione rerum doleant, quos pro scelere eorum ulcisci velit, his secundiores interdum res et diuturnoem impunitatem concedere. 6 Cum ea ita sint, tamen si obsides ab iis sibi dentur, uti ea quae polliceantur facturos intellegat, et si Haeduis de injuriis quas ipsis sociisque eorum intulerint, item si Allobrogibus satis faciant, sese cum iis pacem esse facturum.' 7 Divico respondit: 'Ita Helvetios a majoribus suis institutos esse, uti obsides accipere, non dare consuerint; ejus rei populum Romanum esse testem.' Hoc responso dato, discessit.

5 15. Postero die castra ex eo loco movent. Idem facit Caesar, equitatumque omnem, ad numerum quattuor milium, quem ex omni provincia et Haeduis atque eorum sociis coactum habebat, praemittit, qui videant quas in partes hostes iter faciant. 2 Qui, cupi dius novissimum agmen insecuti, alieno loco cum equitatu Helvetiorum proelium committunt; et pauci de nostris cadunt. 3 Quo proelio sublati Helvetii, quod quingentis equitibus tantam multitudinem equi-tum propulerant, audacius subsistere nonnunquam, et novissimo agmine proelio nostros lacessere coeperunt. 4 Caesar suos a proelio continebat, ac satis habebat in praesentia hostem rapinis, pabulationibus, populationi-busque prohibere. 5 Ita dies circiter quindecim iter fecerunt, uti inter novissimum hostium agmen et nos-

10 trum primum non amplius quinis aut senis milibus passuum interesset.

16. Interim cotidie Caesar Haeduos frumentum, quod essent publice polliciti, flagitare. Nam propter frigora, quod Gallia sub septentrionibus (ut ante dictum est) posita est, non modo frumenta in agris matura non erant, sed ne pabuli quidem satis magna copia suppettebat: eo autem frumento, quod flumine Arare navibus subvexerat, propterea minus uti poterat, quod iter ab Arare Helvetii averterant, a quibus discedere

20 nolebat. 2 Diem ex die ducere Haedu: conferri, com-portari, adesse, dicere. Ubi se diutius duci intellexit, et diem instare, quo die frumentum militibus metiri oporteret, convocatis eorum principibus, quorum mag-

25 nam copiam in castris habebat, — in his Divitiaco et Lisco, qui summo magistratui praerat quem vergo-

30 bretum appellant Haedu, qui creatur annuus, et vitae
neceisque in suos habet potestatem,—graviter eos accusat, quod, cum neque emi neque ex agris sumi posset, tam necessario tempore, tam propinquis hostibus, ab iis non sublevetur; praeertim cum magna ex parte eorum precibus adductus bellum susceperit, multo etiam gravius quod sit destitutus queritur.

17. Tum demum Liscus, oratione Caesaris adductus, quod antea tacuerat proponit: 'Esse nonnullos, quorum auctoritas apud plebem plurimum valeat, qui privatim plus possint quam ipsi magistratus. Hos seditiosa atque improba oratione multitudinem deterrire, ne frumentum conferant, quod praestare debeant: si jam principatum Galliae obtinere non possint, Gallo- rum quam Romanorum imperia praeferre; neque dubitare [debeant] quin, si Helvetios superaverint Romani, una cum reliqua Gallia Haeduis libertatem sint erepturi. Ab eisdem nostra consilia, quaeque in castris gerantur, hostibus enuntiari; hos a se coërceri non posse. Quin etiam, quod necessario rem coactus Caesari enuntiarit, intellegere sese quanto id cum periculo fecerit, et ob eam causam, quam diu potuerit, tacuisse.'

18. Caesar hac oratione Lisci Dumnorigem, Divitiaci fratrem, designari sentiebat; sed, quod pluribus praesentibus eas res jactari nolebat, celeriter concilium dimittit, Liscum retinet. Quaerit ex solo ea quae in conventu dixerat. Dicit liberius atque audacios. Eadem secreto ab aliis quaerit; reperit esse vera: 'Ipsum esse Dumnorigem, summa audacia, magna apud plebem propter liberalitatem gratia, cupidum rerum novarum. Complures annos portoria reliquaque omnia Haeduorum vectigalia parvo pretio redeptae habere, propterea quod illo licente contra liceri audeat nemo. IIis rebus et suam rem familiares auxisse, et facultates ad largiendum magnas com- parasse; magnum numerum equitatus suo sumptu semper alere et circum se habere, neque solum domi, sed etiam apud finitimas civitates largiter posse; atque husjus potentiae causa matrem in Biturigibus homini ilic nobilissimo ac potentissimo collocasse, ipsum ex Helvetiis uxorem habere, sororem ex matre et propin-quas suas nuptum in alias civitates collocasse. 5 Favere et cupere Helvetiis propter eam adfinitatem, odisse etiam suo nomine Caesarem et Romanos, quod eorum adventu potentia ejus deminuta, et Divitiacus frater in antiquum locum gratiae atque honoris sit restitutas.
6Si quid accidat Romanis, summam in spem per Hel-vetios regni obtainingi venire; imperio populi Romani non modo de regno, sed etiam de ea quam habeat gratia, desperare. 7 Reperiebat etiam in quaerendo Caesar, quod proelium equestre adversum paucis ante diebus esset factum, initium ejus fugae factum a Dum-norige atque ejus equitibus,—nam equitatui, quem auxilio Caesari Haedui miserant, Dumnorix praerat:
eorum fuga reliquum esse equatum perterritum.
19. Quibus rebus cognitis, cum ad has suspensiones certissimae res accederent,—quod per fines Sequanorum Helvetios traduxisset, quod obsides inter eos dandos curasset, quod ea omnia non modo injussu suo et civitatis, sed etiam inscientibus ipsis fecisset, quod a magistratu Haeduorum accusaretur,—satis esse causae aritrabatur, quare in eum aut ipse animadverteret, aut civitatem animadvertere juberet. 2His omnibus rebus unum repugnabat, quod Divitiaci fratris sum-mum in populum Romanum studium, summam in se voluntatem, egregiam fidem, justitiam, temperantiam cognoverat: nam ne ejus supplicio Divitiaci animum offenderet verebatur. 3 Itaque prius quam quiequam conaretur, Divitiacum ad se vocari juberet, et quotidianis interpretibus remotis, per C. Valerium Procillum, principem Galliae provinciae, familiarem suum, cui summam omnium rerum fidem habebat, cum eo colloquitur; 4 simul commonefacit quae ipso praesente in concilio Gallorum de Dumnorige sint dicta; et ostendit quae separatim quisque de eo apud se dixerit; petit atque hortatur, ut sine ejus offensione animi vel ipse de eo causa cognita statuat, vel civitatem statuere jubeat.

20. Divitiacus, multis cum lacrimis Caesarem complexus, obsecrare coepit, ne quid gravius in fratem statueret: 2 'Scire se illa esse vera, nec quemquam ex eo plus quam se doloris capere, propterea quod, cum 10 ipse gratia plurimum domi atque in reliqua Gallia, ille minimum propter adolescentiam posset, per se crevisset; quibus opibus ac nervis non solum ad minuendam gratiam, sed paene ad perniciem suam uteretur; sese tamen et amore fraterno et existimazione vulgi commoveri. 3 Quod si quid ei a Caesare gravius accidisset, cum ipse eum locum amicitiae apud eum teneret, neminem existimaturum non sua voluntate factum; qua ex re futurum, uti totius Galliae animi a se averterentur.' 4 Haec cum pluribus verbis flens a 20 Caesare peteret, Caesar ejus dextram prendit; consolatus rogat, finem orandi faciat; tanti ejus apud se gratiam esse ostendit, uti et reipublicae injuriam et suum dolorem ejus voluntati ac precibus condonet. 5 Dumnorigem ad se vocat, fratrem adhibet; quae in 25 eo reprehendat, ostendit, quae ipse intellegat, quae civitas queratur, proponit; monet ut in reliquum tempus omnes suspitiones vitet; praeterita se Divitiaco fratri condonare dicit. Dumnorigi custodes ponit, ut quae agat, quibuscum loquatur, scire possit. 6

21. Eodem die ab exploratoribus certior factus hostes sub monte consedisse milia passuum ab ipsius castris octo, qualis esset natura montis et qualis in circuitu ascensus, qui cognoscerent misit. 2 Renuntiatum est facilem esse. De tertia vigilia T. Labienum, 35 legatum pro praetore, cum duabus legionibus et iis ducibus qui iter cognoverant, summum jugum montis ascendere jubet; quid sui consilii sit ostendit. Ipse de quarta vigilia eodem itinere, quo hostes ierant, ad eos contendit, equitatumque omnem ante se mittit. 3 P. 5 Considius, qui rei militaris peritissimus habebatur, et in exercitu L. Sullae et postea in M. Crassi fuerat, cum exploratoribus praemittitur.

22. Prima luce, cum summus mons a Labieno tene-retur, ipse ab hostium castris non longius mille et quingentis passibus abesset, neque, ut postea ex capti-vis comperit, aut ipsius adventus aut Labieni cognitus esset, Considius equo admisso ad eum occurrat; 2 dicit montem, quem a Labieno occupari voluerit, ab hostibus teneri; id se a Gallicis armis atque insignibus cognovisse. Caesar suas copias in proximum collem subducit, aciem instruit. 3 Labienus, ut erat ei praecptum a Caesare, ne proelium committeret, nisi ipsius copiae prope hostium castra visae essent, ut undique uno tempore in hostes impetus fieret, monte occupato nostros exspectabat, proelioque abstinebat. 4 Multo denique die per exploratores Caesar cognovit et montem a suis teneri, et Helvetios castra movisse, et Considium, timore perterritum, quod non vidisset pro viso sibi renuntiasse. Eo die, quo consuerat intervallo, hostes sequitur, et milia passuum tria ab eorum castris castra ponit.

23. Postridie ejus diei, quod omnino biduum super-erat, cum exercitui frumentum metiri oporteret, et quod a Bibracte, oppido Haeduorum longe maximo et copiosissimo, non amplius milibus passuum xviii ab-erat, rei frumentariae prospeciendum existimavit: iter ab Helvetiis avertit, ac Bibracte ire contendit. 2 Ea res per fugitivos L. Aemilii, decurionis equitum Gallo-rum, hostibus nuntiatur. 3 Helvetiis, seu quod timore perterritos Romanos discedere a se existimarent, eo magis quod pridie, superioribus locis occupatis, proe-lium non commississent, sive eo quod re frumentaria intercludi posse confiderent, commutato consilio atque itinere converso, nostros a novissimo agmine insequi ac lacessere coeperunt.

24. Postquam id animum advertit, copias suas Caes-5sar in proximum collem subducit, equitatumque, qui sustineret hostium impetum, misit. 2Ipse interim in colle medio tripliicem aciem instruxit legionum quattuor veteranarum [ita uti supra]; sed in summo jugo duas legiones, quas in Gallia citeriore proxime conscripserat, et omnia auxilia conlocari, ac totum montem hominibus complecti, et interea sarcinas in unum locum conferri, et eum ab his qui in superiore acie constiterant muniri jussit. 3Helvetii cum omnibus suis carris securi, impedimenta in unum locum contulerunt; ipsi conferrentissima acie, rejecto nostro equitatu, phalange facta, sub primam nostram aciem successerunt.

25. Caesar primum suo, deinde omnium ex conspectu remotis equis, ut aequato omnium periculo spem fugae tolleret, cohortatus suos proelium com-20misit. Milites e loco superiore, pilis missis, facile hostium phalangem perfregere poterunt. 2Ea disjecta, gladiis destriictis in eos impetum fecerunt. Gallis magno ad pugnam erat impedimento, quod pluribus eorum scutis uno ictu pilorum transfixis et conligatis, cum 25ferrum se inflexisset, neque evellere neque sinistra impedita satis commode pugnare poterant, multi ut, diu jactato brachio, praecoptarent scutum manu emittere, et nudo corpore pugnare. 3Tandem vulneribus defessi, et pedem referre et, quod mons suberat circiter tertier mille passuum, eo se recipere coeperunt. 4Capto monte et succedentibus nostris, Boii et Tulingi, qui hominum milibus circiter xv agmen hostium claudiebant, et novissimis praesidio erant, ex itinere nostros latere aperto adgressi circumvenire; 5et id conspicati Helvetii, qui in montem sese receperant, rursus instare et proelium redintegrare coeperunt. Romani conversa signa bipartito intulerunt: prima et secunda acies, ut victis ac summotis resisteret; tertia, ut venientes sustineret.

26. Ita ancipiti proelio diu atque acriter pugnatum est. Diutius cum sustiner e nostorum impetus non possent, alteri se, ut coeperant, in montem receperunt, alteri ad impedimenta et carros suos se contulerunt.

Nam hoc toto proelio, cum ab hora septima ad vesperum pugnatum sit, aversum hostem videre nemo potuit. Ad multam noctem etiam ad impedimenta pugnatum est, propterea quod pro vallo carros objecerant, et e loco superiore in nostros venientes tela coniciabant, et nonnulli inter carros rotasque mataras ac tragulas subiciebant, nostrosque vulnerabant. Diu cum esset pugnatum, impedimentis castrisque nostri potiti sunt. Ibi Orgetorigis filia atque unus et filiiis captus est. Ex eo proelio circiter hominum milia cxxx superfuerunt, eaque tota nocte continenter ierunt: nullam partem noctis itinere intermisso, in fines Lingonum die quarto pervenerunt, cum et propter vulnera militum, et propter sepulturam occisorum, nostri triduum morati eos sequi non potuissent. Caesare ad Lingonas litteras nuntiosque misit, ne eos frumento neve alia re juvarent: qui si juvissent, se eodem loco quo Helvetios habiturum. Ipse, triduo intermisso, cum omnibus copiis eos sequi coepit.

27. Helvetii, omnium rerum inopia adducti, legatos de deditione ad eum miserunt. Qui cum eum in itinere convenissent, seque ad pedes projecissent, suppliciterque locuti flentes pacem petissent, atque eos in eo loco, quo tum essent, suum adventum exspectare jussisset, paruerunt. Eo postquam Caesar pervenit, obsides, arma, servos, qui ad eos per fugissent, poscit. Dum ea conquiritur et conferuntur, nocte intermissa, circiter hominum milia vi ejus pagi qui Verbigenus appellatur, sive timore perterriti, ne armis traditis supplicio adficerentur, sive spe salutis inducti, quod in tanta multitudine dediticiorum suam fugam aut occultari aut omnino ignorari posse existimarent, prima nocte e castris Helvetiorum egressi, ad Rhenum finesque Germanorum contenderunt.

28. Quod ubi Caesar resciit, quorum per fines iterant, his, uti conquirerent et reducerent, si sibi purgati esse vellent, imperavit: reductos in hostium numero habuit; reliquos omnes, obsidibus, armis, perfugis traditis, in deditionem accepit. 2Helvetios, Tulingos, Latobrigos in fines suos, unde erant profecti, reverti jussit; et quod, omnibus fructibus amissis, domini nihil erat quo famem tolerarent, Allobrogibus imperavit, ut iis frumenti copiam facerent; ipsos oppida vicosque, quos incenderant, restituere jussit. 3Id ea maxime ratione fecit, quod noluit eum locum, unde Helvetii discesserant, vacare, ne propter bonitatem agrorum Germani, qui trans Rhenum incolunt, e suis finibus in Helvetiorum fines transirent, et finitimi Galliae provinciae Allobrogibusque essent. 4Boios, penticibus Haeduis, quod egregia virtute erant cogniti, ut in finibus suis collocarent, concessit; quibus illi agros dederunt, quosque postea in parem juris libertatisque condicionem atque ipsi erant receperunt.

29. In castris Helvetiorum tabulae repertae sunt litteris Graecis confectae et ad Caesarem relatae, quibus in tabulis nominatim ratio confecta erat, qui numerus domo exisset eorum qui arma ferre possent, et item separatim pueri, senes mulieresque. 2Quarum omnium rerum summa erat capitum Helvetiorum milia cclxiii, Tulingorum milia xxxvi, Latobrigorum xiii, Rauracorum xiii, Boiorum xxxii; ex his qui arma ferre possent, ad milia xci. 3Summa omnium fuerunt ad milia ccclxviii. Eorum qui domum redierunt, censu habito, ut Caesar imperaverat, repertus est numerus milium c et x.
30. Bello Helvetiorum confecto, totius fere Galliae legati, principes civitatum, ad Caesarem gratulatum convenerunt: 'Intellegere sese, tametsi pro veteribus Helvetiorum injuriis populi Romani ab his poenas bello repetisset, tamen eam rem non minus ex usu terrae Galliae quam populi Romani accidisse; propterea quod eo consilio, florentissimis rebus, domos suas Helvetii reliquisset, uti toti Galliae bellum inferrent, imperioque potirentur, locumque domicilio ex magna copia deligerent, quem ex omni Gallia opportunissimum ac fructuosissimum judicassent, reliquasque civitates stipendiarias haberent.' Petierunt, uti sibi concilium totius Galliae in diem certam indicere idque Caesaris voluntate facere liceret: sese habere quasdam res, quas ex communi consensu ab eo petere vellent. Ea re permissa, diem concilio constituerunt, et jurejurando, ne quis enuntiaret, nisi quibus communi consilio mandatum esset, inter se sanxerunt.

31. Eo concilio dimisso, idem principes civitatum, qui ante fuerant, ad Caesarem reverterunt, petieruntque, uti sibi secreto in occulto de sua omniumque salute cum eo agere liceret. Ea re impetrata, sese omnes flentes Caesari ad pedes projecerunt: 'Non minus se id contendere et laborare, ne ea quae dixissent enuntiarentur, quam uti ea quae vellent impetrarent; propterea quod, si enuntiatum esset, summum in cruciatum se venturos viderent.' Locutus est pro his Divitiacus Haeduus: 'Galliae totius factiones esse duas; harum alterius principatum tenere Haeduos, alterius Arvernos. Hi cum tantopere de potentatu inter se multos annos contenderent, factum esse, uti ab Arvernis Sequanisque Germani mercede arcesse-rentur. Horum primo circiter milia xv Rhenum transisse; posteaquam agros et cultum et copias Gallorum homines feri ac barbari adamassent, traductos plures; nunc esse in Gallia ad centum et xx milium numerum.
B. G. I. 31.]  Representations of Divitiacus. 19

5 Cum his Haeduos corumque clientes semel atque iterum armis contendisse; magnam calamitatem pulsos accepisse, omnem nobilitatem, omnem senatum, omnem equitatum amisisse. 6 Quibus proeliis calamitatibusque fractos, qui et sua virtute et populi Romani hospitio atque amicitia plurimum antec in Gallia potuissent, coactos esse Sequanis obsides dare nobilissimos civitatis, et jurejurando civitatem obstringere, sese neque obsides repetitus, neque auxilium a populo Romano imploratus, neque recusatus quo minus perpetuo sub illorum dicione atque imperio essent. 7 Unum se esse ex omni civitate Haeduorum, qui adduci non potuerit ut juraret, aut liberos suos obsides dare. Ob eam rem se ex civitate profugisse, et Romam ad senatum venisse auxilium postulatum, quod solus neque jurejurando neque obsidibus teneretur. 8 Sed pejus victoribus Sequanis quam Haeduis victis accidisse, proptererea quod Ariovistus, rex Germanorum, in eorum finibus consedisset, tertiamque partem agri Sequani, qui esset optimus totius Galliae, occupavisset, et nunc de altera parte tertia Sequanos decedere juberet, proptererea quod paucis mensibus ante Harudum milia hominum xxiii ad eum venissent, quibus locus ac sedes pararentur. 9 Futurum esse paucis annis, uti omnes ex Galliae finibus pellerentur, atque omnes Germani Rhenum transirent; neque enim conferendum esse Gallicum cum Germanorum agro, neque hanc consuetudinem victus cum illa comparandam. 10 Ariovistum autem, ut semel Gallorum copias proelio vicerit, quod proelium factum sit Admagetobrigae; superbe et crudeliter imperare, obsides nobilissimi cujusque liberos poscere, et in eos omnia exempla cruciatusque edere, si qua res non ad nutum aut ad voluntatem ejus facta sit. 11 Hominem esse barbarum, iracundum, temerarium: non posse ejus imperia diutius sustinere. Nisi si quid in Caesare populoque Romano sit auxilii, omnibus Gallis idem esse faciendum quod Helvetii fecerint, ut domo emigrent, aliud domicilium alias sedes, remotas a Germanis, petant, fortunamque, quae cumque accidat, experiantur. 12 Haece si enuntiata Ariovisto sint, non dubitare, quin de omnibus obsidibus, qui apud eum sint, gravissimum supplicium sumat. Caesarem vel auctoritate sua atque exercitus, vel recenti victoria, vel nomine populi Romani, deter rere posse, ne major multitudo Germanorum Rhenum traducatur, Galliamque omnem ab Ariovisti injuria posse defendere.'

32. Hac oratione ab Divitiaco habita, omnes qui aderant magno fletu auxilium a Caesare petere coeperunt. Animadvertis Caesar unos ex omnibus Sequanos nihil earum rerum facere quas ceteri facerent, sed tristes, capite demisso, terram intueri. 2 Eius rei quae causa esset miratus, ex ipsis quaesiit. Nihil Sequani respondere, sed in eadem tristitia taciti permanere. Cum ab his saepius quaereret, neque ulla omnino vocem exprimere posset, idem Divitiacus Haeduus respondit: 3 'Hoc esse miseriorem et graviorem fortunam Sequanorum quam reliquorum, quod soli ne in occulto quidem queri neque auxilium implorare auderent; absentisque Ariovisti crudelitatem, velut si coram adesset, horrerent, propter qua quod reliquis tamen fugae facultas daretur, Sequanis vero, qui intra fines suos Ariovistum recepissent, quorum oppida omnia in potestate ejus essent, omnes cruciatus essent perferendi.'

33. His rebus cognitis, Caesar Gallorum animos verbis confirmavit, pollicitusque est sibi eam rem curae futuram; magnam se habere sper, et beneficio suo et auctoritate adductum Ariovistum finem injuris facturum. Hac oratione habita, concilium dimisit. 2 Et secundum ea multae res eum hortabantur, quare sibi eam rem cogitandum et suscipientiam putaret: imprimis, quod Haeduos, fratres consanguineosque saepenumero a senatu appellatos, in servitute atque in dicione videbat Germanorum teneri, eorumque obsides esse apud Ariovistum ac Sequanos intellegebat; quod in tanto imperio populi Romani turpissimum sibi et reipublicae esse arbitrabatur. 3 Paulatim autem Germanos consuescere Rhenum transire, et in Galliam magnam eorum multitudinem venire, populo Romano periculosum videbat; neque sibi homines feros ac barbaros temperatos existimabat, quin, cum omnem Galliam occupavisset, ut ante Cimbri Teutonique turpissimum sibi et reipublicae esse arbitrabatur.
Ipse autem Ariovistus tantos sibi spiritus, tantam arrogantiam sumpserat, ut ferendus non videretur.

34. Quamobrem placuit ei, ut ad Ariovistum legatos mitteret, qui ab eo postularent, uti aliquem locum medium utriusque conloquio deligeret: velle sese de re publica et summis utriusque rebus cum eo agere. 20
2 Ei legationi Ariovistus respondit: 'Si quid ipsi a Caesare opus esset, sese ad eum venturum fuisse; si quid ille se velit, illum ad se venire oportere. 3 Praeterea se neque sine exercitu in eas partes Galliae venire audere, quas Caesar possideret, neque exercitum sine magno commeatu atque molimento in unum locum contrahere posse. 4 Sibi autem mirum videri, quid in sua Gallia, quam bello vicisset, aut Caesari aut omnino populo Romano negotii esset.'

35. His responsis ad Caesarem relatis, iterum ad 30 eum Caesar legatos cum his mandatis mittit: 'Quoniam tanto suo populique Romani beneficio adfectus, cum in consulatu suo rex atque amicus a senatu appel-latus esset, hanc sibi populoque Romano gratiam referret, ut in conloquium venire invitatus gravaretur, 35
neque de communi re dicendum sibi et cognoscendum putaret, haec esse quae ab eo postularent: 2 primum, ne quam multitudo hominum amplius trans Rhenum in Galliam traduceret; deinde obsides, quos haberet ab Haeduis, redderet, Sequanisque permitteret, ut quos illi haberent, voluntate ejus reddere illis liceret; neve Haeduos injuria lacessaret, neve his sociisque eorum bellum inferret. 3 Si id ita fecisset, sibi populoque Romano perpetuam gratiam atque amicitiam cum eo futuram: si non impetraret, sese,—quoniam, M. Messala M. Pisone consulibus, senatus censuisset uti quicumque Galliam provinciam obtineret, quod commodo reipublicae facere posset, Haeduos ceterisque amicos populi Romani defenderet,—se Haeduorum injurias non neglecturum.'

37. Haec eodem tempore Caesari mandata referebantur, et legati ab Haeduis et a Treveris veniebant: Haedui questum, quod Harudes, qui nuper in Galliam transportati essent, fines eorum popularentur: sese ne obsidibus quidem datis pacem Ariovisti redimere potuisse; Treveri autem, pagos centum Suevorum ad ripam Rheni consedisse, qui Rhenum transire conarentur; his praeesse Nasuam et Cimerium fratres. Quibus rebus Caesar vehementer commotus, matrandum sibi existimavit, ne, si nova manus Suevorum cum veteribus copiis Ariovisti sese conjunxisset, minus facile resisti posset. Itaque, re frumentaria quam celerrime potuit comparata, magnis itineribus ad Ariovistum contendit.

38. Cum tridui viam processisset, nuntiatum est ei Ariovistum cum suis omnibus copiis ad occupandum Vesontionem, quod est oppidum maximum Sequanorum, contendere, triduique viam a suis finibus profecisse. Id ne accideret, magnopere sibi praecavendum Caesar existimabat. Namque omnium rerum, quae ad bellum usui erant, summa erat in eo oppido facultas; idque natura loci sic muniebatur, ut magnam ad ducendum bellum darem facultatem, propterea quod flumen [aldus] Dubis ut circino circumductum paene totum oppidum cingit; reliquum spatum, quod est non amplius pedum sexcentorum, qua flumen intermittit, mons continet magna altitudine, ita ut radices montis ex utraque parte ripae fluminis contingant. Hunc murus circumdatus arcem efficit, et cum oppido conjugit. Huc Caesar magnis nocturnis diurnisque itineribus contendit, occupatoque oppido, ibi praesidium conlocat.

39. Dum paucos dies ad Vesontionem rei frumentariae commeatusque causa moratur, ex percontatione nostrorum vocibusque Gallorum ac mercatorum, qui ingenti magnitudine corporum Germanos, incredibili virtute atque exercitacione in armis esse praedicabant, —saepenumero sese cum his congressos ne vultum quidem atque aciem oculorum dicebant ferre potuisse, —tantus subito timor omnem exercitum occupavit, ut non mediocriter omnium mentes animosque perturbaret. 2 Hic primum ortus est a tribunis militum, praefectis, reliquisque, qui, ex urbe amicitiae causa Caesarem secuti, non magnum in re militari usum habebant: quorum aliquis alia causa inlata, quam sibi ad proficiscendum necessarium esse diceret, petebat ut ejus voluntate discedere liceret; nonnulli pudore adducti, ut timoris suspicionem vitarent, remanebant. 3 Hi neque vultum fingere neque interdum lacrimas tenere poterant: abditi in tabernaculis aut suum fatum querebantur, aut cum familiaribus suis commune periculum miserabantur. Volgo totis castris testamenta obsignabantur. 4 Horum vocibus ac timore paulatim etiam ii qui magnum in castris usum habebant, milites centurionesque quiue equitatui praeerant, perturbabantur. Qui se ex his minus timidos existimabant, non se hostem vereri, sed angustias itineris, magnitudinem silvarum quae intercederent inter ipsos atque Ariovistum, aut rem frumentarium, ut satxis commodis supportari posset, timere dicebant. 5 Nonnulli etiam Caesari nuntiabant, cum castra moveri ac signa ferri jussisset, non fore dicto auditentes milites, neque propter timorem signa latusos.

repudiaturum.  3 Quod si furore atque amentia impulsus bellum intulisset, quid tandem vererentur? aut cur de sua virtute aut de ipsius diligentia desperarent?  4 Factum ejus hostis periculum patrum nostrorum memoria, cum, Cimbris et Teutonis a Gaio Mario pulsis, non minorem laudem exercitus quam ipse imperator meritus videbatur; factum etiam nuper in Italia servili tumultu, quos tamen aliquid usus ac disciplina, quae a nobis accepissent, sublevarent.  5 Ex quo judicari posse, quantum haberet in se boni constantia, prop- terea quod, quos aliquamdiu inermos sine causa timuissent, hos postea armatos ac victores superassent.  6 Denique hos esse eosdem, quibuscum saepenumero Helvetii congressi, non solum in suis, sed etiam in illorum finibus, plerumque superarint; qui tamen pares esse nostro exercitui non potuerint.  7 Si quos adversum proelium et fuga Gallorum commoveret, hos, si quaererent, reperire posse, diuturnitate bellii defetigatis Gallis, Ariovistum, cum multis menses castris se ac paludibus tenuisset, neque sui potestatem fecisset, desperantes jam de pugna et dispersos subito adortum, magis ratione et consilio quam virtute vicisse.  8 Cui rationi contra homines barbaros atque imperitos locus fuisset, hac ne ipsum quidem sperare nostros exercitus capi posse.  9 Qui suum timorem in rei frumentariae simulationem angustiasque itineris conferrent, facere arroganter, cum aut de officio imperatoris desperare aut praescribere viderentur.  10 Haec sibi esse curae: frumentum Sequanos, Leucos, Lingones subministrare, jamque esse in agris frumenta matura; de itinere ipsos brevi tempore judicaturos.  11 Quod non fore dicto audientes neque signa laturi dicantur, nihil se ea re commoveri: scire enim, quibuscumque exercitus dicto audiens non fuerit, aut male re gesta fortunam defuisse, aut aliquo facinore comperto avaritiam esse convictam esse convictam: 35 suam innocentiam perpetua vita, felicitatem Helvetiorum bello esse perspectam. 12 Itaque se quod ir longiorem diem conlaturus fuisset repraesentaturum et proxima nocte de quarta vigilia castra moturum, u quam primum intellegere posset, utrum apud eos pudor atque officium an timor valeret. 13 Quod si praeterere nemo sequatur, tamen se cum sola decima legione iturum, de qua non dubitaret, sibique eam praetoriam cohortem futuram.’ Huic legioni Caesar et indulserat praecipue, et propter virtutem confidebat maxime.

41. Hac oratione habita, mirum in modum conversae sunt omnium mentes, summaque alacritas et cupiditas belli gerendi innata est; princepsque decima legio per tribunos militum ei gratias egit, quod de se optimum judicium fecisset, seque esse ad bellum gerendum paratissimam confirmavit. 2 Deinde reliquae legiones cum tribunis militum et primorum ordinum centurionibus egerunt, uti Caesari satisfacere: se neque umquam dubitasse, neque timuisse, neque de summa belli suum judicium, sed imperatoris esse existimasse. 3 Eorum satisfactione accepta, et itinere exquisito per Divitiacum, quod ex aliis ei maximam fidem habebat, ut milium amplius quinquaginta circuitu locis apertis exercitum duceret, de quarta vigilia, ut dixerat, profectus est. 4 Septimo die, cum iter non intermitteret, ab exploratoribus certior factus est, Ariovisti copias a nostris milibus passuum quattuor et viginti abesse.

42. Cognito Caesaris adventu, Ariovistus legatos ad eum mittit: quod antea de conloquio postulasset, id per se fieri licere, quoniam propius accessisset, seque id sine periculo facere posse existimare. 2 Non respuit conditionem Caesar, jamque eum ad sanitatem reverti arbitrabatur, cum id, quod antea petenti denegasset, ulterop polliceretur; magnamque in spem veniebat, pro suis tantis populique Romani in eum beneficiis, cognitis suis postulatis, fore uti pertinacia desisteret.
3 Dies conloquio dictus est ex eo die quintus. Interim saepe ultro citroque cum legati inter eos mitterentur, Ariovistus postulavit, ne quem peditem ad conloquium Caesar adduceret: vereri se, ne per insidias ab eo circumveniretur; uterque cum equitatu veniret; alia ratione sese non esse venturum. 4 Caesar, quod neque conloquium interposita causa tolli volebat, neque salutem suam Gallorum equitatu committere audebat, commodissimum esse statuit, omnibus equis Gallis equitibus detractis, eo legionarios milites legionis decima, cui quam maxime confidebat, imponere, ut prae- sidium quam amicissimum, si quid opus facto esset, haberet. 5 Quod cum fieret, non in ridicule quidam ex militibus decimae legionis dixit, plus quam pollicitus esset Caesarem facere: pollicitum se in cohortis praetoriae loco decimam legionem habiturum; ad equum rescribere.

43. Planities erat magna, et in ea tumulus terrenus satis grandis. Hic locus aequo fere spatio ab castris Ariovisti et Caesaris aberat. Eo, ut erat dictum, ad conloquium venerunt. 2 Legionem Caesar, quam equis devixerat, passibus ducentis ab eo tumulo constituit. Item equites Ariovisti pari intervallo constiterunt. Ariovistus ex euis ut conloquerentur, et praeter se denos ut ad conloquium adducerent, postulavit. 3 Ubi eo ventum est, Caesar initio orationis sua senatusque in eum beneficia commemoravit, quod rex appellantus esset a senatu, quod amicus, quod munera amplissime missa; quam rem et paucis contingisse, et pro magnis hominum officiis consuesse tribui docebat; illum, cum neque aditum neque causam postulandi justam habe- ret, beneficio ac liberalitate sua ac senatus ea praemia consequutum. 4 Docebat etiam, quam veteres quamque justae causae necessitudinis ipsis cum Haeduis intercederent, quae senatus consulta, quotiens quamque honorifica, in eos facta essent, ut omni tempore totius

Galliae principatum Haeduī tenuissent, prius etiam quam nostram amicitiam appetissent. 5 Populi Romani hanc esse consuetudinem, ut socios atque amicos non modo sui nihil deperdere, sed gratia, dignitate, honore auctores velit esse: quod vero ad amicitiam populi Romani adtolissent, id iis eripi quis pati posset?' 6 Postulavit deinde eadem quae legatis in mandatis dederat: ne aut Haeduīs aut eorum sociis bellum inferret; obsides redderet; si nullam partem Germanorum domum remittere posset, at ne quos amplius Rhenum transire pateretur.

44. Ariovistus ad postulata Caesaris paucā respondit; de suis virtutibus multa praedicavit: 'Transisse Rhenum sese non sua sponte, sed rogatum et arcessitum a Gallis; non sine magna spe magnisque praemiis domum propinquosque reliquisse; sedes habere in Gallia ab ipsis concessas, obsides ipsorum voluntate datos; stipendium capere jure belli, quod victores victis imponere consuerint. 2 Non sese Gallis, sed Gallos sibi bellum intulisse; omnes Galliae civitates ad se oppugnandum venisse, ac contra se castra habuisse; eas omnes copias a se uno proelio pulsas ac superatas esse. 3 Si iterum experiri velint, se iterum paratum esse desiderare; si pace uti velint, iniquum esse de stipendio recusare, quod sua voluntate ad id tempus peperdentur. Amicitiam populi Romani sibi ornamentum et praesidium, non detrimental esse opertere, idque se ea spe petisse. 4 Si per populum Romanum stipendium remittatur, et dediticii subtrahatur, non minus libenter sese recusaturum populi Romani amicitiam quam adpetierit. 5 Quod multitudinem Germanorum in Galliam traducat, id se sui muniendi, non Galliae impugnandae causa facere: ejus rei testimonium esse, quod nisi rogatus non vene-rit, et quod bellum non intulerit, sed defenderit. 6 Se prius in Galliam venisse quam populum Romanum.
Nunquam ante hoc tempus exercitum populi Romani Galliae provinciae finibus egressum. Quid sibi vellet? cur in suas possessiones veniret? Provinciam suam hanc esse Galliam, sicut illam nostram. Ut ipsi concedi non oporteret, si in nostros fines impetum faceret, sic item nos esse iniquos, quod in suo jure se interpellaremus. Quod fratres Haeduos appellatos diceret, non se tam barbarum neque tam imperitum esse rerum, ut non sciret neque bello Allobrogum proximo Haeduos Romanis auxilium tulisse, neque ipsos, in his contentionibus quas Haeduí secum et cum Sequanis habuissent, auxilio populi Romani usos esse. Debere se suspicari simulata Caesarem amicitia, quod exercitum in Gallia habeat, sui opprimendi causa habere. Qui nisi decedat, atque exercitum deducat ex his regionibus, sese illum non pro amico, sed hoste habiturum. Quod si eum interfecerit, multis sese nobilibus principibusque populi Romani gratum esse facturum: id se ab ipsis per eorum nuntios compertum habere, quorum omnium gratiam atque amicitiam ejus morte redimere posset. Quod si discessisset, et liberam possessionem Galliae sibi tradisset, magno se illum praemio remuneraturum, et quaecumque bella geri vellet, sineullo ejus labore et periculo confecturum.'

45. Multa ab Caesare in eam sententiam dicta sunt, quare negotio desistere non posset; et 'Neque suam neque populi Romani consuetudinem pati, uti optime merentes socios desereret, neque se judicare Galliam potius esse Ariovisti quam populi Romani. Bello superatos esse Arvernos et Rutenos ab Q. Fabio Maximo, quibus populus Romanus ignovisset, neque in provinciam redegisset, neque stipendium imposuisset. Quod si antiquissimum quale tempus spectari oporteret, populi Romani justissimum esse in Gallia imperium; si judicium senatus observari opor-teret, liberam debere esse Galliam, quam bello victam suis legibus uti voluisset.'
46. Dum haec in conloquio geruntur, Caesari nun-tiatum est equites Ariovisti propius tumulum accedere, et ad nostros adequitare, lapides telaque in nostros conicere. 2Caesar loquendi finem facit, seque ad suos recipit, suisque imperavit, ne quod omnino telum in hostes reicerent. 3Nam etsi sine ullo periculo legionis delectae cum equitatu proelium fore videbat, tamen committendum non putabat, ut pulsis hostibus dici posset eos ab se per fidem in conloquio circumven-tos. 4Posteaquam in vulgus militum elatum est, qua adrogantia in conloquio Ariovistus usus omni Gallia Romanis interdixisset, impetumque in nostros ejus equites fecissent, eaque res conloquium ut diremisset, multo major alacritas studiumque pugnandi majus exercitui injectum est.
47. Biduo post Ariovistus ad Caesarem legatos mittit: 'Velle se de his rebus, quae inter eos agi coeptae neque perfectae essent, agere cum eo: uti aut iterum conloquio diem constitueret, aut, si id minus vellet, e suis legatis aliquem ad se mitteret.' 2Conloquendi Caesari causa visa non est; et eo magis, quod pridie ejus diei Germani retineri non poterant, quin in nostros tela conicerent. Legatum e suis sese magno cum periculo ad eum missurum, et hominibus feris objecturum existimabat. 3Commodissimum visum est Gaium Valerium Procillum, C. Valeri Caburi filium, summa virtute et humanitate adulescentem,—cujus pater a Gaio Valerio Flacco civitate donatus erat, et propter fidem et propter linguæ Gallicae scientiam, qua multa jam Ariovistus longinquà consuetudine utebatur, et quod in eo peccandi Germanis causa non esset,—ad eum mittere, et M. Metium, qui hospitio Ariovisti utebatur. 4His mandavit, ut quae diceret Ariovistus cognoscerent, et ad se referrent. Quos cum apud se in castris Ariovistus conspexisset, exercitu suo praesente conelamavit: 'Quid ad se venirent? an speculandi causa?' Conantes dicere prohibuit, et in catenas conjecit.

48. Eodem die castra promovit, et milibus passuum 5 sex a Caesaris castris sub Monte consedit. Postridie ejus diei praeter castra Caesaris suas copias traduxit, et milibus passuum duobus ultra eum castra fecit, eo consilio, uti frumento commeatuque, qui ex Sequanis et Haeduis supportaretur, Caesarem intercluderet. 10

4 Equitum milia erant sex, totidem numero pedites velocissimi ac fortissimi, quos ex omni copia singuli singulos suae salutis causa delegerant: cum his in proeliis versabantur. 5 Ad eos se equites recipiebant: 20 hi, si quid erat durius, concurrebant; si qui, graviore vulnere accepto, equo deciderat, circumsistebant; si quo erat longius prodeundum, aut celerius recipiendum, tanta eratorum exercitatione celeritas, ut jubis equorum sublevati cursum adaequarent.

49. Ubi eum castris se tenere Caesar intellexit, ne diutius commeatu prohiberetur, ultra eum locum, quo in loco Germani consederant, circiter passus sexcentos ab iis, castris idoneum locum delegit, acieque triplici instructa ad eum locum venit. 2 Primam et secundam 30 aciem in armis esse, tertiam castra munire jussit. Hic locus ab hoste circiter passus sexcentos, uti dictum est, aberat. Eo circiter hominum numero sedecim milia expedita cum omni equitatu Ariovistus misit, quae copiae nostros perterrerent et munitione prohiberent. 3 Nihilo secius Caesar, ut ante constituerat, duas acies hostem propulsare, tertiam opus perficere jussit. Munitis castris, duas ibi legiones reliquit et partem auxiliorum, quattuor reliquas in castra majora reduxit.

5 50. Proximo die, instituto suo, Caesar e castris utrisque copias suas eduxit, paulumque a majoribus castris progressus, aciem instruxit, hostibus pugnandi potestatem fecit. 2 Ubi ne tum quidem eos prodire intellexit, circiter meridiem exercitum in castra reduxit. Tum demum Ariovistus partem suarum copiarum, quae castra minora oppugnaret, misit. 3 Acriter utrimque usque ad vesperum pugnatum est. Solis occasu, suas copias Ariovistus, multis et inlatis et acceptis vulneribus, in castra reduxit. 4 Cum ex captivis quae reret Caesar, quamobrem Ariovistus proelio non decertaret, hanc reperiebat causam, quod apud Germanos ea consuetudo esset, ut matresfamiliae eorum sortibus et vaticinationibus declararent, utrum proelium committi ex usu esset necne; eas ita dicere: 'Non esse fas Germanos superare, si ante novam lunam proelio contendissent.'

51. Postridie ejus diei Caesar praesidium utrisque castris quod satis esse visum est reliquit, omnes alarios in conspectu hostium pro castris minoribus constituit, quod minus multitudine militum legionariorum pro hostium numero valebat, ut ad speciem alariis uteretur; ipse, triplici instructa acie, usque ad castra hostium accessit. 2 Tum demum necessario Germani suas copias castris eduxerunt, generatimque constituerunt paribus intervallis, Harudes, Marcomannos, Triboces, Vangiones, Nemetes, Sedusios, Suevos, omnemque aciem suam rhedes et carris circumdederunt, ne qua spes in fuga relinqueretur. 3 Eo mulieres imposuerunt, quae in proelium proficiscentes passis manibus flentes implorabant, ne se in servitutem Romanis traderent.
B. G. I. 53. ] Desperate Battle with the Germans. 33

52. Caesar singulis legionibus singulos legatos et quaestorem praefecit, uti eos testes suae quisque virtutis haberet; ipse a dextro cornu, quod eam partem minime firmam hostium esse animadverterat, proelium commisit. 2 Ita nostri acriter in hostes, signo dato, 5 impetum fecerunt, ita-que hostes repente celeriterque procurrerunt, ut spatium pila in hostes coniciendi non daretur. Rejectis pilis, cominus gladiis pugnatum est. 3 At Germani celeriter, ex consuetudine sua phalange facta, impetus gladiatorum exceperunt. Re-10 perti sunt complures nostri milites, qui in phalangas insilirent, et scuta manibus revellerent, et desuper vulnerarent. 4 Cum hostium acies a sinistro cornu pulsa atque in fugam conversa esset, a dextro cornu vehementer multitudine suorum nostram aciem preme-15 bant. 5 Id cum animadvertisset P. Crassus adulescens, qui equitatur praecerat, quod expeditior erat quam ii qui inter aciem versabantur, tertiam aciem laborantis nostri subsidio misit.

53. Ita proelium restitutum est, atque omnes hostes 20 terga verterunt, neque prius fugere destiterunt, quam ad flumen Rhenum, milia passuum ex eo loco circiter quinquaginta pervenerunt. 2 Ibi perpauci aut viribus confisi tranare contenderunt, aut lintribus inventis sibi salutem pepererunt. In his fuit Ariovistus, qui navi-25 culam deligatam ad ripam nactus ea profugit: reliquos omnes equitatu consecuti nostri interfecerunt. 3 Duae fuerunt Ariovisti uxores, una Sueva natione, quam domo secum duxerat, altera Norica, regis Voctionis soror, quam in Gallia duxerat a fratre missam: utrac-30 que in ea fuga perierunt. Duae filiae harum altera occisa, altera capta est. 4 Gaius Valerius Procillus, cum a custodibus in fuga trinis catenis vinctus trahetur, in ipsum Caesarem, hostes equitatu perseuentem, incidit. 5 Quae quidem res Caesari non minorem quam ipsa victoria voluptatem adtulit, quod hominem honestissimum provinciae Galliae, suum familiarem et hospitem, ereptum e manibus hostium, sibi restitutum videbat; neque ejus calamitate de tanta voluptate et gratulatione quicquam fortuna deminuerat. 6 Is se præsente de se ter sortibus consultum dicebat, utrum igni statim necaretur, an in aliud tempus reservaretur: sortium beneficio se esse incolumem. Item M. Metius repertus et ad eum reductus est.

54. Hoc proelio trans Rhenum nuntiato, Suevi, qui ad ripas Rheni venerant, domum reverti coeperunt; quos Ubii, qui proximi Rhenum incolunt, perterritos [senserunt;] insecuti, magnum ex his numerum occiderunt. 2 Caesar una aestate duobus maximis bellis confectis, maturius paulo quam tempus anni postulbat, in hiberna in Sequanos exercitum deduxit; hibernis Labienum praeposuit; ipse in citeriorem Galliam ad conventus agendos profectus est.

BOOK II.

THE BELGIAN CONFEDERACY.—A league of the Belgian tribes is reported to Cæsar, who moves rapidly to the north, and accepts the submission of the Remi (1-3). Account of the Belgians and their tribes. Cæsar advances to the Axona, relieves the siege of Bibrax, the chief place of the Remi, and establishes a camp, strongly fortified (4-8). The Belgians attempt to cross the Axona, but are driven back, and pursued with great slaughter (9-11). Surrender of the Suessiones and Bellovaci: report of the Nervii, who wait to give battle across the Sabis (12-16). Position of the two forces: the Nervii attack with great fury, and throw the Romans into confusion, which is partly overcome by their admirable discipline (17-20). After various fortune, the Nervii assault the camp, which is saved, after a desperate struggle, by the personal address and courage of Cæsar (21-22). Labienus comes up with the tenth legion, and the tide is turned; the Nervii are crushed and almost exterminated (26-28). The Aduatuci: after sundry skirmishes they sue for peace; but renewing the fight after their surrender, are subdued, and upwards of 50,000 are sold as slaves (29-33). Meanwhile Crassus secures the submission of the coast population of the Veneti, etc.: Gaul appears wholly reduced to peace, and embassies are sent to Cæsar even from beyond the Rhine (34, 35).

CUM esset Caesar in citeriore Gallia [in hibernis], ita uti supra demonstravimus, crebri ad eum rumores afferebantur, litterisque item Labieni certior fiebat, omnes Belgas (quam tertiam esse Galliae partem dixeramus), contra populum Romanum conjurare, obsidesque inter se dare. 2 Conjurandi has esse causas: primum quod vererentur ne, omni pacata Gallia, ad eos exercitus noster adduceretur; deinde quod ab nonnullis Gallis solicitarentur,—partim qui, ut Germanos diutius in Gallia versari noluerant, ita populi Romani exercitum hiemare atque inveterascere in Gallia moleste ferebant; 3 partim qui, mobilitate et levitate animi, novis imperiis studebant; ab nonnullis etiam, quod in Gallia a potentioribus atque iis qui ad conducendos homines facultates habebant, vulgo regna occupabantur, qui minus facile eam rem imperio nostro consequi poterant.

3. Eo cum de improviso celeriusque omni opinione venisset, Remi, qui proximi Galliae ex Belgis sunt, ad eum legatos Iccium et Andocumborium, primos civitatis, miserunt, qui dicerent: 'Se suaque omnia in fide atque in potestatem populi Romani permittere, neque se cum Belgis reliquis consensisse, neque contra populum Romanum conjurasse, paratos que esse et obsides dare et imperata facere et oppidis recipere et frumento ceterisque rebus juvare; reliquos omnes Belgas in armis esse, Germanosque, qui cis Rhenum incolant, sese cum his conjunxisse, tantumque esse eorum omnium furorem, ut ne Suessiones quidem, fratres consanguineosque suos, qui eodem jure et isdem legibus utantur, unum imperium unumque magistratum cum ipsis habeant, deterrere potuerint quin cum his consentirent.'

4. Cum ab his quaseret, quae civitates quantaeque in armis essent, et quid in bello possent, sic reperiebat: plerosque Belgas esse ortos ab Germanis, Rhenumque antiquitus traductos propter loci fertilitatem ibi consedisse, Gallosque qui ea loca incolerent expulisse, solosque esse qui, patrum nostrorum memoria, omni Gallia vexata, Teutonos Cimbrosque intra fines suos ingredi prohibuerint; qua ex re fieri uti, earum rerum memoria, magnam sibi auctoritatem magnosque spiritus in re militari sumerent. De numero eorum omnia se habere explorata Remi dicebant, propterea quod propinquitatibus adfinitatibusque conjuncti, quantam quisque multitudinem in communi Belgarum concilio ad id bellum pollicitus sit cognoverint. Plurimum inter eos Bellovacos et virtute et auctoritate et hominum numero valere: hos posse conficere armata milia centum, pollicitos ex eo numero electa sexaginta, totiusque belli imperium sibi postulare. Suessiones suos esse finitimos: latissimos feracissimosque agros possidere. Apud eos fuisse regem nostra etiam memoria Divitiacum, totius Galliae potentissimum, qui cum magnae partis harum regionum, tum etiam Britanniae imperium obtinuerit: nunc esse regem Galbam; ad hunc propter justitiam prudentiamque suam totius belli summam omnium voluntate deferri: oppida habere numero xii, polliceri milia armata quinquaginta; totidem Nervios, qui maxime feri inter ipsos habeantur, longissimeque absint; quindecim milia Atrebates, Ambianos decem milia, Morinos xxv milia, Menapios vii milia; Caletos x milia; Velocasses et Veromanduos totidem; Aduatucos decem et novem milia; Condrusos, Eburones, Caeroesos, Paemanos, qui uno nomine Germani appellantur, arbitrari ad xl milia.

5. Caesar Remos cohortatus liberaliterque oratone prosecutus, omnem senatum ad se convenire, principumque liberos obsides ad se adduci jussit. Quae omnia ab his diligenter ad diem facta sunt. Ipse Divitiacum Haeduum magnopere cohortatus, docet quanto opere rei publicae communisque salutis intersit manus hostium distineri, ne cum tanta multitudine uno tempore confingendum sit. 3 Id fieri posse, si suas copias Haedui in fines Bellovacorum introduxerint, et eorum agros populari coeperint. His mandatis, eum ab se dimittit. 4 Postquam omnes Belgarum copias in unum locum coactas ad se venire vidit, neque jam longe abesse ab iis quos miserat exploratoribus et ab Remis cognovit, flumen Axonam, quod est in extremis Remorum finibus, exercitum traducere maturavit, atque ibi castra posuit. 5 Quae res et latus unum castrorum ripis fluminis muniebat, et post eum quae essent tuta ab hostibus reddebat; et, commeatus ab Remis reliquisque civitatibus, ut sine periculo ad eum portari posset efficiebat. 6 In eo flumine pons erat. Ibi praesidium ponit, et in altera parte fluminis Q. Titurium Sabinum legatum cum sex cohortibus reliquit; castra in altitudinem pedum xii vallo fossaque duodeviginti pedum munire jubet.

6. Ab his castris oppidum Remorum nomine Bibrax aberat milia passuum octo. Id ex itinere magno impetu Belgae oppugnare coeperunt. Aegre eo die sustentatum est. 2 Gallorum eadem atque Belgarum oppugnatio est haec. Ubi circumjecta multitudine hominum totis moenibus undique in murum lapides jaci coepti sunt, murusque defensoribus nudatus est, testudine facta, portas succedunt murumque subruunt. 3 Quod tum facile fiebat. Nam cum tanta multitudine lapides ac tela conicerent, in muro consistendi potestas erat nulli. 4 Cum finem oppugnandi nox fecisset, Iccius Remus, summa nobilitate et gratia inter suos, qui tum oppido praefuerat, unus ex iis qui legati de pace ad Caesarem venerant, nuntium ad eum mittit: nisi subsidium sibi submittatur, sese diutius sustinere non posse.

7. Eo de media nocte Caesar, isdem ducibus usus qui nuntii ab Iccio venerant, Numidas et Cretas sagittarios et funditores Baleares subsidio oppidanis mittit; quorum adventu et Remis cum spe defensionis studium propugnandi accessit, et hostibus eadem de causa spes potiundi oppidi discessit. Itaque, paulisper apud oppidum morati, agrosque Remorum depopulati, omnibus vicis aedificiisque quos adire poterant incensis, ad castra Caesaris omnibus copiis contenderunt, et ab milibus passuum minus duobus castra posuerunt; quae castra, ut fumo atque ignibus significabatur, amplius milibus passuum octo in latitudinem patebant.

8. Caesar primo, et propter multitudinem hostium et propter eximiam opinionem virtutis, proelio superse- dere statuit; cotidie tamen, equestribus proeliis, quid hostis virtute posset et quid nostri auderent periclita batur. "Ubi nostros non esse inferiores intellexit, loco pro castris ad aciem instruendam natura opportuno atque idoneo,—quod is collis, ubi castra posita erant, paululum ex planicie editus, tantum adversus in latitudinem patebat quantum loci acies instructa occupare poterat, atque ex utraque parte lateris dejectus habebat, et in frontem leniter fastigatus paulatim ad planiciem redibat,—ab utroque latere ejus collis transversam fossam obduxit circiter passuum quadringentorum et ad extremas fossas castella constituit, ibique tor menta conlocavit, ne, cum aciem instruxisset, hostes (quod tantum multitudine poterant) ab lateribus pugnantes suos circumvenire possent. "Hoc facto, duabus legionibus quas proxime conscripserat in castris relicritis, ut, si quo opus esset, subsidio duci possent, reliquas sex legiones pro castris in acie constituit. Hostes item suas copias ex castris eductas instruxerant.

9. Palus erat non magna inter nostrum atque hostium exercitum. Hanc si nostri transirent, hostes exspectabunt; nostri autem, si ab illis initium transeundi fieret, ut impeditos adgrederentur, parati in armis erant. 2 Interim proelio equestri inter duas acies contendebatur. Ubi neutri transeundi initium faciunt, secundiore equitum proelio nostris, Caesar suos in castra reduxit. Hostes protinus ex eo loco ad flumen Axonam contenderunt, quod esse post nostra castra demonstratum est. 3 Ibi vadis repertis, partem sua-rum copiarum traducere conati sunt, eo consilio, ut, si possent, castellum, cui praerat Q. Titurius legatus, expugnarent, pontemque interscinderent; si minus potuissent, agros Remorum popularentur, qui magno nobis usui ad bellum gerendum erant, commeutuque nostros prohiberent.

10. Caesar, certior factus ab Titurio, omnem equi-tatum et levis armaturae Numidas, funditores sagit-tariosque pontem traducit, atque ad eos contendit. 2 Acriter in eo loco pugnatum est. Hostes impeditos nostri in flumine adgressi, magnum corum numerum occiderunt: per eorum corpora reliquos, audacissime transire conantes, multitudine telorum repulerunt; 20 primos, qui transierant, equitatu circumventos interfecerunt. 3 Hostes ubi et de expugnando oppido et de flumine transeundo spem se fefellerse intellexerunt, neque nostros in locum iniquiorem progredi pugnandi causa viderunt, atque ipsos res frumentaria deficere coepit, concilio convocato, constituerunt optimum esse domum suam quemque reverti, et, quorum in fines primum Romani exercitum introduxissent, ad eos defendendos undique convenirent, ut potius in suis quam in alienis finibus dctarent, et domesticis 30 copiis rei frumentariae uterentur. 4 Ad eam senten-tiam cum reliquis causis haec quoque ratio eos deduxit, quod Divitiacum atque Haeduos finibus Bello-vacorum adpropinquare cognoverant. His persuaderi ut diutius morarentur, neque suis auxilium ferrent, 35 non poterat.

B. G. II. 12.]

Approach to Noviodunum.

12. Postridie ejus diei Caesar, priusquam se hostes ex terrore ac fuga recipierent, in fines Suessionum, qui proximi Remis erant, exercitum duxit, et magno itinere [confecto] ad oppidum Noviodunum contendit. Id ex itinere oppugnare conatus, quod vacuum ab defensoribus esse audiebat, propter latitudinem fossae murique altitudinem, paucis defendentibus, expugnare non potuit. 3 Castris munitis, vineas agere quaeque ad oppugnandum usu erant comparare coepit. Interim omnis ex fuga Suessionum multitufo in oppidum proxima nocte convenit. *Celeriter vineis ad oppidum actis, aggere jacto turribusque constitutis, magnitudine operum, quae neque viderant ante Galli neque audie-rant, et celeritate Romanorum permoti, legatos ad Caesar de deditione mittunt, et petentibus Remis, ut conservarentur impetrant.

13. Caesar obsidibus acceptis primis civitatis, atque ipsius Galbae regis duobus filiis, armisque omnibus ex oppido traditis, in deditionem Suessiones acceptit, exercitumque in Bellovacos ducit. 2 Qui cum se suaque omnia in oppidum Bratuspantium contulissent, atque ab eo oppido Caesar cum exercitu circiter milia passu quinque abesset, omnes maiores natu, ex oppido egressi, manus ad Caesar tendere, et voce significare coeperunt sese in ejus fidem ac potestatem venire, neque contra populum Romanum armis contendere. 3 Item, cum ad oppidum accessisset, castraque ibi poneret, pueri mulieresque ex muro passis manibus suo more pacem ab Romanis petierunt.

14. Pro his Divitiacus—nam post discessum Belgarum, dimissis Haeduorum copiis, ad eum revertetur—facit verba: 'Bellovacos omni tempore in fide atque amicitia civitatis Haeduae fuisse: 2 impulsos a suis principibus, qui dicerent Haedus, ab Caesare in servitutem redactos, omnes indignitates contumeliasque perferre, et ab Haeduis defecisse, et populo Romano bellum intulisse. 3 Qui ejus consilii principes fuissent quod intellegerent quantam calamitatem civitati intullissent, in Britanniam profugisse. 4 Petere non solum Bellovacos, sed etiam pro his Haeduos, ut sua clementia ac mansuetudine in eos utatur. 5 Quod si fecerit, Haeduorum auctoritatem apud omnes Belgas amplificaturum, quorum auxiliis atque opibus, si qua bella inciderint, sustentare consuerint.'

15. Caesar honoris Divitiaci atque Haeduorum causa sese eos in fidem recepturum et conservaturum dixit; quod erat civitas magna inter Belgas auctoritate, atque hominum multitudine praestabat, sexcentos obsides poposcit. 2 His traditis, omnibusque armis ex oppido conlatis, ab eo loco in fines Ambianorum pervenit, qui se suaque omnia sine mora dediderunt. Eorum fines Nervii attingebant; quorum de natura moribusque Caesar cum quaseret, sic reperiebat: 3 Nullum aditum esse ad eos mercatoribus; nihil pati vini reliquamque rerum inferri, quod iis rebus relanguescere animos [eorum] et remitti virtutem existimarent: 4 esse homines feros magnaeque virtutis; increpitare atque incusare reliquos Belgas, qui se populo Romano dedissent patriamque virtutem projecissent; confirmare sese neque legatos missuros, neque ullam condicionem pacis accepturos.

16. Cum per eorum fines triduum iter fecisset, inveniebat ex captivis Sabim flumen ab castris suis non amplius milia passuum x abesse: 2 trans id flumen omnes Nervios consedisse, adventumque ibi Romano- rum exspectare, una cum Atrebatis et Veromanduis, finitimis suis (nam his utrisque persuaserant, uti eandem belli fortunam experirentur); 3 exspectari etiam ab his Aduatucorum copias atque esse in itinere; mulieres quique per aetatem ad pugnam inutiles viderentur in eum locum conjecisse, quo propter paludes exercitui aditus non esset.

17. His rebus cognitis, exploratores centurionesque praemittit, qui locum idoneum castris diligant. Cum ex dediticiis Belgis reliquisque Gallis complures Caesar secuti una iter facerent, quidam ex his, ut postea ex captivis cognitum est, eorum dierum consuetudine itineris nostri exercitus perspecta, nocte ad Nervios pervenerunt; 2 atque his demonstrarunt inter singulas legiones impedimentorum magnum numerum intercedere, neque esse quicquam negotii, cum prima legio in castra venisset, reliquaeque legiones magnum spatium abessent, hanc sub sarcinis adoriri; qua pulsa impedimentisque direptis, futurum ut reliquae contra consistere non auderent. 3 Adjuvabat etiam eorum consilium qui rem deferebant, quod Nervii antiquitus, cum equitatu nihil possent (neque enim ad hoc tempus ei rei student, sed, quicquid possunt, pedestribus valent copiis), quo facilius finitimorum equitatum, si praedandi causa ad eos venissent, impedirent, teneris arboribus incisis atque inflexis, crebrisque in latitudinem ramis enatis, et rubis sentibusque interjectis, effecerant ut instar muri hae sepes munimenta praebenter, quo non modo non intrari, sed ne perspici quidem posset. His rebus cum iter agminis nostri impediretur, non omittendum sibi consilium Nervii existimaverunt.

18. Loci natura erat haec, quem locum nostri castris delegerant. Collis ab summo aequaliter declivis ad flumen Sabim, quod supra nominavimus, vergebat. Ab eo flumine pari adclivitate collis nascebatur adversus huic et contrarius, passus circiter ducentos infimus apertus, ab superiore parte silvestris, ut non facile introrsus perspici posset. Intra eas silvas hostes in occulto sese continebant; in aperto loco secundum flumen paucae stationes equitum videbantur. Fluminis erat altitudo pedum circiter trium.

19. Caesar equitatu praemisso subsequebatur omnibus copiis; sed ratio ordoque agminis aliter se habebat ac Belgae ad Nervios detulerant. Nam quod ad hostis adpropinquabat, consuetudine sua Caesar sex legiones expeditas ducebat; post eas totius exercitus impedimenta conlocarat; inde duae legiones, quae proxume conscriptae erant, totum agmen claudebant, praesidioque impedimentis erant. Equites nostri, cum funditoribus sagittariisque flumen transgressi, cum hostium equitatu proelium commiserunt. Cum se illi identidem in silvas ad suos reciperent, ac rursus ex silva in nostros impetum facerent, neque nostri longius quam quem ad finem porrecta loca aperta pertinebant cedentes inequi auderent, interim legiones sex, quae primae venerant, opere dimenso, castra munire coeperunt. 5 Ubi prima impedimenta nostri exercitus ab iis qui in silvis abditi latebant visa sunt, quod tempus inter eos committendi proelii convenerat, ut intra silvas aciem ordinesque constituerant atque ipsi sese confirmauerant, subito omnibus copiis provolaverunt, impetumque in nostros equites fecerunt. 6 His facile pulsis ac proturbatis, incredibili celeritate ad flumen decucurrerunt, ut paene uno tempore et ad silvas et in flumine et jam in manibus nostri hostes viderentur. Eadem autem celeritate adverso colle ad nostra castra, atque eos qui in opere occupati erant, contenderunt.

20. Caesari omnia uno tempore erant agenda: vexillum proponendum (quod erat insigne, cum ad arma concurri oporteret), signum tuba dandum, ab opere revocandi milites, qui paulo longius aggeris petendi causa processerant arcessendi, acies instruenda, milites cohortandi, signum dandum. Quarum rerum magnam partem temporis brevitas et successus hostium impediebat. 2 His difficultatibus duae res erant sub sipido,—scientia atque usus militum, quod superioribus proeliis exercitati, quid fieri oporteret, non minus commode ipsi sibi praescribere quam ab aliiis doceri poterant; et quod ab opere singulisque legionibus singulos legatos Caesar discedere nisi munitis castris vetuerat. 8 Hi, propter propinquitatem et celeritatem hostium, nihil jam Caesaris imperium exspectabat, sed per se quae videbantur administrabant.

21. Caesar, necessariis rebus imperatis, ad cohortandos milites quam in partem fors obtulit decucurrit, et ad legionem decumam devenit. 2 Milites non longiore oratione cohortatus, quam uti suae pristinae virtutis memoriam retinerent, neu perturbarentur animo, hostiumque impetum fortiter sustinerent, quod non longius hostes aberant quam quo telum adici posset, proelii committendi signum dedit. 3 Atque in alteram partem item cohortandi causa profectus, pugnantibus occurrit. Temporis tanta fuit exiguitas, hostiumque tam paratus ad dimicandum animus, ut non modo ad insignia adcommodanda, sed etiam ad galeas induendas scutisque tegimenta detrudenda tempus defuerit. 4 Quam quisque ab opere in partem casu devenit, quaeque prima signa conspexit, ad haec constitit, ne in quaeque quisquis pugnandi tempus dimitteret.

10 22. Instructo exercitu, magis ut loci natura dejectusque collis et necessitas temporis, quam ut rei militaris ratio atque ordo postulabat, cum diversis legionibus aliae alia in parte hostibus resisterent, sepibusque densissimis (ut ante demonstravimus) interjectis prospectus impediretur, neque certa subsidia conlocari, neque quid in quaeque parte opus esset provideri, neque ab uno omnia imperia administrari poterant. Itaque, in tanta rerum iniquitate, fortunae quoque eventus vari jugitae sequabantur.

20 23. Legionis nonae et decimae milites, ut in sinistra parte acie constiterant, pilis emissis, cursu ac lassitudine examinatos vulneribusque confectos Atrebates—nam his ea pars obvenerat—celeriter ex loco superiori in flumen compulerunt, et transire conientes insecuti, gladiis magnam partem eorum impeditam interfecerunt. 2 Ipsi transire flumen non dubitaverunt, et in locum iniquum progressi, rursus resistentes hostes redintegrato proelio in fugam conjecerunt. 3 Item alia in parte diversae duae legiones, undecima et octava, profligatis Veromanduis, quibuscum erant congressi, ex loco superiore in ipsis fluminis ripis proeliabantur. 4 At totis fere a fronte et ab sinistra parte nudatis castris, quom in dextro cornu legio duodecima et non magno ab ea intervallo septima constitisset, omnes Nervii confertissimo agmine, duce Boduognato, qui summam imperii tenebat, ad eum locum contenderunt; quorum pars aperto latere legiones circumvenire, pars summum castrorum locum petere coepit.

24. Eodem tempore equites nostri levisque armaturae pedites, qui cum iis una fuerant, quos primo hostium impetu pulsos dixeram, cum se in castra recipere, adversis hostibus occurrebant, ac rursus aliam in partem fugam petebant; et calones, qui ab decumana porta ac summo jugo collis nostros victores flumen transisse conspexerant, praedandi causa egressi, cum respexissent et hostes in nostris castris versari vidissent, praecipites fugae sese mandabant. Simul eorum, qui cum impedimentis veniebant, clamor fremitusque oriebat, alique aliam in partem perterriti ferebantur. Quibus omnibus rebus permoti equites Treveri, quorum inter Gallos virtutis opinio est singularis, qui auxilii causa ab civitate ad Caesarem missi venerant, cum multitudine hostium castra completer, legiones premi et paene circumventas teneri, calones, equites, funditores, Numidas diversos dissipatosque in omnes partes fugam vidisset, desperatis nostris rebus, domum contenderunt; Romanos pulsos superatosque, castris impedimentisque eorum hostes potitos, civitati renuntiaverunt.

25. Caesar ab decimae legionis cohortatione ad dextrum cornu profectus, ubi suos urgeri, signisque in unum locum conlatis, duodecimae legionis confertos milites sibi ipsos ad pugnam esse impedimento vidit, quartae cohortis omnibus centurionibus occisis, signiferoque interfecit, signo amisse, reliquarum cohortium omnibus fere centurionibus aut vulneratis aut occisis, in his primipilo P. Sextio Baculo, fortissimo viro, multis gravibusque vulneribus confecto, ut jam se sustinere non posset; reliquis esse tardiores, et nonnullos ab novissimis deserto proelio excedere ac tela vitare, hostis neque a fronte ex inferiore loco subeuntes intermittere, et ab utroque latere instare, et rem esse in angusto vidit, neque ullum esse subsidium quod summitti posset, — 4 scuto ab novissimis uni militi detracto, quod ipse eo sine scuto venerat, in primam aciem processit; centurionibusque nominatim appellatis, reliquis cohortatus, milites signa inferre et manipulos laxare jussit, quo facilius gladiiis uti possent. 5 Cujus adventu spe inlata militibus, ac redintegrato animo, cum pro se quisque in conspectu imperatoris etiam in extremis suis rebus operam navare cuperet, paulum hostium impetus tardatus est.
26. Caesar, cum septimam legionem, quae juxta constiterat, item urgeri ab hoste vidisset, tribunos militum monuit, ut paulatim sese legiones conjungerent, et conversa signa in hostes inferrent. 2 Quo facto, cum alius alii subsidium ferret, neque timerent ne aversi ab hoste circumvenirentur, audacios resistere ac fortius pugnare coeperunt. 3 Interim milites legionum duarum, quae in novissimo agmine impedinent, proelio nuntiato, cursu incitato, in summo colle ab hostibus conspiciebantur; 4 et T. Labienus, castris hostium potitus, et ex loco superiore quae res in nostris castris gererentur conspicatus, decimam legionem subsidio nostris misit. 5 Qui, cum ex equitum et calonum fuga, quo in loco res esset, quantoque in periculo et castra et legiones et imperator versaretur, cognovissent, nihil ad celeritatem sibi reliqui fecerunt.
27. Horum adventu tanta rerum commutatio est facta, ut nostri, etiam qui vulneribus confecti procubuissent, scutis innixi proelium redintegrarent; tum calones, perterritos hostes conspicati, etiam inermes armatis occurrerent; equites vero, ut turpitudinem fugae virtute delerent, omnibus in locis pugnant, quo se legionariis militibus praeferrent. 2 At hostes etiam in extrema spe salutis tantam virtutem praestiterunt, ut, cum primi eorum cecidissent, proximi jacentibus insisterent, atque ex eorum corporibus pugnarent; 3 his dejectis, et coacervatis cadaveribus, qui superessent ut ex tumulo tela in nostros conicerent, et pila intercepta remitterent: ut non nequiquam tantae virtutis homines judicari deberet ausos esse transire latissimum flumen, ascendere altissimas ripas, subire iniquissimum locum; quae facilia ex difficillimis animi magnitudo redegerat.

28. Hoc proelio facto, et prope ad internecionem gente ac nomine Nerviorum redacto, majores natu, quos una cum pueris multieribusque in aestuaria ac paludes conjectos dixeramus, hac pugna nuntiata, cum victoribus nihil impeditum, victis nihil tutum arbitrarentur, omnium qui supererant consensu, legatos ad Caesarem miserunt, seque ei dediderunt; 2 et in commemoranda civitatis calamitate, ex sexcentis ad tres senatores, ex hominum milibus LX vix ad quingentos, qui arma ferre possent, sese redactos esse dixerunt. 3 Quos Caesar, ut in miseros ac supplices usus misericordia videretur, diligentissime conservavit, suisque finibus atque oppidis uti jussit, et finitimis imperavit, ut ab injuria et maleficio se suosque prohiberent.

29. Aduatuci, de quibus supra scripsimus, cum omnis auxilio Nerviis venirent, hac pugna nuntiata, ex itinere domum reverterunt; cunctis oppidis castellisque desertis, sua omnia in unum oppidum egregie natura munitum contulerunt. 2 Quod cum ex omnibus in circitu partibus altissimas rupes despectusque haberet, una ex parte leniter adclivis aditus in latitudinem non amplius ducentorum pedum relinquebatur; quem locum duplici altissimo muro munieran: tum magni ponderis saxes et praecutas trabes in muro conlocabant. 3 Ipsi erant ex Cimbris Teutonisque prognati, qui, cum iter in provinciam nostram atque Italianam facerent, iis impedimentis, quae secum agere ac portare non poterant, citra flumen Rhenum depositis, custodiam ex suis ac praesidium sex milia hominum una reliquerunt. 4 Hi post eorum obitum multos annos a finitimis exagitati, cum alias bellum inferrent, alias inlatum defenderent, consensu eorum omnium pace facta, hunc sibi domicilio locum delegerunt.

30. Ac, primo adventu exercitus nostri, crebras ex oppido excursiones faciebant, parvulisque proeliis cum nostris contendebant; postea vallo pedum xii in circuitu xv milium crebrisque castellis circummuniti, oppido sese continebant. 2 Ubi vineis actis, aggere exstructo, turrim procul constitui viderunt, primum inridere ex muro, atque increpitare vocibus, quod tanta machinatio ab tanto spatio instrueretur: 3 quibusnam manibus aut quibus viribus praeeratim homines tantulae staturae — nam plerumque hominibus Gallis prae magnitudine corporum suorum brevitatis nostra contemptui est — tanti oneris turrim in muro sese conlocare confiderent?

31. Ubi vero moveri et adpropinquare moenibus viderunt, nova atque inusitata specie commoti, legatos ad Caesarem de pace miserunt, qui ad hunc modum locuti: 2 Non existimare Romanos sine ope divina bellum gerere, qui tantae altitudinis machinationes tanta celeritate promovere possent; se suaque omnia eorum potestati permittere’ dixerunt. 3 ‘Unum petere ac deprecari: si forte pro sua clementia ac mansuetudine, quam ipsi ab aliis audirent, statuisset Aduatucos esse conservandos, ne se armis despoliaret. 4 Sibi omnes fere finitimos esse inimicos ac suae virtuti invidere; a quibus se defendere traditis armis non possent. 5 Sibi praestare, si in eum casum deduceren- tur, quamvis fortunam a populo Romano pati, quam ab his per cruciatum interfici, inter quos dominari consucessent.’ 32. Ad haec Caesar respondit: 'Se magis consuetudine sua quam merito corum civitatem conservaturn, si prius quam murum aries attigisset se dedissent: sed deditionis nullam esse condicionem nisi armis traditis. Se id quod in Nerviis fecisset factum, finitimisque imperaturum, ne quam dediticiis populi Romani injuriam inferrent.' Re nuntiata ad suos, quae imperarentur facere dixerunt. Armorum magna multitudine de muro in fossam, quae erat ante oppidum, jacta, sic ut prope summan muri aggerisque altitudinem acervi armorum adaequarent, et tamen circiter parte tertia, ut postea perspectum est, celata atque in oppido retenta, portis patefactis, eo die pace sunt usi.

33. Sub vesperum Caesar portas claudi militesque ex oppido exire jussit, ne quam noctu oppidani ab militibus injuriam acciperent. Illi, ante inito (ut intellectum est) consilio, quod deditione facta nostros praesidia deducturos aut denique indigentius servatuos crediderant,—partim cum iis quae retinuerant et celaverant armis, partim scutis ex cortice factis aut viminibus intextis, quae subito, ut temporis exiguitas postulabat, pellibus induxerant,—tertia vigilia, qua minime arduus ad nostras munitiones ascensus videbatur, omnibus copiis repentina ex oppido eruptionem fecerunt. Celeriter, ut ante Caesar imperarat, ignibus significatione facta, ex proximis castellis eo concursum est, pugnatumque ab hostibus ita acriter est, ut a viris fortibus in extrema spe salutis, iniquo loco, contra eos qui ex vallo turribusque tela jacerent, nari debuit, cum in una virtute omnis spes salutis consisteter. Occisis ad hominum milibus quattuor, reliqui in oppidum rejecti sunt. Postridie ejus diei refractis portis, cum jam defenderet nemo, atque in tromissis militibus nostris, sectionem ejus oppidi universam Caesar vendidit. Ab iis qui emerant, capitum numerus ad eum relatus est milium quinquaginta trium.

34. Eodem tempore a P. Crasso, quem cum legione una miserat ad Venetos, Unellos, Osismos, Curiosolitas, Esuvios, Aulercos, Redones, quae sunt maritimae civitates Oceanumque attingunt, certior factus est omnes eas civitates in dicionem potestatemque populi Romani esse redactas.

35. His rebus gestis, omni Gallia pacata, tanta hujus belli ad barbaros opinio perlata est, uti ab iis nationibus, quae trans Rhenum incolerent, mitterentur legati ad Cæsarem, qui se obsides daturas, imperata facturas pollicerentur. 2 Quas legationes Cæsar, quod in Italian Illyricumque properabat, inita proxima aes-tate ad se reverti jussit. 3 Ipse in Carnutes, Andes Turonesque, quae civitates propinquae his locis erant, ubi bellum gesserat, legionibus in hibernacula deductis, in Italian profectus est. 4 Ob easque res ex litteris Cæsaris dies quindecim supplicatio decreta est, quod ante id tempus accidit nulli.
BOOK III.

ALPINE CAMPAIGN.—A garrison, under the command of Servius Galba, had been set to guard the passes of the Upper Rhone, but is threatened by a formidable force, and brought into extreme danger (1-3). After sustaining an attack of some six hours, the garrison make a sudden sally, drive back the enemy, destroy the neighboring villages, and retire to the lower country, south of Lake Geneva, for the winter (4-6).

NAVAL CAMPAIGN.—The sea-faring tribes of Brittany form a strong league, under lead of the Veneti, and demand back their hostages from Crassus (7, 8). Cæsar prepares a fleet upon the Loire; the enemy fortify themselves on the coast. Labienus is sent to guard the north, and Crassus to the south; and Brutus is put in command of the Roman fleet (9-11). Situation of the Venetian strongholds; description of the fleets (12, 13). Engagement of the fleets: the enemies' sailyards are cut away, and their ships dispersed; they surrender, their leaders are slain, and the rest sold as slaves (14-16). Meanwhile Sabinus, who is sent among the Unelli, on the Channel, a little further north, is attacked by them, but drives them back with great slaughter, and compels their surrender (17-19).

SOUTHERN GAUL.—Crassus, in Aquitania, after some skirmishing, is threatened by a strong league, relying chiefly on the soldurii; but attacks them in their camp, and secures the conquest of the whole region (20-27). Caesar, meanwhile, proceeds against the Morini, &c., along the coast of Flanders; and, as they retire to their marshes, falls back to winter quarters near the mouth of the Seine (28, 29).

CUM in Italian proficisceretur Caesar, Servium Galbam, cum legione duodecima et parte equitatus, in Nantuatis, Veragros Sedunosque misit, qui ab finibus Allobrogum et lacu Lemanno et flumine Rho-dano ad summas Alpes pertinent. 2 Causa mittendi fuit, quod iter per Alpes, quo magno cum periculo magnisque cum portorijis mercatores ire consuerant, patefieri volebat. Huic permisit, si opus esse arbitraretur, uti in his locis legionem hiemandi causa conlocarent. 3 Galba, secundis aliquot proeliis factis, castellisque compluribus eorum expugnatis, missis ad eum undique legatis, obsidibusque datis et pace facta, constituit cohortes duas in Nantuatibus conlocare, et ipsa cum reliquis ejus legionis cohortibus in vico Veragrorum, qui appellatur Octodurus, hiemare; 4 qui vicus, positus in valle, non magna adjecta planicie, altissimis montibus undique continetur. 5 Cum hic in duas partes flumine divideretur, alteram partem ejus vici Gallis ad hiemandum concessit, alteram vacuum ab his relictam cohortibus adtribuit. Eum locum vallo fossaque munivit.

2. Cum dies hibernorum complures transissent, frumentumque eo comportari jussisset, subito per exploratores certior factus est ex ea parte vici, quam Gallis concesserat, omnes noctu discessisse, montesque, qui impenderent, a maxima multitudine Sedunorum et Veragrorum teneri. 2 Id aliquot de causis acciderat, ut subito Galli bellion perrovandique opprimendae consilium caperent: primum, quod legionem—neque cam plenissimam, detractis cohortibus duabus et compluribus singulatim, qui commenatus petendi causa missi erant—propter paucitatem despiciebant; 3 tum etiam quod propter iniquitatam loci, cum ipsi ex montibus in vallem decurrerent et tela conicerent, ne primum quidem posse impetum suum sustineri existimabant. 4 Accedebat, quod suos ab se liberos abstractos obsidium nomine dolebant, et Romanos non solum itinerum causa, sed etiam perpetuae possessionis culmina Alpium occupare conari, et ea loca finitimae provinciae ad jun gere sibi persuasum habebant.

3. His nuntiis acceptis, Galba, cum neque opus hibernorum munitionesque plene essent perfectae, neque de frumento reliquoque commenatu satis esset provisum, quod deditione facta obsidibusque acceptis nihil de bello timendum existimaverat, consilio celeriter convocato, sententias exquirere coepit. 2 Quo in consilio, cum tantum repentini periculi praeter opinionem accidisset, ac jam omnia fere superiora loca multitudine armatorum completa conspicerentur, neque subsidio veniri neque commeatus supportari interclusis itineribus possent, 3 prope jam desperata salute, nonnullae hujusmodi sententiae dicebantur, ut impeditamentis relictis, eruptione facta, isdem itineribus quibus eo pervenissent, ad salutem contenderent. 4 Majori tamen parti placuit, hoc reservato ad extremum consilio, interim rei eventum experiri, et castra defendere.

4. Brevi spatio interjecto, vix ut iis rebus quas constituissent conlocandis atque administrandis tempus daretur, hostes ex omnibus partibus signo dato decurrere, lapides gaesaque in vallum conicere. 2 Nostri primo integris viribus fortiter repugnare, neque ullam frustra telum ex loco superiore mittere, ut quaeque pars castrorum nudata defensoribus premi videbatur, 20 eo occurrere et auxilium ferre; sed hoc superari, quod diuturnitate pugnae hostes defessi proelio excedebant, alii integris viribus succedebant: 3 quorum rerum a nostris propter paucitatem fieri nihil poterat, ac non modo defesso ex pugna excedendi, sed ne saucio qui dem ejus loci, ubi constiterat, relinquendi ac sui recipiendi facultas dabatur.

5. Cum jam amplius horis sex continenter pugnaretur, ac non solum vires sed etiam tela nostros deficerent, atque hostes acrius instarent, languidioribusque nostris vallum scindere et fossas complere coepissent, resque esset jam ad extremum perducta casum, 2 P. Sextius Baculus, primi pili centurio, quem Nervico proelio compluribus confectum vulneribus diximus, et item Gaius Volusenus, tribunus militum, vir et consilii magni et virtutis, ad Galbam adcurrunt, atque unam esse spem salutis docent, si eruptione facta extremum auxilium experientur. 3 Itaque, convocatis centurionibus, celeriter milites certiores facit, paulisper intermitterent proelium, ac tantummodo tela missa exciperent seque ex labore reficerent; post, dato signo, ex castris erumperent, atque omnem spem salutis in virtute ponerent.

6. Quod jussi sunt faciunt, ac subito omnibus portis eruptione facta, neque cognoscendi quid fieret, neque sui colligendi hostibus facultatem relinquunt. 2 Ita commutata fortuna, eos qui in spem potiundorum castrorum venerant undique circumventos interficiunt; et ex hominum milibus amplius triginta, quem numerum barbarorum ad castra venisse constabat, plus tertia parte interflecta, reliquos perterritos in fugam coniciunt, ac ne in locis quidem superioribus consistere patiuntur. 3 Sic omnibus hostium copiis fusis, armisque exutis, se in castra munitionesque suas recipiunt. 4 Quo proelio facto, quod saepius fortunam temptare Galba nolebat, atque alio se in hiberna consilio venisse meminerat, aliis occurrisset rebus viderat, maxime frumenti commeatusque inopia permutos, postero die, omnibus ejus vici aediticiis incensis, in provinciam reverti contendit, ac nullo hoste prohibente aut iter demorante, incolamem legionem in Nantuatis, inde in Allobroges perduxit, ibique hiemavit.

7. His rebus gestis, cum omnibus de causis Caesar pacatam Galliam existimaret, superatis Belgis, expulsis Germanis, victis in Alpibus Sedunis, atque ita inita hieme in Illyricum profectus esset, quod eas quoque nationes adire et regiones cognoscere volebat, subitum bellum in Gallia coörtum est. 2 Ejus belli haec fuit causa. P. Crassus adulescens cum legione septima proximus mare Oceanum in Andibus hiemarat. 3 Is, quod in his locis inopia frumenti erat, praefectos tribunosque militum complures in finitimas civitates

8. Hujus est civitatis longe amplissima auctoritas omnis orae maritimae regionum earum, quod et naves habent Veneti plurimas, quibus in Britanniam navigare consuerunt, et scientia atque usu nauticarum rerum reliquos antecedunt, et in magno impetu maris atque aperto paucis portibus interjectis, quos tenent ipsi, omnes fere, qui eo mari uti consuerunt, habent vectigales. Ab his fit initium retinendi Silii atque Velanii, quod per eos suos se obsides, quos Crasso dedissent, recipieraturos existimabant. Horum auctoritate finitimi adducti (ut sunt Gallorum subita et repentina consilia), eadem de causa Trebium Terrasidiumque retinent; et celeriter missis legatis, per suos principes inter se conjurant, nihil nisi communi consilio acturos, eundemque omnis fortunae exitum esse latus; reliquasque civitates sollicitant, ut in ea libertate quam a majoribus acceperant permanere, quam Romanorum servitutem perferre mallent. Omnia ora maritima celeriter ad suam sententiam perducta, communem legationem ad P. Crassum mittunt, si velit suos recipere, obsides sibi remittat.

9. Quibus de rebus Caesar ab Crasso certior factus, quod ipse aberat longius, naves interim longas aedificari in flumine Ligere, quod influit in Oceanum, remiges ex provincia institui, nautas gubernatoresque comparari jubet. His rebus celeriter administratis, ipse, cum primum per anni tempus potuit, ad exercitu contendit. Veneti reliquaeque item civitates, cognito Caesaris adventu [certiores facti], simul quod quantum in se facinus admississent intellegebant, legatos —quod nomen ad omnes nationes sanctum inviolatumque semper fuisse —retentos ab se et in vincla conjec-tos, pro magnitudine periculi bellum parare, et maxime ea quae ad usum navium pertinent providere instituunt, hoc majore spe, quod multum natura loci confidebant. Pedestria esse itinera concisa aestuariis, navigatio-nem impeditam propter inscientiam locorum paucita-temque portuum sciebant, neque nostros exercitus propter frumenti inopiam diutius apud se morari posse confidebant: ac jam ut omnia contra opinionem acci-derent, tamen se plurimum navibus posse, Romanos neque ullam facultatem habere navium, neque eorum locorum ubi bellum gesturi essent vada, portus, insulas novisse; ac longe aliam esse navigationem in concluso mari atque in vastissimo atque apertissimo Oceano perspiciebant. His initis consiliis, oppida muniunt, frumenta ex agris in oppida comportant, naves in Venetiam, ubi Caesarem primum esse bellum gestu- rum constatbat, quam plurimas possunt, cogunt. Socios sibi ad id bellum Osismos, Lexovios, Namnetes, Ambiliatos, Morinos, Diablintres, Menapios adsci-scunt; auxilia ex Britannia, quae contra eas regiones posita est, arcessunt.

10. Erant hae difficultates belli gerendi, quas supra ostendimus, sed multa Caesarem tamen ad id bellum incitabant: injuriae retentorum equitum Romanorum, rebellio facta post deditioinem, defectio datis obsidibus, tot civitatum conjuratio; imprimis ne, hac parte ne-glecta, reliquae nationes sibi idem licere arbitrarentur. Itaque cum intellexeret omnes fere Gallos novis rebus studere, et ad bellum mobiliter celeriterque excitari, omnes autem homines natura libertati studere et con-dicionem servitutis odisse, priusquam plures civitates conspirarent, partiendum sibi ac latius distribuendum exercitum putavit.

11. Itaque T. Labienum legatum in Treveros, qui proximi flumini Rheno sunt, cum equitatu mittit. Huic mandat Remos reliquosque Belgas adeat, atque in officio contineat; Germanosque, qui auxilio a Belgis arcessit dicebantur, si per vim navibus flumen transire conentur, prohibeat. 2 P. Crassum, cum cohortibus legionariis duodecim et magno numero equitatus, in Aquitaniam proficisci jubeat, ne ex his nationibus auxilia in Galliam mittantur, ac tantae nationes conjungantur. 3 Q. Titurius Sabinum legatum cum legionibus tribus in Unellos, Curiosolites Lexoviosque mittit, qui eam manum distinendum curet. 4 Decimum Brutum adulescentem classi Gallicisque navibus, quas ex Pictonibus et Santonis reliquisque pacatis regionibus convenire jussit, praeficit, et, cum primum posset, in Venetos proficisci jubeat. Ipse eo pedestribus copiis contendit.

12. Erant ejusmodi fere situs oppidorum, ut, posita in extremis lingulis promunturiisque, neque pedibus aditum haberent, cum ex alto se aestus incitavisset (quod [bis] accidit semper horarum xii spatio), neque navibus, quod rursus minuente aestu naves in vadis adfictarentur. 2 Ita utraque re oppidorum oppugnatio impediabatur; ac si quando — magnitudine operis forte superati, extruso mari aggere ac molibus, atque his oppidi moenibus adaequatis — suis fortunis desperare coeperant, magno numero navium adpulso, cujus rei summam facultatem habeant, sua deportabant omnia, seque in proxima oppida recipiebant: ibi se rursus isdem opportunitatibus loci defendebant. 3 Haec eo facilius magnam partem aestatis faciebant, quod nostrae naves tempestatibus detinebantur, summaque erat — vasto atque aperto mari, magnis aestibus, raris ac prope nullis portibus — difficultas navigandi.

13. Namque ipsorum naves ad hunc modum factae armataeque erant: carinae aliquanto planiores quam nostrarum navium, quo facilius vada ac decessum aestus excipere possent; 2 prorae admodum erectae, atque item puppes ad magnitudinem fluctuum tempestatum adcommodatae; naves totae factae ex robore ad quamvis vim et contumeliam perferendam; transtra pedalibus in altitudinem trabibus confixa clavis ferreis digitis pollicis crassitudine; 3 ancorae pro funibus ferreis catenis revinctae; pelles pro velis alutaeque tenuiter confectae, hae sive propter lini inopiam atque ejus usus inscientiam, sive eo (quod est magis verisimile) quod tantas tempestates Oceani tantosque impetus ventorum sustineri ac tanta onera navium regi velis non satis commodo posse arbitrabantur. 4 Cum his navibus nostrae classi ejusmodi congressus erat, ut una celeritate et pulsu remorum praestaret; reliqua pro loci natura, pro vi tempestatum, illis essent aptiora et accommodatoria. 5 Neque enim his nostrae rostro nocere poterant—tanta in iis erat firmitudo—neque propter altitudinem facile telum adiciebatur, et eadem de causa minus commodo copulis continebantur. 6 Accedebat ut, cum saevire ventus coepisset et se vento dedissent, et tempestatem ferrent facilius, et in vadis consisterent tutius, et ab aestu relictae nihil saxa et cautes timerent; quarum rerum omnium nostris navi-bus casus erat extimescendus.

14. Compluribus expugnatis oppidis, Caesar, ubi intellixit frustra tantum laborem sumi, neque hostium fugam captis oppidis reprimi neque iis noceri posse, statuit exspectandam classem. 2 Quae ubi convenit ac primum ab hostibus visa est, circiter ccxx naves eorum, paratissimae atque omni genere armorum ornatissimae, profectae ex portu, nostris adversae constiterunt; neque satis Bruto, qui classi praeerat, vel tribunis militum centurionibusque, quibus singulae naves erant adtributae, constabat quid agerent, aut quam rationem pugnae insisterent. 3 Rostro enim noceri non posse cognoverant; turribus autem excita-tis, tamen has altitudo puppium ex barbaris navibus superabat; ut neque ex inferiori loco satis commodo tela adici possent, et missa ab Gallis gravius accide-
Ent. 4 Una erat magno usu res praeparata a nostris, —falces praecucutae insertae adfixaeque longiurii, non absimili forma muralium falcium. 5 His cum funes, qui antennas ad malos destinabant, comprehensi adductique erant, navigio remis incitato praerumpaban- tur. 6 Quibus abscessis antennae necessario concidebant; ut, cum omnis Gallicis navibus spes in velis armamentisque consisteret, his ereptis, omnis usus navium uno tempore eriperetur. 7 Reliquum erat certamen positum in virtute, qua nostri milites facile superabat, atque eo magis, quod in conspectu Cae- saris atque omnis exercitus res gerebatur, ut nullum paulo fortius factum latere posset; omnes enim colles ac loca superiiora, unde erat propinquus despectus in mare, ab exercitu tenebantur.

15. Disjectis (ut diximus) antennis, cum singulas binae ac ternae naves circumsteterant, milites summa vi transcenderé in hostium naves contendebant. 2 Quod postquam barbari fieri animadverterunt, expugnatis compluribus navibus, cum ei rei nullum reperiretur auxilium, fuga salutem petere contenderunt. 3 Ac jam, conversis in eam partem navibus quo ventus ferebat, tanta subito malacia ac tranquillitas exstitit, ut se ex loco commovere non possent. 4 Quae quidem res ad negotium conficiendum maxime fuit opportuna: nam singulas nostri consegat expugnaverunt, ut perpaucæ ex omni numero noctis interventu ad terram pervenerint, cum ab hora fere quarta usque ad solis occasum pugnaretur.

16. Quo proelio bellum Venetorum totiusque orae maritimae confectum est. Nam cum omnis juventus, omnes etiam gravioris aetatis, in quibus aliquid consilii aut dignitatis fuit, eo convenerant, tum navium quod ubique fuerat unum in locum coëgerant; quibus amissis, reliqui neque quo se reciperebant, neque quem ad modum oppida defenderent habebant. Itaque se Suaque omnia Caesar dediderunt. 3 In quos eo gravius Caesar vindicandum statuit, quo diligentius in reliquum tempus a barbaris jus legatorum conservaret. Itaque, omni senatu necato, reliquos sub corona vendidit.

17. Dum haec in Venetis geruntur, Q. Titurius Sabinus, cum iis copiis quas a Caesare acceperat, in fines Unellorum pervenit. His praerat Viridovix, ac summam imperii tenebat earum omnium civitatum quae defecerant, ex quibus exercitum magnasque copias coegerat; 2 atque his paucis diebus Aulerci, Eburovices, Lexoviique, senatu suo interfecto, quod auctores belli esse nolabant, portas clauaserunt, seque cum Viridovice conjunxerunt; magnaque praeterea multitudine undique ex Gallia perditorum hominum latronumque convenerant, quos spes praedandi studiumque bellandi ab agricultura et cotidiano labore revocabat. 3 Sabinus idoneo omnibus rebus loco castris sese tenebat, cum Viridovix contra eum duum milium spatio consedisset, cotidieque productis copiis pugnandi potestatem faceret; ut jam non solum hostibus in contemptionem Sabinus veniret, sed etiam nostorum militum vocibus nonnihil carperetur; tantamque opinionem timoris praebuit, ut jam ad vallum castrorum hostes accedere auderent. 4 Id ea de causa faciebat, quod cum tanta multitudine hostium, praesertim eo absente qui summam imperii teneret, nisi aequo loco aut opportunitate aliqua data, legato dimicandum non existimabat.

18. Hac confirmata opinione timoris, idoneum quendam hominem et callidum delegit, Gallum, ex iis quos auxilii causa secum habebat. Huic magnis praemiis pollicitationibusque persuadet, uti ad hostes transeat, et quid fieri velit edocet. 2 Qui ubi pro perfuga ad eos venit, timorem Romanorum proponit; quibus angustiis ipse Caesar a Venetis prematur docet; neque longius abesse quin proxima nocte Sabinus clam ex castris exercitum educat, et ad Caesarem auxilii ferendi causa proficiscatur.

3 Quod ubi auditum est, conclamant omnes occasionem negotii bene gerendi amittendam non esse, ad castra iri oportere.

4 Multae res ad hoc consilium Gallos hortabantur: superiorum dierum Sabinis cunctatio, perfugae confirmatio, inopia cibariorum, cui rei parum diligentem ab iis erat provisum, spes Venetici belli, et quod fere liberenter homines id quod volunt credunt.

5 His rebus adducti, non prius Viridovicem reliquosque duces ex concilio dimittunt, quam ab his sit concessum, arma uti capiant et ad castra contendant.

6 Qua re concessa, laeti ut explorata victoria, sarmenitis virgultisque collectis, quibus fossas Romanorum compleant, ad castra pergunt.

15 Locus erat castrorum editus, et paulatim ab imo adclivis circiter passus mille. Huc magno cursu contenderunt, ut quam minimum spatii ad se colligendos armandosque Romanis daretur, examinatiquae pervernerunt.

2 Sabinus, suos hortatus, cupientibus signum dat. Impeditis hostibus propter ea quae ferebant onera, subito duabus portis eruptionem fieri jubet.

3 Factum est opportunitate loci, hostium inscientia ac defetigatione, virtute militum et superiorum pugnarum exercitatione, ut ne unum quidem nostrorum impetum ferrent, ac statim terga verterent.

4 Quos impeditos integris viribus milites nostri consecuti, magnum numerum eorum occiderunt; reliquos equites consectati paucos, qui ex fuga evaserant, reliquerunt.

5 Sic uno tempore et de navali pugna Sabinus et de Sabini victoria Caesar certior factus est; civitatesque omnes se statim Titurio dediderunt.

6 Nam ut ad bella suscipienda Gallorum alacer ac promptus est animus, sic mollis ac minime resistens ad calamitates perferendas mens eorum est.

20. Eodem fere tempore P. Crassus cum in Aquita-niam pervenisset,—quae pars, ut ante dictum est, et regionum latitudine et multitudine hominum ex tertia parte Galliae est aestimanda,—cum intellexeret in iis locis sibi bellum gerendum, ubi paucis ante annis L. Valerius Praeconinus legatus exercitu pulso interfectus esset, atque unde L. Mallius proconsul impedimentis amissis profugisset, non mediocrem sibi diligentiam adhibendam intellegebat. 2 Itaque re frumentaria pro visa, auxiliis equitatuque comparato, multis præterea viris fortibus Tolosa et Narbone (quae sunt civitates Galliae provinciae finitimae his regionibus) nominatim evocatis, in Sontiatum fines exercitum introduxit. 3 Cujus adventu cognito, Sontiates magnis copiis coactis equitatuque, quo plurimum valebant, in itinere agmen nostrum adorti, primum equestre proelium commiserunt; deinde equitatu suo pulso, atquesequentibus nostris, subito pedestres copias, quas in convalle in insidiis conlocaverant, ostenderunt. Hi nostros disjectos adorti, proelium renovarunt.

21. Pugnatum est diu atque acriter, cum Sontiates, superioribus victoriis freti, in sua virtute totius Aquitaniae salutem positam putarent; nostri autem quid sine imperatore et sine reliquis legionibus adulescentulo duce efficere possent, perspici cuperent: tandem conlecti vulneribus hostes terga vertere. 2 Quorum magno numero interfecit, Crassus ex itinere oppidum Sontiatum oppugnare coepit. Quibus fortiter resistentibus, vineas turresque egit. 3 Illi, alias eruptione temptata, alias cuniculis ad aggerem vineasque actis (cujus rei sunt longe peritissimi Aquitani, propterea quod multis locis apud eos aerariae † secturaeque sunt), ubi diligentia nostrorum nihil his rebus profici posse intellexerunt, legatos ad Crassum mittunt, seque in deditionem ut recipiat petunt. Qua re impetrata, arma tradere jussi, faciunt.

22. Atque in ea re omnium nostrorum intentis animis, alia ex parte oppidi Adiatunnus, qui summam imperii tenebat, cum sexcentis devotis, quos illi soldu-rios appellant, — 2 quorum haec est condicio, uti omnibus in vita commodis una cum iis fruantur quorum se amicitiae dediderint; si quid his per vim accidat, aut eundem casum una ferant, aut sibi mortem consciscant; neque adhuc hominum memoria repertus est quisquam, qui eo interfecit, cujus se amicitiae devovisset, mori recusaret, — 3 cum his Adiatunnus, eruptionem facere conatus, clamore ab ea parte munitionis 10 sublato, cum ad arma milites concurrissent vehementterque ibi pugnatum esset, repulsus in oppidum, tamen uti eadem deditionis condicione uteretur ab Crasso impetravit.

23. Armis obsidibusque acceptis, Crassus in fines 15 Vocatium et Tarusatium proiectus est. Tum vero barbari commoti, quod oppidum et natura loci et manu munitum paucis diebus, quibus eo ventum erat, expug-natum cognoverant, legatos quoqueversum dimittere, conjurare, obsides inter se dare, copias parare coepe-runt. 2 Mittuntur etiam ad eas civitates legati, quae sunt citerioris Hispaniae finitimae Aquitaniae: inde auxilia ducesque arcessuntur; quorum adventu, magna cum auctoritate et magna cum hominum multitudine bellum gerere conantur. 3 Duces vero ii deliguntur, qui una cum Q. Sertorio omnes annos fuerant, summamque scientiam rei militaris habere existima-bantur. Hi consuetudine populi Romani loca capere, castra munire, commetibus nostros intercludere instituunt. 4 Quod ubi Crassus animadvertit, — suas 30 copias propter exiguitatem non facile diduci, hostem et vagari et vias obsidere et castris satis praesidii relinquere, ob eam causam minus commode frumenttum commetumque sibi supportari, in dies hostium numerum augeri, — non cunctandum existimavit quin 35 pugna decertaret. 5 Hac re ad consilium delata, ubi

omnes idem sentire intellexit, posterum diem pugnae constituit.

24. Prima luce, productis omnibus copiis, duplici acie instituta, auxiliis in medium aciem conjectis, quid hostes consilii caperent exspectabat. 2 Illi, etsi propter multitudinem et veterem belli gloriam paucitatemque nostrorum se tuto dimicaturos existimabant, tamen tutius esse arbitrabantur, obsessis viis, commeatu intercluso, sine ullo vulnere victoria potiri; et, si propter inopiam rei frumentariae Romani sese recipere coepissent, impeditos in agmine et sub sarcinis infirmiore animo adoriri cogitabant. Hoc consilio probato, ab ducibus productis Romanorum copiis, sese castris tenebant. 3 Hac re perspecta, Crassus, cum sua cunctatione atque opinione timoris hostes nostros milites alacriores ad pugnandum effecissent, atque omnium voces audirentur, exspectari diutius non oportere quin ad castra iretur, cohortatus suos, omnibus cupientibus, ad hostium castra contendit.

25. Ibi cum alii fossas complerent, alii multis telis conjectis defensores vallo munitionibusque depellerent, auxiliaresque (quibus ad pugnam non multum Crassus confidebat) lapidibus telisque subministrandis et ad aggerem cespitibus comportandis speciem atque opinem pugnantium praebarent; 2 cum item ab hostibus constanter ac non timide pugnaretur, telaque ex loco superiore missa non frustra acciderent, equites circum-itis hostium castris Crasso renuntiaverunt, non eadem esse diligentia ab decumana porta castra munita, facileque aditum habere.

26. Crassus, equitum praefectos cohortatus ut magnis praemiis pollicitationibusque suos excitarent, quid fieri velit ostendit. 2 Illi, ut erat imperatum, educit iis cohortibus quae praesidio castris relictae intritae ab labore erant, et longiore itinere circumductis, ne ex hostium castris conspici possent, omnium oculis mentibusque ad pugnam intentis, celeriter ad eas quas diximus munitiones pervenerunt, atque his prorutis, prius in hostium castris constiterunt quam plane ab his videri, aut quid rei gereretur cognosci posset. 3 Tum vero, clamore ab ea parte audito, nostri redintegratis viribus, quod plerumque in spe victoriae acciderere consuevit, acrius impugnare coeperunt. 4 Hostes undique circumventi, desperatis omnibus rebus, se per munitiones deicere et fuga salutem petere intenderunt. 5 Quos equitatus apertissimis campis consectatus, ex milium quinquaginta numero, quae ex Aquitania Cantabrisque convenisse constabat, vix quarta parte relictà, multa nocte se in castra recipit.

27. Hac audita pugna, maxima pars Aquitaniae sese Crasso dedidit, obsidesque ultro misit; quo in numero fuerunt Tarbelli, Bigerriones, Ptianii, Vocates, Tarusates, Elusates, Gates, Ausci, Garumni, Sibuzates, Cocosates: paucae ultimae nationes, anni tempore confisae, quod hiems suberat, hoc facere neglexerunt.

28. Eodem fere tempore Caesar, etsi prope exacta jam aestas erat, tamen quod, omni Gallia pacata, Mori Menapiique supererant qui in armis essent, neque ad eum unquam legatos de pace misissent, arbitratus id bellum celeriter confici posse, eo exercitum adduxit; qui longe alia ratione ac reliqui Galli bellum gerere coeperunt. 2 Nam quod intellegebant maximas nationes, quae proelio contendissent, pulsas superatasque esse, continentesque silvas ac paludes habebant, eo se suaque omnia contulerunt. 3 Ad quarum initium silvarum cum Caesar pervenisset, castraque munire instituisset, neque hostis interim visus esset, dispersis in opere nostris, subito ex omnibus partibus silvae evolaverunt, et in nostros impetum fecerunt. 4 Nostri celeriter arma ceperunt, eosque in silvas repulerunt, et compluribus interfectis, longius impeditioribus locis secuti, paucos ex suis deperdiderunt.
29. Reliquis deinceps diebus Caesar silvas caedere instituit, et ne quis inermibus imprudentibusque militibus ab latere impetus fieri posset, omnem eam materiam, quae erat caesa, conversam ad hostem conlocabat, et pro vallo ad utrumque latus exstruebat.

2 Incredibili celeritate magno spatio paucis diebus confecto, cum jam pecus atque extrema impedimenta ab nostris tenerentur, ipsi densiores silvas peterent, eiusmodi sunt tempestates consecutae, uti opus necessario intermitteretur, et continuatione imbrium diutius sub pellibus milités contineri non possent.

3 Itaque vastatis omnibus eorum agris, vicis aedificiisque incensis, Caesar exercitum reduxit, et in Aulercis Lexoviisque, reliquis item civitatibus quae proxime bellum fecerant, in hibernis conlocavit.
BOOK IV.

Campaign against the Germans.—The Suevi (Swabians), the most powerful tribe of Germans: their customs and warlike habit. They expel the Usipetes and Tencteri, who in their turn invade Northern Gaul (1-4). Advancing to strengthen the Gauls, who are about to yield, Cæsar demands that the Germans withdraw: after some parley, they furiously attack the Roman cavalry (5-12). Detaining their envoys, Cæsar attacks their camp, defeats and drives them to the Rhine (13-15). He then resolves to cross the Rhine: description of the Bridge (16, 17). After a short campaign in Germany, he returns to Gaul (18, 19).

First Invasion of Britain.—Motives for the expedition: the reconnaissance and preparations (20-22). Arrival in Britain: resistance of the Britons; valor of a Roman centurion. Cæsar lands, and after a sharp battle drives back the natives, who sue for peace (23-27). Meanwhile the Roman cavalry are forced back by a storm, and the fleet is seriously injured; on which the Britons renew hostilities (28-32). They attack a foraging party: their mode of fighting from war-chariots. Gathering a large force, they attack the Roman camp: defeating them, Cæsar makes peace and returns to Gaul to avoid the stormy season (33-36). Suppressing some disturbances, he quarters his forces among the Belgians for the winter (37, 38).
armis sunt, illi domi remanent. Sic neque agricultura nec ratio atque usus belli intermittitur. 5 Sed privati ac separatī agri apud eos nihil est, neque longius anno remanere uno in loco incolendi causa licet. 5 Neque multum frumento, sed maximam partem lacte atque pecore vivunt, multumque sunt in venationibus; quae res et cibi genere et cotidiana exercitatio et libertate vitae, quom a pueros nullo officio aut disciplina adsuefacti nihil omnino contra voluntatem faciant, et vires alit, et immani corporum magnitudine homines effect. 7 Atque in eam se consuetudinem adduxerunt, ut locis frigidissimis neque vestitus praeter pellis haberent quicquam, quarum propter exiguitatem magna est corporis pars aperta, et lavarentur in flum- 15 nibus.

2. Mercatoribus est aditus magis eo, ut quae bello ceperint quibus vendant habecant, quam quo ullam rem ad se importari desiderent. 2 Quin etiam jumentis, quibus maxime Galli delectantur, quaeque impenso parant pretio, Germani importatis non utuntur; sed quae sunt apud eos nata, parva atque deformia, haec cotidiana exercitatione summi ut sint laboris efficiunt. 3 Equestribus proeliis saepe ex equis desiliunt ac pedibus proeliantur, equosque codem remanere vestigio adsuefecerunt, ad quos se celeriter, cum usus est, recipiunt; neque eorum moribus turpius quicquam aut inertius habetur quam ephippiis uti. 4 Itaque ad quemvis numerum ephippiatorum equitum quamvis pauci adire audent. Vinum ad se omnino importari non sinunt, quod ea re ad laborem ferendum remollescere homines atque effeminari arbitrantur.

3. Publice maximam putant esse laudem quam latissime a suis finibus vacare agros: hac re significari magnum numerum civitatium suam vim sustinere non posse. Itaque una ex parte a Suevis circiter milia passuum sexcenta agri vacare dicuntur. 2 Ad alteram

4. In eadem causa fuerunt Usipetes et Tencteri, quos supra diximus, qui complures annos Suevorum vim sustinuerunt; ad extremum tamen, agris expulsi et multis locis Germaniae triennium vagati, ad Rhe-num pervenerunt: 2 quas regiones Menapii incolebant, et ad utramque ripam fluminis agros aedificia vicosque habebant; sed tantae multitudinis aditu perterriti, ex iis aedificiis quae trans flumen habuerant demigra- runt, et cis Rhenum dispositis praesidiis Germanos transire prohibebant. 3 Illi omnia experti, cum neque vi contendere propter inopiam navium neque clam transire propter custodias Menapiorum possent, reverti se in suas sedes regionesque simulaverunt, et tridui viam progressi rursus reverterunt, atque omni hoc itinere una nocte equitatu confecto, inscios inopinan- tesque Menapios oppresserunt; qui de Germanorum discessu in suos vicos remigraverant. 4 His interfectis navibusque eorum occupatis, priusquam ea pars Menapiorum, quae citra Rhenum erat, certior fieret, flumen transierunt; atque omnibus eorum aedifi-ciis occupatis, reliquam partem hiemis se eorum copiis aluerunt.

5. His de rebus Caesar certior factus, et infirmita- tem Gallorum veritus, quod sunt in consiliis capiendis 35 mobiles et novis plerumque rebus student, nihil his committendum existimavit. 2 Est enim hoc Gallicae consuetudinis, uti et viatores etiam invitos consistere cogant, et quid quisque eorum de quaque re audierit aut cognoverit quae erant; et mercatores in oppidis vulgus circumsistat, quibusque ex regionibus veniant quasque ibi res cognoverint pronuntiare cogant. 3 His rebus atque auditionibus permoti de summis saepe rebus consilia ineunt, quorum eos in vestigio paenitere necesse est, cum incertis rumoribus serviant, et plerique ad voluntatem eorum fita respondant.

6. Qua consuetudine cognita, Caesar, ne graviori bello occurreret, maturius quam consuerat ad exercitum proficiscitur. 2 Eo cum venisset, ea quae fore suspicatus erat, facta cognovit: missas legationes ab nonnullis civitatibus ad Germanos, invitatosque eos uti ab Rheno discerent, omniaque quae postulassent ab se fore parata. 3 Qua spe adducit, Germani latius vagabantur, et in fines Eburonum et Condrosorum, qui sunt Treverorum clientes, pervenerant. 4 Principibus Galliae evocatis, Caesar ea quae cognoverat dissimulanda sibi existimavit, eorumque animis permulsi et confirmatis, equitatuque imperato, bellum cum Germanis gerere constituit.

7. Re frumentaria comparata equitibusque delectis, iter in ea loca facere coepit, quibus in locis esse Germanos audiebat. 2 A quibus cum paucorum dierum iter abesset, legati ab iis venerunt, quorum haec fuit oratio: 'Germanos neque priores populo Romano bellum inferre, neque tamen recusare, si laccassentur, quin armis contendant, quod Germanorum consuetudo haec sit a majoribus tradita, quicumque bellum inferant, resistere neque deprecari. 3 Haec tamen dicere, venisse invitos, ejectos domo; si suam gratiam Romani velint, posse iis utiles esse amicos; vel sibi agros aedtribuant, vel patiantur eos tenere quos armis posse derint: sese unis Suevis concedere, quibus ne dii quidem immortales pares esse possint; reliquum quidem in terris esse neminem, quem non superare possint.'

8. Ad haec quae visum est Caesar respondit; sed exitus fuit orationis: 'Sibi nullam cum his amicitiam esse posse, si in Gallia remanerent; neque verum esse, qui suos fines tueri non potuerint, alienos occupare; 2 neque ullos in Gallia vacare agros, qui dari tantae praesertim multitudini sine injuria possint; sed licere, si velint, in Ubiorum finibus considere, quorum sint legati apud se et de Suevorum injuriis querantur et a se auxilium petant: hoc se Ubiis imperaturum.'

9. Legati haec se ad suos relatus dixerunt, et re deliberata post diem tertium ad Caesarem reversuros: interea ne propius se castra moveret petierunt. Ne id quidem Caesar ab se impetrari posse dixit. 2 Cognoverat enim magnam partem equitatus ab iis aliquot diebus ante praedandi frumentandique causa ad Ambivaritos trans Mosam missam: hos exspectari equites, atque ejus rei causa moram interponi arbitrabatur.

10. Mosa profuit ex monte Vosego, qui est in finibus Lingonum, et parte quadam ex Rheno recepta, quae appellatur Vacalus † insulamque efficit Batavorum, in Oceanum influit, neque longius ab Oceano milibus passuum lxxx in Rhenum influit. 2 Rhenus autem oritur ex Lepontiis, qui Alpes incolunt, et longo spatio per fines Nantuatium, Helvetiorum, Sequanorum, Mediomatricum, Tribocorum, Treverorum citatus fertur; et, ubi Oceano adpropinquavit, in plures defluat partes, multis ingentibusque insulis effectis, quarum pars magna a feris barbarisque nationibus incolitur, ex quibus sunt qui piscibus atque ovis avium vivere existimantur, multisque capitis in Oceanum influit.

11. Caesar cum ab hoste non amplius passum xii milibus abesset, ut erat constitutum, ad eum legati revertuntur; qui in itinere congressi magnopere ne longius prograde reretur orabant. 2 Cum id non impetrassent, petebant uti ad eos equites qui agmen antecessissent praemitteret, eosque pugna prohiberet, sibique ut potestatem faceret in Ubios legatos mittendi; quorum si principes ac senatus sibi jurejurando fidem fecisset, ea condicione quae a Caesare ferretur se usuros ostendebant: ad has res conficiendas sibi tridui spatium daret. 3 Haec omnia Caesar eodem illo pertinent arbitrabatur, ut tridui mora interposita equites eorum, qui abessent, reverterentur: tamen sese non longius milibus passuum quattuor aquationis causa processurum eo die dixit; huc postero die quam frequentissimi convenirent, ut de eorum postulatis cognosceret. 4 Interim ad praefectos, qui cum omni equitatu antecesserant, mittit qui nuntiarent ne hostes proelio lacesserent; et, si ipsi lacessentur, sustinerent, quoad ipse cum exercitu propius accessisset.

12. At hostes, ubi primum nostros equites conspexerunt, quorum erat quinque milium numerus, cum ipsi non amplius octingentos equites haberent, quod ii qui frumentandi causa ierant trans Mosam nondum redierant, nihil timentibus nostris, quod legati eorum paulo ante a Caesare discesserant atque is dies indutiis erat ab his petitus, impetu facto celeriter nostros perturabant; 2 rursus resistentibus, consuetudine sua ad pedes desiluerunt, subfossis equis compluribusque nostris dejectis, reliquos in fugam conjecerunt, atque ita perterritos egerunt, ut non prius fuga desisterent quam in conspectum agminis nostri venissent. 3 In eo proelio ex equitibus nostris interficiuntur quattuor et septuaginta; in his vir fortissimus, Piso Aquitanus, amplissimo genere natus, cujus avus in civitate sua regnum obtinuerat, amicus ab senatu nostro appellatus. 4 Hic cum fratri inclusu ab hostibus auxilium ferret, illum ex periculo eripuit, ipse equo vulnerato dejectus, quoad potuit, fortissime restitit: cum circum-ventus, multis vulneribus acceptis, cecidisset, atque id frater, qui jam proelio exesserat, procul animadvertisset, incitato equo se hostibus obtulit atque interfec-tus est.

13. Hoc facto proelio, Caesar neque jam sibi legatos audiendos neque condiciones accipiendas arbitrabatur ab iis, qui per dolum atque insidias, petita pace, ultro bellum intulissent: 2 exspectare vero, dum hostium copiae augerentur equitatusque reverteretur, summae dementiae esse judicabat; et cognita Gallorum infirmitate, quantum jam apud eos hostes uno proelio auctoritatis essent consecuti sentiebat; quibus ad consilia capienda nihil spatii dandum existimabat. 3 His constitutis rebus et consilio cum legatis et quaestore communicato, ne quem diem pugnae praetermitteret, 15 opportunissima res accidit, quod postridie ejus diei mane, eadem et perfidia et simulatione usi Germani frequentes, omnibus principibus majoribusque natu adhibitis, ad eum in castra venerunt: 4 simul, ut dicebatur, sui purgandi causa, quod (contra atque esset dictum, et ipsi petissent) proelium pridie commisissent; simul ut, si quid possent, de indutiis fallendo impetra-rent. 5 Quos sibi Caesar oblatos gavisus, illos retineri jussit; ipse omnes copias castris eduxit, equitatumque, quod recenti proelio perterritum esse existimabat, 25 agmen subseque jussit.

14. Acie triplici instituta, et celeriter VIII milium itinere confecto, prius ad hostium castra pervenit quam quid ageretur Germani sentire possent. 2 Qui omnibus rebus subito perterriti, et celeritate adventus nostri et discessu suorum, neque consilii habendi neque arma cantiendi spatio dato, perturbantur; copiasne adversus hostem ducere, an castra defendere, an fuga salutem petere praestaret. 3 Quorum timor cum fremitu et concursu significaretur, milites nostri, pristini diei perfidia incitati, in castra inruperunt. 4 Quo loco qui celeriter arma capere potuerunt, paulisper nostris restiterunt, atque inter carros impedimentaque proelium commiserunt: at reliqua multitudo puerorum mulie-rumque—nam cum omnibus suis domo excesserant Rhenumque transierant—passim fugere coepit; ad quos conectandos Caesar equitatum misit.

15. Germani, post tegum clamore audito, cum suos interfici viderent, armis abjectis signisque militaribus relictis, se ex castris ejecerunt, et cum ad confluentem Mosae et Rheni pervenissent, reliqua fuga desperata, magno numero interfecto, reliqui se in flumen praecipitaverunt; atque ibi timore, lassitudine, vi fluminis oppressi perierunt. 2 Nostri ad unum omnes incolumes, perpaucis vulneratis, ex tanti belli timore, cum hostium numerus capitum ccccxxx milium fuisset, se in castra receperunt. 3 Caesar iis, quos in castris retinuerat, discedendi potestatem fecit. Illi supplicia cruciatusque Gallorum veriti, quorum agros vexaverant, remanere se apud eum velle dixerunt. His Caesar libertatem concessit.

16. Germanico bello confecto, multis de causis Caesar statuit sibi Rhenum esse transeundum: quorum illa fuit justissima, quod, cum videret Germanos tam facile impelli ut in Galliam venirent, suis quoque rebus eos timere voluit, cum interlegenter et posse et audere populi Romani exercitum Rhenum transire. 2 Accessit etiam, quod illa pars equitatus Usipetum et Tencterorum, quam supra commemoravi praedandi frumentandique causa Mosam transisse, neque proelio interfuisse, post fugam suorum se trans Rhenum in fines Sugambrorum receperat, seque cum iis conjunxerat. 3 Ad quos cum Caesar nuntios misisset, qui postularent, eos qui sibi Galliaeque bellum intulissent sibi dederent, responderunt: 'Populi Romani imperium Rhenum finire: si se invito Germanos in Galliam transire non aequum existimaret, cur sui quicquam esse imperii aut potestatis trans Rhenum postularet? 4 Ubii autem, qui uni ex Transrhenanis ad Caesarem legatos miserant, amicitiam fecerant, obsides dederant, magnopere orabant ut sibi auxilium ferret, quod graviter ab Suevis premerentur; vel, si id facere occupationibus republicae prohiberetur, exercitum modo Rhenum transportaret: id sibi ad auxilium spemque reliqui temporis satis futurum. 5 Tantum esse nomen atque opinionem ejus exercitus, Ariovisto pulso et hoc novissimo proelio facto, etiam ad ultimas 10 Germanorum nationes, uti opinione et amicitia populi Romani tuti esse possint. Navium magnam copiam ad transportandum exercitum pollicebantur.

17. Caesar, his de causis quas commemoravi, Rhenum transire decreverat; sed navibus transire neque satis tutum esse arbitrabatur, neque suae neque populi Romani dignitatis esse statuebat. 2 Itaque, etsi summa difficultas faciendi pontis proponebatur propter latitudinem, rapiditatem, altitudinemque fluminis, tamen id sibi contendendum, aut aliter non traducendum exercitum existimabat. 3 Rationem pontis hanc instituit. Tigna bina sesquipedalia, paulum ab imo praeacuta, dimensa ad altitudinem fluminis, intervallo pedum duo-rum inter se jungebat. 4 Haec cum machinationibus immissa in flumen defixerat, fistucisque adegerat,—non sublicae modo directe ad perpendiculum, sed prone ac fastigate, ut secundum naturam fluminis procumberent,—his item contraria duo ad eundem modum juncta, intervallo pedum quadragenum, ab inferiore parte contra vim atque impetum fluminis conversa 20 statuebat. 5 Haec utraque insuper bipedalibus trabibus immissis, quantum eorum tignorum junctura distabat, binis utrimque fibulis ab extrema parte distinebantur; quibus disclusis, atque in contrariam partem revinctis, tanta erat operis firmitudo atque ea 35 rerum natura, ut, quo major vis aquae se incitavisset, hoc artius inligata tenerentur. Haec directa materia injecta contexebantur, ac longuriis cratibusque con-sternebantur; ac nihil secius sublicae et ad inferiorum partem fluminis oblique agebantur, quae pro ariete subjectae et cum omni opere conjunctae vim fluminis exciperen.; et aliae item supra pontem mediocris spatio, ut, si arborum trunci sive naves deiciendi operis essent a barbaris missae, his defensoribus earum rerum vis minueretur, neu ponti nocerent.

18. Diebus decem, quibus materia coepta erat comortari, omni opere effecto, exercitus traducitur. Caesar, ad utramque partem pontis firme praesidio relictis, in fines Sugambrorum contendit. Interim a compluribus civitatibus ad eum legati veniunt; quibus pacem atque amicitiam petentibus liberaliter respondit, obsidesque ad se adduci jubet. Sugambri, ex eo tempore quo pons institui coeptus est, fuga comparata, hortantibus iis quos ex Tencteris atque Usipetibus apud se habebant, finibus suis excesserant, saque omnia exportaverant, seque in solitudinem ac silvas abdiderant.

19. Caesar, paucos dies in eorum finibus moratus, omnibus vicis aedificiisque incensis, frumentisque suc-cisis, se in fines Ubiorum recipit; atque iis auxilium suum pollicitus, si ab Suevis premerentur, haec ab iis cognovit: ‘Suevos, posteaquam per exploratores pontem fieri comperissent, more suo concilio habito, nuntios in omnes partes dimisse, uti de oppidis demigrarent, liberos, uxores, suaque omnia in silvis deponenter, atque omnes, qui arma ferre possent, unum in locum convenirent; hunc esse delectum me-dium fere regionum earum, quas Suevi obtinerent; hic Romanorum adventum exspectare, atque ibi de-certare constituisses.’ Quod ubi Caesar comperit, omnibus rebus iis confectis, quarum rerum causa tra-ducere exercitum constituerat, ut Germanis metum iniceret, ut Sugambros ulcisceretur, ut Ubios obsidione liberaret, diebus omnino decem et octo trans Rhenum consumptis, satis et ad laudem et ad utilitatem praefectum arbitratus, se in Galliam recepit, pontemque rescidit.

20. Exigua parte aestatis reliqua, Caesar, etsi in his locis (quod omnis Gallia ad septentriones vergit) maturae sunt hiemis, tamen in Britanniam proficisci contenderit: quod omnibus fere Gallicis bellis hostibus nostris inde sumministrata auxilia intellegebat; et, si tempus anni ad bellum gerendum deficeret, tamen magno sibi usui fore arbitrabatur, si modo insulam adisset et genus hominum perspexisset, loca, portus, aditus cognovisset; quae omnia fere Gallis erant incognita.

21. Ad haec cognoscenda, priusquam periculum faceret, idoneum esse arbitratus, Gaium Volusenum cum navi longa praemittit. Huic mandat, ut exploratis omnibus rebus ad se quam primum revertatur. Ipse cum omnibus copiis in Morinos proficiscitur, quod inde erat brevissimus in Britanniam trajectus. Huc naves undique ex finitimis regionibus, et quam superiore aestate ad Veneticum bellum effecerat classem, jubet convenire. Interim, consilio ejus cognito, et per mercatores perlato ad Britannos, a compluribus insulae civitatibus ad eum legati veniunt, qui polliceantur obsides dare, atque imperio populi Romani obtemperare. Quibus auditis, liberaliter pollicitus, hortatus-que ut in ea sententia permanerent, eos domum remittit; et cum iis una Commium, quem ipse Atrebatis superatis regem ibi constituerat, cujus et virtutem et consilium probabat, et quem sibi fidelem esse arbitrabatur, cujusque auctoritas in his regionibus magni habebatur, mittit. 5 Huic imperat, quas possit adeat civitates; horteturque ut populi Romani fidem sequantur, sequiter eo venturum nuntiet. 6 Volusenus, perspectis regionibus omnibus, quantum ei facultatis dari potuit, qui navi egredi ac se barbaris committere non auderet, quinto die ad Caesarem revertitur, quaeque ibi perspexisset renuntiat.

22. Dum in his locis Caesar navium parandarum causa moratur, ex magna parte Morinorum ad eum legati venerunt, qui se de superioris temporis consilio excusarent, quod homines barbari et nostrae consuetudinis imperiti bellum populo Romano fecissent, seque ea, quae imperasset, facturos pollicerentur. 2 Hoc sibi Caesar satis opportune accidisse arbitratus, quod neque post tergum hostem relinquere volebat, neque belli gerendi propter anni tempus facultatem habebat, neque has tantularum rerum occupationes Britanniae anteponendas judicabat, magnum iis numerum obsidium imperat. Quibus adductis, eos in fidem recepit. 25 3 Navibus circiter lxxx onerariis coactis contractisque, quot satis esse ad duas transportandas legiones existimabat, quod praeterea navium longarum habebat, quaestori, legatis praefectisque distribuit. 4 Huc accedebant xviii onerariae naves, quae ex eo loco ab milibus passuum viii vento tenebantur, quo minus in eundem portum venire possent: has equitibus distribuit. Reliquum exercitum Q. Titurio Sabino et L. Aurunculeio Cotta legatis in Menapios, atque in eos pagos Morinorum ab quibus ad eum legati non venrant, ducendum dedit; P. Sulpicium Rufum legatum, cum eo praesidio quod satis esse arbitrabatur, portum tenere jussit.
23. His constitutis rebus, nactus idoneam ad navigandum tempestatem, tertia fere vigilia solvit, equitesque in ulteriorem portum progreendi et naves conscendere et se sequi jussit. 2 A quibus cum paulo tardius esset administratum, ipse hora circiter diei quarta cum primis navibus Britanniam attigit, atque ibi in omnibus collibus expositas hostium copias armatas conspexit. 3 Cujus loci haec erat natura, atque ita montibus angustis mare continebatur, uti ex locis superioribus in litus telum adigi posset. 4 Hunc ad egrediendum nequaquam idoneum locum arbitratus, dum reliquae naves eo convenirent, ad horam nonam in ancoris exspectavit. 5 Interim, legatis tribunisque militum convocatis, et quae ex Voluseno cognosset et quae fieri vellet ostendit, monuitque ut rei militaris ratio, maxime ut maritimae res postularent (ut quae celearem atque instabilem motum haberent), ad nutum et ad tempus omnes res ab iis administrarentur. 6 His dimissis, et ventum et aestum uno tempore nactus secundum, dato signo et sublatis ancoris, circiter milia passuum septem ab eo loco progressus, aperto ac plano litore naves constituit.

24. At barbari, consilio Romanorum cognito, prae misrepresentedo equitatu et essedariis, quo plerumque genere in proeliis uti consuerunt, reliquis copiis subsecuti, nostros navibus egredi prohibebant. 2 Erat ob has causas summa difficultas, quod naves propter magnitudinem nisi in alto constitui non poterant; militibus autem, ignotis locis, impeditis manibus, magnis et gravibus onere armorum oppressis, simul et de navibus desiliendum et in fluctibus consistendum et cum hostibus erat pugnandum; cum illi aut ex arido, aut paulum in aquam progressi, omnibus membris expeditis, notissimis locis, audacter tela conicerent, et equos insuefactos incitarent. 3 Quibus rebus nostri perterriti, atque hujus omnino generis pugnae imperiti, non eadem alacritate ac studio quo in pedestribus uti proeliiis consuerant nitebantur.

25. Quod ubi Caesar animadvertit, naves longas, quarum et species erat barbaris inusitator, et motus ad usum expeditior, paulum removeri ab onerariis navibus, et remis incitari, et ad latus apertum hostium constitui, atque inde fundis, sagittis, tormentis hostes propelli ac summoveri jussit; quae res magno usui nostris fuit.
2 Nam, et navium figura et remorum motu et inusitato genere tormentorum permoti, barbari constiterunt, ac paulum modo pedem retulerunt. 3 Atque nostris militibus cunctantibus, maxime propter altitudinem maris, qui decimae legionis aquilam ferebat, contestatus deos ut ea res legioni feliciter eveniret: 4 Desilite, inquit, milites, nisi vultis aquilam hostibus prodere: ego certe meum rei publicae atque imperatoris officium praestitero. Hoc cum voce magna dixisset, se ex navi projecit, atque in hostes aquilam ferre coepit.
5 Tum nostri, cohortati inter se, ne tantum dedecus admitteretur, universi ex navi desiluerunt. Hos item ex proximis [primis] navibus cum conspexissent, subsecuti hostibus adpropinquarunt.

26. Pugnatum est ab utrisque acriter. Nostri ta-men, quod neque ordines servare neque firmiter insistere neque signa subseque poterant, atque alius alia ex navi, quibuscumque signis occurrerat, se adgregabat, magnopere perturbabantur; 2 hostes vero, notis omnibus vadis, ubi ex litore aliquos singulares ex navi egredientes conspexerant, incitatis equis impeditos adoriebantur, plures paucos circumsistebant, alii ab later aperto in universos tela conciebant. 3 Quod cum animadvertisset Caesar, scaphas longarum na-vium, item speculatoria navigia militibus compleiri jussit, et quos laborantes conspexerat, his subsidia 35 submittebat. 4 Nostri simul in arido constiterunt, suis omibus consecutis, in hostes impetum fecerunt, atque

27. Hostes proelio superati, simul atque se ex fuga receperunt, statim ad Caesarem legatos de pace miserunt; obsides daturos quaeque imperasset facturos esse polliciti sunt. Una cum his legatis Commius Atrebas venit, quem supra demonstraveram a Caesare in Britanniam praemissum. Hunc illi e navi egressum, cum ad eos oratoris modo Caesaris mandata deferret, comprehenderant atque in vincula conjecerant: tum, proelio facto, remiserunt; et in petenda pace ejus rei culpam in multitudinem contulerunt, et propter imprudentiam ut ignosceretur petiverunt. Caesar questus, quod, cum ultero in continentem legatis missis pacem ab se petissent, bellum sine causa intulissent, ignoscere imprudentiae dixit, obsidesque imperavit; quorum illi partem statim dederunt, partem ex longinquioribus locis arcessitam paucis diebus sese daturos dixerunt. Interea suas remigrare in agros jussent, principesque undique convenire, et se civitatesque suas Caesari commendare coeperunt.

28. His rebus pace confirmata, post diem quartum quam est in Britanniam ventum, naves xviii, de quibus supra demonstratum est, quae equites sustulerant, ex superiore portu leni vento solverunt. Quae cum adpropinquarent Britanniae et ex castris viderentur, tanta tempestas subito coörta est, ut nulla earum cursum tenere posset; sed aliae eodem, unde erant profectae, referrentur, aliae ad inferiorem partem insulae, quae est propius solis occasum, magno sui cum periculo deicerentur; quae tamen, anoris jactis, cum fluctibus compleverunt, necessario adversa nocte in altum provectae continentem petierunt.

29. Eadem nox accidit ut esset luna plena, qui

First Invasion of Britain.

[Caesar]
dies maritos aestus maximos in Oceano efficere con-suevit, nostrisque id erat incognitum. Ita uno tempore et longas naves, quibus Caesar exercitum transportandum curaverat, quasque in aridum subduxerat, aestus compleverat; et onerarias, quae ad ancoras erant deligatae, tempestas afflictabat, neque ulla nostris facultas aut administrandi aut auxiliandi dabatur.

2Compluribus navibus fractis, reliquae cum essent—funibus, ancoris reliquisque armamentis amissis—ad navigandum inutiles, magna (id quod necesse erat accidere) totius exercitus perturbatio facta est. 3Neque enim naves erant aliae, quibus reportari possent; et omnia deerant quae ad reficiendas naves erant usui;
et, quod omnibus constabat hiemari in Gallia oportere, frumentum his in locis in hiemem provisum non erat.

30. Quibus rebus cognitis, principes Britanniae, qui post proelium ad Caesarem convenerant, inter se conlocuti, cum equites et naves et frumentum Romanis deèse intellegenter, et paucitatem militum ex castro-rum exiguitate cognoscerent,—quae hoc erant etiam angustiora, quod sine impedimentis Caesar legiones transportaverat,—optimum factu esse duxerunt, re-bellione facta, frumento commeatuque nostros prohi-bere, et rem in hiemem producere; quod his superatis, aut reditu interclusis, neminem postea belli inferendi causa in Britanniam transsiturum confidebant. Itaque rursus conjuratione facta, paulatim ex castris discedere ac suos clam ex agris deducere coeperunt.

31. At Caesar, etsi nondum eorum consilia cognoverat, tamen et ex eventu navium suarum, et ex eo quod obsides dare intermiserant, fore id quod accidit suspicabatur. Itaque ad omnes casus subsidia com-parabat. 2Nam et frumentum ex agris cotidie in castra conferebat, et quae gravissime afflictae erant naves, earum materia atque aere ad reliquis reficiendas utebatur; et quae ad eas res erant usui ex continenti comportari jubebat. 3 Itaque cum summo studio a militibus administraretur, duodecim navibus amissis, reliquis ut navigari commode posset effecit.

32. Dum ea geruntur, legione ex consuetudine una frumentatum missa, quae appellabatur septima, neque ulla ad id tempus belli suspicione interposita, — cum pars hominum in agris remaneret, pars etiam in castra ventitaret, — ii qui pro portis castrorum in statione erant Caesari nuntiaverunt pulserem majorem quam consuetudo ferret in ea parte videri, quam in partem legio iter fecisset. 2 Caesar, id quod erat suspicatus, aliquid novi a barbaris initum consilii, cohortes quae in stationibus erant secum in eam partem proficisci, ex reliquis duas in stationem cohortes succedere, reliquas armari et confestim sese subsequi jussit. 3 Cum paulo longius a castris processisset, suos ab hostibus premi, atque aegre sustinere, et conferta legione ex omnibus partibus tela conici animadvertit. 4 Nam quod, omni ex reliquis partibus demesso frumento, pars una erat reliqua, suspicati hostes hue nostros esse venturos, noctu in silvas delituerant; tum dispersos, depositis armis, in metendo occupatos, subito adorti, paucis interfectis, reliquos incertis ordiniis perturbaverant, simul equitatu atque essedis circumdederant.

33. Genus hoc est ex essedis pugnae. Primo per omnes partes perequitant, et tela coniciunt, atque ipso terrore equorum et strepitu rotarum ordinis plerumque perturbant; et cum se inter equitum turmas insinuaverunt, ex essedis desiliunt, et pedibus proeliantur. 2 Aurigae interim paulatim ex proelio excedunt, atque ita currus conlocant, uti si illi a multitudine hostium premantur, expeditum ad suos receptum habeant. 3 Ita mobilitatem equitum, stabilitatem peditum in proelis praestant; ac tantum usu cotidiano et exercitazione efficiunt, uti in declivi ac praeclipsi loco incitatos equos sustinere, et brevi moderari ac flectere, et per teonem percurrere, et in jugo insistere, et se inde in currus citissime recipere consuerint.

34. Quibus rebus, perturbatis nostris novitate pugnae, tempore opportunissimo Caesar auxilium tulit: namque ejus adventu hostes constiterunt, nostri se ex timore receperunt.
2 Quo facto, ad laccendum et ad committendum proelium alienum esse tempus arbitratus, suo se loco continuit, et brevi tempore intermisso in castra legiones reduxit.
3 Dum haec geruntur, nostris omnibus occupatis, qui erant in agris reliqui discesserunt. Secutae sunt continuos complures dies tempestates, quae et nostros in castris continerent, et hostem a pugna prohiberent.
4 Interim barbari nuntios in omnes partes dimiserunt, paucitatemque nostrorum militum suis praedicaverunt, et quanta praedae faciendae atque in perpetuum sui liberandi facultas daretur, si Romanos castris expulissent, demonstraverunt.
5 His rebus, celeriter magna multitudine peditatus equitatusque coacta, ad castra venerunt.
6 Caesar, etsi idem quod superioribus diebus acciderat fore videbat,—ut, si essent hostes pulsi, celeritate periculum effugerent,—tamen nactus equites circiter triginta, quos Commius Atrebas (de quo ante dictum est) secum transportaverat, legiones in acie pro castris constituit.
7 Commissio proelio, diutius nostrorum militum impetum hostes ferre non potuerunt, ac terga verterunt.
8 Quos tanto spatio securi, quantum cursu et viribus efficere potuerunt, complures ex iis occiderunt; deinde, omnibus longe lateque aedificiis incensis, se in castra recepterunt.
9 Eodem die legati ab hostibus missi ad Caesarem de pace venerunt. His Caesar numerum obsidum, quem antea imperaverat, duplicavit, eosque in continentem adduci jussit; quod, propinquua die aequinoctii, infirmis navibus hiemi navigationem subiciendam non existimabat.
10 Ipse, idoneam tempestatem nactus, paulo post medium noctem naves solvit; quae omnes incolumes ad continentem pervenerunt: sed ex iis onerariae duae eosdem quos reliqui portus capere non potuerunt, et paulo infra delatae sunt.

37. Quibus ex navibus cum essent expositi milites circiter trecenti, atque in castra contenderent, Morini, quos Caesar in Britanniam proficiscens pacatos reliquerat, spe praedae adducti, primo non ita magno suorum numero circumsteterunt, ac, si sese interfici nollent, arma ponere jussuerunt. 2 Cum illi, orbe facto, sese defenderent, celeriter ad clamorem hominum circiter milia sex convenerunt. Qua re nuntiata, Caesar omnem ex castris equitatum suis auxilio misit. 3 Interim nostri milites impetum hostium sustinuerunt, atque amplius horis quattuor fortissime pugnaverunt, et paucis vulneribus acceptis complures ex his occiderunt. 4 Postea vero quam equitatus noster in conspectum venit, hostes abjectis armis terga verterunt, magnusque eorum numerus est occisus.

38. Caesar postero die T. Labienum legatum, cum iis legionibus quas ex Britannia reduxerat, in Morinos, qui rebellionem fecerant, misit. Qui cum, propter siccitates paludum, quo se recipere non haberent (quo superiore anno perfugio fuerant usi), omnes fere in potestatem Labieni pervenerunt. 2 At Q. Titurius et L. Cotta legati, qui in Menapiorum fines legiones duxerat, omnibus eorum agris vastatis, frumentis succisis, aedificiis incensis, quod Menapii se omnes in densissmas silvas abdiderant, se ad Caesarem receperunt. 3 Caesar in Belgis omnium legionum hiberna constitut. Eo duae omnino civitates ex Britannia obsides miserunt, reliquae neglexerunt. His rebus gestis, ex litteris Caesaris dierum viginti supplicatio a senatu decreta est.
BOOK V.

SECOND INVASION OF BRITAIN. — After providing for his fleet, and quieting disturbances in Illyria, Cæsar returns to Gaul (1, 2). Troubles on the northern frontier; treachery, flight, and death of Dumnorix (2–7). Cæsar’s expedition lands in Britain, where the natives are driven back by the Roman cavalry (8, 9). The fleet is damaged by a storm, and hastily repaired (10, 11). Description of the island and its inhabitants (12–14). Attacks of the Britons under Cassivellaunus, who is driven beyond the Thames (15–19). Several tribes submit, and Cæsar returns to Gaul (20–23).

FRESH RISINGS OF THE GAULS. — As the Roman garrisons are widely scattered, the opportunity is seized for a sudden rising in the north, under Ambiorix (24–26). The camp of Sabinus is attacked, and imprudently forsaken; the force is attacked on the retreat, and both its commanders, Sabinus and Cotta, are slain (27–38). Ambiorix next, aided by the Nervii, attacks the camp of Quintus Cicero; he, however, holds his ground steadily, until relieved by Cæsar, who crushes the force of the Belgians (39–52). The Treveri, under Indutiomarus, attack the quarters of Labienus, but are at length repulsed, with the loss of their leader (53–58).

DOMITIO Ap. Claudio consulis, discendent ab hibernis Cæsar in Italiam, ut quotannis facere consuerat, legatis imperat quos legionibus praefecerat, uti quam plurimas possent hieme naves aedificandas veteresque reficiendas curarent. Earum modum formamque demonstrat. 2 Ad celeritatem onerandi subductionesque, paulo facit humiliores quam quibus in nostro mari uti consuevimus; atque id eo magis, quod propter crebras commutationes aestuum minus magnos ibi fluctus fieri cognoverat; ad onera, ad multitudinem jumentorum transportandum, paulo latiores quam quibus in reliquis utimur maribus. 3 Has omnes actuarias imperat fieri, quam ad rem multum humilitas adjuvat. tari jubet. 4 Ipse, conventibus Galliae citerioris peractis, in Illyricum proficiscitur, quod a Pirustis finitimam partem provinciae incursionibus vastari audiebat. Eo cum venisset, civitatibus milites imperat certumque in locum convenire jubet. 5 Qua re nuntiata, Pirustae legatos ad eum mittunt, qui doceant nihil earum rerum publico factum consilio, sesque paratos esse demonstrant omnibus rationibus de injuriis satisfacere. 6 Percepta oratione eorum, Caesar obsides imperat eosque ad certam diem adduci jubet: nisi ita fecerint, sese bello civitatem persecuturum demonstrat. 7 Iis ad diem adductis, ut imperaverat, arbitros inter civitates dat, qui litem aestiment poenamque constituant.

2. His confectis rebus conventibusque peractis, in citeriorem Galliam revertitur, atque inde ad exercitum proficiscitur. 2 Eo cum venisset, circuitis omnibus hibernis, singulari militum studio, in summa omnium rerum inopia, circiter sexcentas ejus generis cujus supra demonstravimus naves et longas xxviii invenit instructas, neque multum abesse ab eo, quin paucis diebus deduci possent. 3 Collaudatis militibus atque iis qui negotio praefuerant, quid fieri velit ostendit, atque omnes ad portum Itium convenire jubet, quo ex portu commodissimum in Britanniam trajectum esse cognoverat circiter milium passuum triginta a continent. 4 Huic rei quod satis esse visum est militum reliquit: ipse cum legionibus expeditis iv, et equitibus dccc, in fines Treverorum proficiscitur; quod hi neque ad concilia veniebant, neque imperio parebant, Germanosque Transrhenanos sollicitare dicebantur.

3. Haec civitas longe plurimum totius Galliae equitatu valet, magnasque habet copias peditum, Rhenumque, ut supra demonstravimus, tangit. 2 In ea civitate duo de principatu inter se contendebant, Indutiomarus et Cingetorix; ex quibus alter, simul atque de Caesaris legione numque adventu cognitum est, ad eum venit; se suosque

omnes in officio futuros, neque ab amicitia populi Romani defecturos, confirmavit; quaeque in Treveris gererentur ostendit. 3 At Indutiomarus equitatum peditatumque cogere, iisque qui per aetatem in armis esse non poterant in silvam Arduennam abditis, quae ingenti magnitudine per medios fines Treverorum a flumine Rheno ad initium Remorum pertinet, bellum parare instituit. 4 Sed, posteaquam nonnulli principes ex ea civitate, et familia-ritate Cingetorigis adducti et adventu nostri exercitus perterriti, ad Caesarem venerunt, et de suis privatim rebus ab eo petere coeperunt, quoniam civitati consulere non possent; 5 veritus ne ab omnibus desereretur, Indutiomarus legatos ad Caesarem mittit: ‘Sese idcirco ab suis discedere atque ad eum venire noluisse, quo facilius civitatem in officio contineret, ne omnis nobilitatis discessu plebs propter imprudentiam laberetur; itaque esse civitatem in sua potestate, seque, si Caesar permetteret, ad eum in castra venturum, suas civitatisque fortunas ejus fidei permissurum.’

4. Caesar, etsi intellegebat qua de causa ea dicerentur, quaeque eum res ab instituto consilio deterreret, tamen, ne aestatem in Treveris consumere cogeretur, omnibus ad Britannicum bellum rebus comparatis, Indutiomarum ad se cum ducentis obsidibus venire jussit. 2 His adduc-tis, in iis filio propinquisque ejus omnibus, quos nominatim evocaverat, consolatus Indutiomarum, hortatusque est uti in officio permaneret; nihil olim tamen secius, principibus Treverorum ad se convocatis, hos singillatim Cingetorigi conciliavit; 3 quod cum merito ejus a se fieri intellegebat, tum magni interesse arbitrabatur ejus auctoritatem inter suas quam plurimum valere, cujus tam egregiam in se voluntatem perspexisset. 4 Id tulit factum graviter Indutiomarus, suam gratiam inter suas minui; et, qui jam ante inimico in nos animo fuisset, multo gravius hoc dolore exarsit.

5. His rebus constitutis, Caesar ad portum Itium cum legionibus pervenit. 2 Ibi cognoscit sexaginta naves, quae in Meldis factae erant, tempestate rejectas cursum tenere non potuisse, atque eodem unde erant profectae revertisse; reliquas paratas ad navigandum atque omnibus rebus instructas invenit. 3 Eodem equitatus totius Galliae convenit, numero milium quattuor, principesque omnibus ex civitatibus; ex quibus perpaucos, quorum in se fidem perspexerat, relinquire in Gallia, reliquis obsidium loco secum ducere decreverat, quod, cum ipse abs- set, motum Galliae verebatur.

6. Erat una cum ceteris Dumnorix Haeduus, de quo ante ab nobis dictum est. Hunc secum habere in pri-mis constituerat, quod eum cupidum rerum novarum, cupidum imperii, magni animi, magnae inter Gallos auctoritatis, cognoverat. 2 Accedebat huc, quod in concilio Haeduorum Dumnorix dixerat, sibi a Caesare regnum civitatis deferri: quod dictum Haedui graviter ferebant, neque recusandi aut deprecandi causa legatos ad Caesarem mittere audiebant. 3 Id factum ex suis hospitibus Caesar cognoverat. Ille omnibus primo precibus petere contendit, ut in Gallia relinqueretur: partim quod insuetus navigandi mare timeret, partim quod religionibus impediri sese diceret. 4 Posteaquam id obstinate sibi negari vidit, omni spe impetrandi adempta, principes Galliae sollicitare, sevocare singulos, hortarique coepit, uti in continenti remanerent; metu territare, non sine causa fieri, ut Gallia omni nobilitate spoliaretur; 5 id esse consilium Caesaris, ut, quos in conspectu Galliae interficere veretur, hos omnes in Britanniam traductos necaret; fidelis reliquis interponere, jusjurandum pos- cere, ut, quod esse ex usu Galliae intellexissent, communi consilio administrarent. Haec a compluribus ad Caesarem deferebantur.

quod longius ejus amentiam progradì videbat, prospiciendum ne quid sibi ac reipublicae nocere posset. 2 Itaque, dies circiter xxv in eo loco commoratus, quod Corus ventus navigationem impediebat, qui magnam partem omnis temporis in his locis flare consuevit, dat operam, ut in officio Dumnorigem contineret; nihil tamen secius omnia ejus consilia cognosceret. 3 Tandem, idoneam nactus tempestatem, milites equitesque conscendere in naves jubet. At, omnium impeditis animis, Dumnorix cum equibus Haeduorum a castris, insciente Caesare, domum discedere coepit. 4 Qua re nuntiata, Caesar, intermissa profectione, atque omnibus rebus postpositis, magnam partem equitatus ad eum sequendum mittit, retrahique imperat; si vim faciat neque pareat, interfici jubet; nihil hunc se absente pro sano facturum arbitratus, qui praesentis imperium neglexisset. 5 Ille enim, revocatus, resistere ac se manu defendere suorumque fidem implorare coepit, saepe clamitans, liberum se liberaeque esse civitatis. 6 Illi, ut erat imperatum, circumsistunt hominem atque interficiunt: at equites Haeduui ad Caesarem omnes revertuntur.

8. His rebus gestis, Labieno in continente cum tribus legionibus et equitum milibus duobus relictis, ut portus tueretur et rem frumentarium provideret, quaeque in Gallia gerentur cognosceret, consiliumque pro tempore et pro re caperet, 2 ipse cum quinque legionibus, et pari numero equitum, quem in continenti relinquuerat, ad solis occasum naves solvit; et leni Africo provectus, media circiter nocte vento intermisso, cursum non tenuit; et, longius delatus aestu, orta luce, sub sinistra Britanniam relictam conspexit. 3 Tum rursus aestus commutationem secutus, remis contendit ut eam partem insulae caperet, qua optimum esse egressum superiore aestate cognoverat. 4 Qua in re admodum fuit militum virtus laudanda, qui vectoriiis gravibusque navigiis, non intermisso remigandi labore, longarum navium cursum adaequarunt. 5 Accessum est ad Britanniam omnibus navibus meridiano fere tempore: neque in eo loco hostis est visus, sed, ut postea Caesar ex captivis cognovit, cum magnae manus eo convenissent, multitudine navium perterritae, quae cum annotinis privatisque, quas sui 5 quisque commodi fecerat, amplius octingentae uno erant visae tempore, a litore discesserant ac se in superiora loca abdiderant.

9. Caesar, exposito exercitu et loco castris idoneo capto, ubi ex captivis cognovit quo in loco hostium 10 copiae consedissent, cohortibus decem ad mare relictis, et equitibus ccc, qui praesidio navibus essent, de tertia vigilia ad hostes contendit,—eo minus veritus navibus, quod in litore molli atque aperto deligatas ad ancoram relinquebat,—et praesidio navibus Q. Atrium praefecit. 15

2 Ipse, noctu progressus milia passuum circiter xii, hostium copias conspicatus est. Illi, equitatu atque essedis ad flumen progressi, ex loco superiore nostros prohibere et proelium committere coeperunt. 3 Repulsi ab equitatu, se in silvas abdiderunt, locum nacti egregie et natura 20 et opere munitum, quem domestici belli (ut videbantur) causa jam ante praeparaverant; nam crebris arboribus succisis omnes introitus erant praecclusi. 4 Ipsi ex silvis rari propugnabant, nostrosque intra munitiones ingredi prohibebant. At milites legionis septimae, testudine 25 facta et aggere ad munitiones adjuncto, locum ceperunt eosque ex silvis expulerunt, paucis vulneribus acceptis. 5 Sed eos fugientes longius Caesar prosequi vetuit, et quod loci naturam ignorabat, et quod, magna parte diei consumpta, munitioni castrorum tempus relinquui volebat. 50

atque in litore ejectas esse; quod neque ancorae funesque subsisterent, neque nautae gubernatoresque vim tempestatis pati possent. 3 Itaque ex eo concursu navium magnum esse incommodium acceptum.

II. His rebus cognitis, Caesar legiones equitatumque revocari atque in itinere desistere jubet; ipse ad naves revertitur: eadem ferc, quae ex nuntiis litterisque cognoverat, coram perspicit, sic ut, amissis circiter XL navibus, reliquae tamen refici posse magno negotio viderentur. 2 Itaque ex legionibus fabros velit, et ex continenti alios arcessi jubet; Labieno scribit ut quam plurimas posset, ipsis legionibus quae sunt apud eum, naves instituat. 3 Ipse, etsi res erat multae operae ac laboris, tamen commodissimum esse statuit, omnes naves subduci et cum castris una munitione conjungi. In his rebus circiter dies decem consumit, ne nocturnis quidem temporibus ad laborem militum intermissis. Subductis navibus castrisque egregie munitis, easdem copias quas ante praesidio navibus reliquit; ipse eodem unde redierat proficiscitur. 5 Eo cum venisset, majores jam undique in eum locum copiae Britannorum convergunt; summa imperii bellique administrandi, communi consilio, permissa Cassivellauno, cujus fines a maritimis civitatibus flumen dividit, quod appellatur Tamesis, a mari circiter milia passuum LXXX. 6 Huic superiore tempore cum reliquis civitatibus continentia bella intercesserat; sed nostro adventu permoti Britannii hunc toti bello imperioque praefecerant.

12. Britanniae pars interior ab iis incolitur, quos natos in insula ipsi memoria proditum dicunt; maritima pars ab iis qui, praedae ac belli inferendi causa, ex Belgis transierunt (qui omnes fere iis nominibus civitatum appellantur, quibus orti ex civitatibus eo pervenerunt) et bello illato ibi remanserunt, atque agros colere coeperunt. 2 Hominum est infinita multitudo, creberrimaque aedificia fere Gallicis consimilia; pecorum magnus nu-merus. Utuntur aut aere [aut nummo aereo] aut taleis ferreis ad certum pondus examinatis pro nummo. Nascitur ibi plumbum album in mediterraneis regionibus, in maritimis ferrum, sed ejus exigua est copia; aere utun-tur importato. Materia cujusque generis ut in Gallia est praeter fagum atque abietem. Leporem et gallinam et anserem gustare fas non putant; haec tamen alunt animi voluptatisque causa. Loca sunt temperatiora quam in Gallia, remissioribus frigoribus.

13. Insula natura triquetra, cujus unum latus est contra Galliam. Hujus lateris alter angulus, qui est ad Cantium, quo fere omnes ex Gallia naves appelluntur, ad orientem solem; inferior ad meridiem spectat. Hoc per-tinet circiter milia passuum quingenta. Alterum vergit ad Hispaniam atque occidentem solem; qua ex parte est Hibernia, dimidio minor (ut aestimatur) quam Britannia, sed pari spatio transmissus atque ex Gallia est in Britanniam. In hoc medio cursu est insula quae appellatur Mona; complures praeterea minores subjectae insulae existimantur; de quibus insulis nonnulli scripserunt, dies continuos xxx sub bruma esse noctem.

Nos nihil de eo percontationibus reperiebamus, nisi certis ex aqua mensuris breviores esse quam in continent noctes videbamus. Hujus est longitudo lateris, ut fert illorum opinio, dccc milium. Tertium est contra septentriones, cui parti nulla est objecta terra; sed ejus angulus lateris maxime ad Germaniam spectat. Hoc milia passuum dccc in longitudinem esse existimatur. Ita omnis insula est in circuitu vicies centum milium passuum.

14. Ex his omnibus longe sunt humanissimi qui Cantium incolunt (quae regio est maritima omnis), neque multum a Gallica differunt consuetudine. Interiores plerique frumenta non serunt, sed lacte et carne vivunt, pellibusque sunt vestiti. Omnes vero se Britanni vitro inficiunt, quod caeruleum efficit colorem, atque hoc horridiores sunt in pugna aspectu; capilloque sunt promisso, atque omni parte corporis rasa praeter caput et labrum superius. 4 Uxores habent deni duode-nique inter se communes, et maxime fratres cum fratribus, parentesque cum liberis; sed qui sunt ex his nati, eorum habentur liberi, quo primum virgo quaeque deducta est.

15. Equites hostium essedariique acriter proelio cum equitatu nostro in itinere conflixerunt, [ita] tamen ut nostri omnibus partibus superiores fuerint atque eos in silvas collesque compulerint; sed, compluribus inter-fectis, cupidius insecuti, nonnulllos ex suis amiserunt.
2 At illi, intermisso spatio, imprudentibus nostris atque occupatis in munitione castrorum, subito se ex silvis ejecerunt, impetuque in eos facto qui erant in statione pro castris collocati, acriter pugnaverunt; 3 duabusque missis subsidio cohortibus a Caesare, atque his primis legionum duarum, cum hae, perexiguo intermesso [loci] spatio inter se, constitissent, novo genere pugnae perterritis nostris, per medios audacissime perruperunt, seque inde incolumes receperunt. 4 Eo die Q. Laberius Durus tribunus militum interficitur. Illi, pluribus submissis cohortibus, repelluntur.

16. Toto hoc in genere pugnae, cum sub oculis omnium ac pro castris dimicaretur, intellectum est nostros, propter gravitatem armorum, quod neque inesqui cedentes possent neque ab signis discedere auderent, minus aptos esse ad hujus generis hostem; 2 equites autem magno cum periculo dimicare, propterea quod illi etiam consulto plerumque cederent, et cum paulum ab legionibus nostros removissent, ex essedis desilirent et pedibus dispari proelio contenderent. 3 Equestris autem proelii ratio et cedentibus et inequentibus par atque idem periculum inferebat. 4 Accedebat huc, ut nunquam conferti sed rari magnisque intervallis proliarentur, stationesque dispositas haberent, atque alios Caesar crosses the Thames.

19. Cassivellaunus, ut supra demonstravimus, omni deposita spe contentionis, dimissis amplioribus copiis, milibus circiter quattuor essedariorum relictis, itinera nostra servabat; paulumque ex via excedebat, locisque impeditis ac silvestribus sese occultabat, atque iis re-gionibus quibus nos iter facturos cognoverat pecora atque homines ex agris in silvas compellebat; et cum equitatus noster liberius praedandi vastandique causa se in agros ejecerat, omnibus viis semitisque essedarios ex silvis emittebat; et magno cum periculo nostrorum equitum cum iis confligebat, atque hoc metu latius vagari prohibebat. 3 Relinquebatur ut neque longius ab agmine legionum discedi Caesar pateretur, et tantum in agris vastandis incendiisque faciendis hostibus nocere-tur, quantum labore atque itinere legionarii milites efficere poterant.

20. Interim Trinobantes, prope firmissima earum regionum civitas, ex qua Mandubracius adulescens, Cae-saris fidem secutus, ad eum in continentem Galliam venerat,—cujus pater [Imanuentius] in ea civitate regnum obtinuerat, interfectusque erat a Cassivellauno; ipse fuga mortem vitaverat,—legatos ad Caesarem mittunt, pollicenturque sese ei dedituros atque imperata facturos: petunt ut Mandubracium ab injuria Cassivellauni defendat, atque in civitatem mittat, qui præsit imperiumque obtineat. 3 His Caesar imperat obsides XL frumentum-que exercitui, Mandubraciumque ad eos mittit. Illi imperata celeriter fecerunt, obsides ad numerum fru-mentumque miserunt.

nostrorum impetum non tulerunt, seseque alia ex parte oppidi ejecerunt. 4 Magnus ibi numerus pecoris repertus; multique in fuga sunt comprehensi atque interfeci.

22. Dum haec in his locis geruntur, Cassivellaunus ad Cantium, quod esse ad mare supra demonstravimus, quibus regionibus quattuor reges praerant, Cingetorix, Carvilius, Taximagulus, Segovax, nuntios mittit, atque his imperat uti, coactis omnibus copiis, castra navalia de improviso adoriantur atque oppugnent. 2 Ii cum ad castra venissent, nostri, eruptione facta, multis eorum interfecis, capto etiam nobili duce Lugotorige, suos incolumnes reduxerunt. 3 Cassivellaunus, hoc proelio nuntiato, tot detrimentis acceptis, vastatis finibus, maxime etiam permutus defectione civitatum, legatos per Atrebatem Communium de deditione ad Caesarem mittit. 4 Caesar cum constituisset hiemare in continentii propter repentinos Galliae motus, neque multum aestatis superesset, atque id facile extrahi posse intellegaret, obsides imperat; et quid in annos singulos vectigalis populo Romano Britannia penderet constituit. 5 Interdicit atque imperat Cassivellauno, ne Mandubracio neu Trinobantibus bellum faciat.

23. Obsidibus acceptis, exercitum reducit ad mare, naves invenit refectas. His deductis, quod et captivo rum magnum numerum habebat, et nonnullae temperstate deperierant naves, duobus commeatibus exercitum reportare instituit. 2 Ac sic accidit, uti ex tanto navium numero, tot navigationibus, neque hoc neque superiore anno ulla omnino navis quae milites portaret desideraret; 3 at ex iis quae inanes ex continenti ad eum remitterentur, et prioris commeatus expositis militibus, et quas postea Labienus faciendas curaverat numero Lx, perpaucae locum caperent; reliquae fere omnes reicerentur. 4 Quas cum aliquamdiu Caesar frustra exspectasset, ne anni tempore a navigatione excluderetur, quod aequinoctium suberat, necessario angustius milites collocavit, ac, summa tranquillitate consecuta, secunda inita cum solvisset vigilia, prima luce terram attigit, omnesque incolumes naves perduxit.

24. Subductis navibus concilioque Gallorum Samarobriviae peracto, quod eo anno frumentum in Gallia propter siccitates angustius provenerat, coactus est aliter ac superioribus annis exercitum in hibernis collocare, legionesque in plures civitates distribuere: 2 ex quibus unam in Morinos ducendam C. Fabio legato dedit; alteram in Nervios Q. Ciceroni; tertiam in Esuvios L. Roscio; quartam in Remis cum T. Labieno in confinio Treverorum hiemare jussit; tres in Belgis collocavit: his M. Crassum quaestorem et L. Munatium Plancum et C. Trebonium legatos praeficit. 3 Unam legionem, quam proxime trans Padum conscripterat, et cohortes quinque in Eburones, quorum pars maxima est inter Mosam ac Rhenum, qui sub imperio Ambiorigis et Catuvolci erant, misit. 4 His militibus Q. Titurium Sabinum et L. Aurunculeium Cottam legatos praesesse jussit. Ad hunc modum distributis legionibus, facillime inopiae frumentariae sese mederi posse existimavit.

25. Erat in Carnutibus summo loco natus Tasgetius, cujus majores in sua civitate regnum obtinuerant. Huic Caesar, pro ejus virtute atque in se benevolentia, quod in omnibus bellis singulari ejus opera fuerat usus, majorum locum restituerat. 2 Tertium jam hunc annum regnantem, inimicis multis palam ex civitate et iis auctoribus, eum interfecerunt. Defertur ea res ad Caesarem. 3 Ille veritus, quod ad plures pertinebat, ne civitas eorum impulsu deficeret, L. Plancum cum legione ex Belgio celeriter in Carnutes proficiisci jubet ibique hiemare; quorunque opera cognoverit Tasgetium interflectum, hos comprehensos ad se mittere. 4 Interim ab omnibus legatis quaestoreque, quibus legiones tradiderat, certior factus est in hiberna perventum, locumque hibernis esse munitum.

26. Diebus circiter quindecim, quibus in hiberna ventum est, initium repentini tumultus ac defectionis ortum est ab Ambiorige et Catuvolco; qui, cum ad fines regni sui Sabino Cottaequ praesto fuissent, frumentumque in hiberna comportavissent, Indutiomari Treveri nuntiis impulsi, suos concitaverunt, subitoque oppressis lignatoribus, magna manu castra oppugnatum venerunt. 2 Cum celeriter nostri arma cepissent vallumque adscendissent, atque, una ex parte Hispanis equitibus emissis, equestri proelio superiores fuissent, desperata re hostes suos ab oppugnatione reduxerunt. 3 Tum suo more clamaverunt, uti aliqui ex nostris ad colloquium prodiret; habere sese quae de re communi dicere vellent, quibus rebus controversias minui posse sperarent.

27. Mittitur ad eos colloquendi causa C. Arpineius, eques Romanus, familiaris Q. Titurii, et Q. Junius ex Hispania quidam, qui jam ante missu Caesaris ad Ambiorigem ventitare consueverat; 2 apud quos Ambiorix ad hunc modum locutus est: 'Sese pro Caesaris in se beneficiis plurimum ei confieri debere, quod ejus opera stipendio liberatus esset quod Aduatucis, finitimis suis, pendere consuesset, quodque ei et filius et fratris filius ab Caesare remissi essent quos Aduatuci, obsidum numero missos, apud se in servitute et catenis tenuissent; 3 neque id quod fecerit de oppugnatione castrorum, aut judicio aut voluntate sua fecisse, sed coactu civitatis; suaque esse ejusmodi imperia, ut non minus haberet juris in se multitudo quam ipse in multitudinem. 4 Civita porro hanc fuisse belli causam, quod repentinae Gallorum conjurationi resistere non potuerit; id se facile ex humilitate sua probare posse, quod non adeo sit imperitus rerum ut suis copiis populum Romanum se superare posse confidat. 5 Sed esse Galliae commune consilium; omnibus hibernis Caesaris oppugnandis hunc esse dictum diem, ne qua legio alterae legioni subsidio venire posset; non facile Gallos Gallis negare potuisse, præsertim cum de recuperanda communi libertate consilium initum videretur. 6 Quibus quoniam pro pietate satisfecerit, habere nunc se rationem officii pro beneficiis Caesaris; monere, orare Titurium pro hospitio, ut suae ac militiae saluti consulat. Magnam manum Germanorum conductam Rhenum transisse; hanc adfore biduo. 7 Ipsorum esse consilium, velintne prius quam finitimi sentiant, eductos ex hibernis milites aut ad Ciceronem aut ad Labienum deducere, quorum alter milia passuum circiter quinquaginta, alter paulo amplius ab iis absit. 8 Illud se polliceri et jurejurando confirmare, tutum iter per fines suos daturum; quod cum faciat, et civitati sese consulere quod hibernis levetur, et Caesari pro ejus meritis gratiam referre.' Hac oratione habita, discédit Ambiorix.

28. Arpincius et Junius quae audierunt ad legatos deferunt. Illi repentina re perturbati, etsi ab hoste ea dicebantur, tamen non neglegenda existimabant; maximeque hac re permovebantur, quod civitatem ignobilem atque humilem Eburonum sua sponte populo Romano bellum facere ausam vix erat credendum. 2 Itaque ad consilium rem referunt; magnaque inter eos existit controversia. L. Aurunculeius compluresque tribuni militiae et primorum ordinum centuriones nihil temere agendum, neque ex hibernis injussu Caesaris discendum existimabant: 3 quantasvis magnas etiam copias Germanorum sustineri posse munitis hibernis docebant; rem esse testimonio, quod primum hostium impetum, multis ultro vulneribus illatis, fortissime sustinuerint: 4 re frumentaria non premi; interea et ex proximis hibernis et a Caesare conventus subsidia; postremo, quid esse levius aut turpius, quam auctore hoste de summis rebus capere consilium?

29. Contra ea Titurius 'sero facturos' clamitabat, 'cum majores manus hostium, adjunctis Germanis, convenissent; aut cum aliquid calamitatis in proximis hibernis esset acceptum. Brevem consulendi esse occasionem: Caesarem arbitrari profectum in Italiam; neque aliter Carnutes interficiendi Tasgetii consilium fuisset capturos, neque Eburones, si ille adesset, tanta contemptione nostri ad castra venturos esse. Non hostem auctorem sed rem spectare; subesse Rhenum; magno esse Germanis dolori Ariovisti mortem et superiores nostras victorias; ardere Galliam, tot contumeliis acceptis, sub populi Romani imperium redactam, superiore gloria rei militaris extincta. Postremo, quis hoc sibi persuaderet, sine certa re Ambiorigem ad ejusmodi consilium descendisse? Suam sententiam in utramque partem esse tutam: si nihil esset durius, nullo cum periculo ad proximam legionem perventuros; si Gallia omnis cum Germanis consentiret, unam esse in celeritate positam salutem. Cottae quidem, atque eorum qui dissentirent, consilium quem habere exitum? in quo si non praesens periculum, at certe longinquaque obsidione fames esset timenda.'

30. Hac in utramque partem disputatione habita, cum a Cotta primisque ordinibus acriter resisteretur; "Vincite," inquit, "si ita vultis," Sabinus, et id clariore voce, ut magna pars militum exaudiret: "neque is sum," inquit, "qui gravissime ex vobis mortis periculo terrear: hi sapient; si gravius quid acciderit, abs te rationem reposcent; qui, si per te liceat, perendino die cum proximis hibernis conjuncti, communem cum reliquis belli casum sustineant, non rejecti et relegati longe ab ceteris aut ferro aut fame intereant."
31. Consurgitur ex consilio; comprehendunt utrumque, et orant, 'Ne sua dissensione et pertinacia rem in summum periculum deducant; facilem esse rem, seu maneant, seu proficiscantur, si modo unum omnes sentiant ac probent; contra in dissensione nullam se salutem perspicere.' 2 Res disputacione ad medium noctem perducitur. Tandem dat Cotta permutus manus; superat sententia Sabini. Pronuntiatur prima luce ituros. 3 Consumitur vigiliis reliqua pars noctis, cum sua quisque miles circumspiceret, quid secum portare posset, quid ex instrumento hibernorum relinquere cogeretur. Omnia excogitantur, quare nec sine periculo maneatur, et languore militum et vigiliis periculum augeatur. 4 Prima luce sic ex castris proficiscuntur ut quibus esset persuasum, non ab hoste sed ab homine amicissimo Ambiorige consilium datum, longissimo agmine maximisque impedimentis.

32. At hostes, posteaquam ex nocturno fremitu vigiliisque de profectione eorum senserunt, collocatis insidiis bipartito in silvis opportuno atque occulto loco, a miliibus passuum circiter duobus, Romanorum adventum exspectabant; 2 et cum se major pars agminis in magnam convallem demisisset, ex utraque parte ejus vallis subito se ostenderunt, novissimosque premere et primos prohibere ascensu, atque iniquissimo nostris loco proelium committere coeperunt.

33. Tum demum Titurius, qui nihil ante providisset, trepidare et concursare cohortesque disponere; haec tamen ipsa timide atque ut eum omnia deficere videretur; quod plerumque iis accidere consuevit, qui in ipso negotio consilium capere coguntur. 2 At Cotta, qui cogitasset haec posse in itinere accidere, atque ob eam causam profectionis auctor non fuisse, nulla in re communi saluti deerat, et in appellandis cohortandisque militibus imperatoris, et in pugna militis officia praestabat. 3 Cum propter longitudinem agminis minus facilé omnia per se obire et quid quoque loco faciendum esset providere possent, jussurunt pronuntiare ut impedimenta relinquerent atque in orbem consistere.

34. At barbaris consilium non defuit. Nam duces eorum tota acie pronuntiare jussurunt, ne quis ab loco discederet; illorum esse praedam, atque illis reservari quaecumque Romani reliquisserint; proinde omnia in victoria posita existimarent. 2 Erant et virtute et numero pugnando pares nostri; tametsi ab duce et a fortuna deserebantur, tamen omnem spem salutis in virtute ponebant; et quotiens quaeque cohors procurrerat, ab ea parte magnus numeros hostium cadebat. 3 Qua re animadversa, Ambiorix pronuntiari jubet, ut procul tela conciarint neu propius accedant, et quam in partem Romani impetum fecerint cedant; levitate armorum et cotidiana exercitacione nihil iis noceri posse: rursus se ad signa recipientes sequantur.

35. Quo praecipto ab iis diligentissime observato, cum quaeplam cohors ex orbe exesserat atque impetum fecerat, hostes velocissime refugiebant. Interim eam partem nudari necesserat, et ab latere aperto tela recipi. 2 Rursus, cum in cum locum unde erant egressi reverti coeperant, et ab iis qui cesserant et ab iis qui proximi steterant circumveniebantur; sin autem locum tenere vellent, nec virtuti locus relinquebatur neque ab tanta multitudine conjecta tela conferti vitare poterant. 3 Tamen tot incommode conflictati, multis vulneribus acceptis, resistebant; et, magna parte diei consumpta, cum a prima luce ad horam octavam pugnaretur, nihil quod ipsis esset indignum committebant. 4 Tum T. Balventio, qui superiore anno primum pilum duxerat, viro forti et magnae auctoritatis, utrumque femur tragula traicitur; Q. Lucanius, ejusdem ordinis, fortissime pugnans, dum circumvento filio subvenit, interficitur; L. Cotta legatus, omnes cohortes ordinesque adhortans, in adversum os funda vulneratur.

36. His rebus permotus Q. Titurius, cum procul Ambiorigem suos cohortantem conspexisset, interpretam suum Cn. Pompeium ad eum mittit, rogatum ut sibi militibusque parcat. 2 Ille appellatus respondit: 'Si velit secum colloqui, licere; sperare a multitudine impetrari posse, quod ad militum salutem pertineat; ipsi vero nihil nocitum iri, inque eam rem se suam fidem interponere.' 3 Ille cum Cotta saucio communicat, si videatur, pugna ut excedant et cum Ambiorige una colloquantur: sperare, ab eo de sua ac militum salute impetrare posse. Cotta se ad armatum hostem iturum negat, atque in eo perseverat.

37. Sabinus, quos in praesentia tribunos militum circum se habebat, et primorum ordinum centuriones, se sequi jubet; et, cum propius Ambiorigem accessisset, jussus arma abicere, imperatum facit, suisque ut idem faciant imperat. 2 Interim, dum de condicionibus inter se agunt, longiorque consulto ab Ambiorige instituitur sermo, paulatim circumventus interficitur. 3 Tum vero suo more victoriam conclamant, atque ululatum tollunt; impetuque in nostros facto ordines perturbant. Ibi L. Cotta pugnans interficitur cum maxima parte militum. 4 Reliqui se in castra recipiunt unde erant egressi: ex quibus L. Petrosidius aquilifer, cum magna multitudine hostium premeretur, aquilam intra vallum projecit, ipse pro castris fortissime pugnans occiditur. 5 Illi aegre ad noctem oppugnationem sustinent: noctu ad unum omnes, desperata salute, se ipsi interficiunt. Pauci, ex proelio lapsi, incertis itineribus per silvas ad T. Labienum legatum in hiberna perveniunt, atque eum de rebus gestis certiorem faciunt.

38. Hac victoria sublatus Ambiorix statim cum equitatu in Aduatucos, qui erant ejus regno finitimi, proficiscitur; neque noctem neque diem intermittit, peditatumque subseque jube. 2 Re demonstrata, Aduatucisque concitatis, postero die in Nervios pervenit, hortaturque ne sui in perpetuum liberandi, atque ulciscendi Romanos pro iis quas acceperint injuriis, occasionem dimittant; 3 interfectos esse legatos duo, magnamque partem exercitus interisse demonstrat; nihil esse negotii subito oppressam legionem quae cum Cicerone hie met interfici; se ad eam rem profitetur 15 adjutorem. Facile hac oratione Nerviis persuadet.

39. Itaque confestim dimissis nuntiis ad Ceutrones, Grudios, Levacos, Pleumoxios, Geidunnos, qui omnes sub eorum imperio sunt, quam maximas manus possunt cogunt, et de improviso ad Ciceronis hiberna advolant, 20 nondum ad eum fama de Titurii morte perlata. 2 Huic quoque accidit, quod fuit necesse, ut nonnulli milites, qui lignationis munitionisque causa in silvas discessissent, repentino equitum adventu interciperentur. 3 His circumventis, magna manu Eburones, Nervii, Aduatuci, 25 atque horum omnium socii et clientes legionem oppugnare incipiunt. Nostri celeriter ad arma concurrunt, vallum conscendunt. 4 Aegre is dies sustentatur, quod omnem spem hostes in celeritate ponebant, atque, hanc adepti victoriam, in perpetuum se fore victores confidebant.

40. Mittuntur ad Caesarem confestim ab Cicerone litterae, magnis propositis praemiis si pertulissent: obsessis omnibus viis, missi intercipiuntur. 2 Noctu ex ea materia quam munitionis causa comportaverant, turres admodum cxx excitantur incredibili celeritate; quae deesse operi videbantur perficiuntur. 3 Hostes postero die, multo majoribus coactis copiis, castra oppugnant, fossam complent. Eadem ratione qua pridie ab nostris resistitur: hoc idem deinceps reliquis fit diebus. 4 Nulla pars nocturni temporis ad laborem inter mittitur: non aegriss, non vulneratis, facultas quietis datur. 5 Quae-cumque ad proximi diei oppugnationem opus sunt, noctu comparantur: multae praeustae sudes, magnus muralium pilorum numerus instituitur; turres contabulantur; pinnae loricaeque ex cratibus attexuntur. 4 Ipse Cicero, cum tenuissima valetudine esset, ne nocturnum quidem sibi tempus ad quietem relinquebat, ut ultro militum concursu ac vocibus sibi parcere cogeretur.

41. Tunc duces principesque Nerviorum, qui aliquem sermonis aditum causamque amicitiae cum Cicerone habebant, colloqui sese velle dicunt. 2 Facta potestate, eadem quae Ambiorix cum Titurio egerat commemo-rant: omnem esse in armis Galliam, Germanos Rhenum transisse, Caesaris reliquorumque hiberna oppugnari. 3 Addunt etiam de Sabini morte; Ambiorigem ostenta-tant fidei faciendae causa. Errare eos dicunt, si quic- quam ab his praesidii sperent qui suis rebus diffidant; sese tamen hoc esse in Ciceronem populumque Romanum animo, ut nihil nisi hiberna recusent, atque hanc inveterascere consuetudinem nolint; licere illis inco-lumbus per se ex hibernis discedere, et quascumque in partes velint sine metu proficisci. 4 Cicero ad haec unum modo respondit: 'Non esse consuetudinem populi Romani, accipere ab hoste armato condicionem; si ab armis discedere velint, se adjunctore utantur legatosque ad Caesarem mittant; sperare, pro ejus justitia, quae petierint impetrautos.'

42. Ab hac spe repulsi Nervii vallo pedum novem et fossa pedum quindecim hiberna cingunt. 2 Haec et superiorum annorum consuetudine ab nobis cognov-rant, et quosdam de exercitu habebant captivos, ab his docebantur: sed nulla ferramentorum copia quae esset ad hunc usum idonea, gladiis cespitem terram exhaurire nitebantur. 3 Qua quidem ex re hominum multitudo cognosci potuit: nam minus horis tribus milium passuum xv in circuitu munitionem perfecerunt; reliquisque diebus turres ad altitudinem valli, falces testudinesque, quas idem captivi docuerant, parare ac facere coeperunt.

43. Septimo oppugnationis die, maximo coörtro vento, ferventes fusili ex argilla glandes fundis et fervefacta jacula in casas, quae more Gallico stramentis erant tectae, jacere coeperunt. 2 Hae celeriter ignem comprehenderunt, et venti magnitudine in omnem locum castrorum distulerunt. Hostes maximo clamore, sic uti parta jam atque explorata victoria, turres testudinesque agere et scalis vallum ascendere coeperunt. 3 At tanta militum virtus atque ea praesentia animi fuit ut, cum undique flamma torrerentur, maximaque telorum multitudine premerentur, suaque omnia impedimenta atque omnes fortunas conflagrare intellegerent, non modo demigrandi causa de vallo decederet nemo, sed paene ne respiceret quidem quisquam; ac tum omnes acerrime fortissimeque pugnarent. 4 Hic dies nostris longe gravissimus fuit; sed tamen hunc habuit eventum, ut eo die maximus numerus hostium vulneraretur atque interficeretur, ut se sub ipso vallo constipaverant recessumque primis ultimi non dabant. 5 Paulum quidem intermissa flamma, et quodam loco turri adacta et contingente vallum, tertiae cohortis centuriones ex eo quo stabant loco recesserunt, suosque omnes removerunt; nutu vocibusque hostes si introire vellent vocare coeperunt, quorum progresi ausus est nemo. Tum ex omni parte lapidibus conjectis deturbati, turrisque succisa est.

44. Erant in ea legione fortissimi viri centuriones, 35 qui primis ordinibus appropinquarent, T. Pulio et L.
Brave Rivalry of Pulio and Vorenus. [Cæsar

Vorenus. Hi perpetuas inter se controversias habebant quinam anteferretur, omnibusque annis de locis summis simultatibus contendebant. 2 Ex his Pulio, cum acerrime ad munitiones pugnaretur, “Quid dubitas,” inquit, “Vorene? aut quem locum tuae probandae virtutis expectas? hic dies de nostris controversiis judicabit.” 3 Haec cum dixisset, procedit extra munitiones, quaque pars hostium confertissima est visa, irrumpit. Ne Vorenus quidem tum sese vallo continet, sed omnium veritus existimationem subsequitur. 4 Mediocri spatío relictó, Pulio pilum in hostes immittit, atque unum ex multitudine procurentem traicit; quo percuso et examinato, hunc scutis protegunt, in hostem tela universi coniciunt, neque dant regrediendi facultatem. 5 Transfigitur scutum Pulioni, et verutum in balteo defigitur. Avertit hic casus vaginam, et gladium educere conanti dextram moratur manum, impeditumque hostes circumsistunt. 6 Succurrit inimicus illi Vorenus et laboranti subvenit. Ad hunc se confestim a Pulione omnis multitudo convertit; illum veruto arbitrantur occasum. 7 Gladio comminus rem gerit Vorenus, atque uno interfecto reliquos paulum propellit; dum cupidius instat, in locum dejectus inferiorum concidit. 8 Huic rursus circumvento fert subsidium Pulio, atque ambo incolumes, compluribus interfectis, summa cum laude sese intra munitiones recipiunt. 9 Sic fortuna in contentione et certamine utrumque versavit, ut alter alteri inimicus auxilio salutique esset, neque dijudicari posset uter utri virtute anteferendus videretur. 10

Quanto erat in dies gravior atque asperior oppugnatio, et maxime quod, magna parte militum confecta vulneribus, res ad paucitatem defensorum pervenerat, tanto crebriores litterae nuntiique ad Caesarem mittebantur; quorum pars deprehensa in conspectu nostrorum militum cum cruciatu necabatur. 2 Erat unus intus Nervius, nomine Vertico, loco natus honesto, qui a prima obsidione ad Ciceronem perfugerat, suamque ei fidem praestiterat. 3 Hic servo spe libertatis magnisque persuadet praemiis, ut litteras ad Caesarem deferat. Has ille in jaculo illigatas effert; et Gallus inter Gallos sineulla suspicione versatus ad Caesarem pervenit. 5 Ab eo de periculis Ciceronis legionisque cognoscitur.

46. Caesar, acceptis litteris hora circiter xi diei, statim nuntium in Bellovacos ad M. Crassum quaestorem mittit, cujus hiberna aberant ab eo milia passuum xxv; 4 jubet media nocte legionem proficisci, celeriterque ad se venire. 2 Exit cum nuntio Crassus. Alterum ad C. Fabium legatum mittit, ut in Atrebatium fines legionem adducat, qua sibi iter faciendum sciebat. 3 Scriptor Labieno si reipublicae commodo facere posset, cum legione ad fines Nerviorum veniat: reliquam partem exercitus, 15 quod paulo aberat longius, non putat exspectandam: equites circiter quadrimgentos ex proximis hibernis colligit.

47. Hora circiter tertia ab antecursoribus de Crassi adventu certior factus, eo die milia passuum viginti pro-20 cedit. 2 Crassum Samarobrivae praeficit legionemque attribuit, quod ibi impedimenta exercitus, obsides civitatum, litteras publicas, frumentumque omne quod eo tolerandae hiemis causa de vexerat, relinquebat. 3 Fabius, ut imperatum erat, non ita multum moratus, in itinere cum legione occurrit. 4 Labienus, interitu Sabini et caede cohortium cognita, cum omnes ad eum Treverorum copiae venissent, veritus, si ex hibernis fugae similem profectionem fecisset, ut hostium im-25 petum sustinere posset, praeertim quos recenti victoria 30 efferri sciret, 5 litteras Caesari remittit, quanto cum periculo legionem ex hibernis educturus esset; rem gestam in Eburonibus perscribit; docet omnes equita-35 tus peditatusque copias Treverorum tria milia passuum longe ab suis castris consedisse.

48. Caesar, consilio ejus probato, etsi opinione trium
The Gauls turn upon Caesar.

2 Venit magnis itineribus in Nerviorum fines. Ibi ex captivis cognoscit quae apud Ciceronem gerantur, quantoque in periculo res sit.

3 Tum cuidam ex equitibus Gallis magnis praemiis persuadet uti ad Ciceronem epistolam desert.

4 Hanc Graecis conscriptam litteris mittit, ne intercepta epistola nostra ab hostibus consilia cognoscantur.

5 Si adire non possit, monet ut tragulam cum epistola ad amentum deligata intra munitionem castrorum abiciat. In litteris scribit se cum legionibus profectum celeriter ad fore; hortatur ut pristinam virtutem retineat.

6 Gallus periculum veritus, ut erat praeeptum, tragulam mittit. Haec casu ad turrim adhaesit, neque ab nostris biduo animadversa, tertio die a quodam milite conspicitur; dempta ad Ciceronem defertur.

7 Ille perlectam in conventu militum recitat, maximaque omnes laetitia afficit. Tum fumi incendiorum procul videbantur, quae res omnem dubitationem adventus legionum expulit.

49. Galli, re cognita per exploratores, obsidionem reliquunt; ad Caesarem omnibus copiis contendunt: haec crant armata circiter milia sexaginta.

Cicero, data facultate, Gallum ab eodem Verticone quem supra demonstravimus repetit, qui litteras ad Caesarem referat; hunc admonet iter caute diligenterque faciat; perscribit in litteris hostes ab se discississe, omnemque ad eum multitudinem convertisse.

Quibus litteris circiter media nocte Caesar allatis, suos facit certiores, eoque ad dimicandum animo confirmat.

Postero die luce prima movet castra, et circiter milia passuum quattuor progressus, trans vallem et rivum multitudinem hostium conspicatur.

Erat magni periculi res tantulis copiis iniquo loco dimicare: tum, quoniam obsidione libera-tum Ciceronem sciebat, aequo animo remittendum de celeritate existimabat.

Consedit, et quam aequissimo

loco potest castra communit. Atque haec, etsi erant exigua per se, vix hominum milium septem, praesertim nullis cum impedimentis, tamen angustiis viarum quam maxime potest contrahit, eo consilio ut in summam contemptionem hostibus veniat. 5 Interim, speculatoribus in omnes partes dimissis, explorat quo commodo dissimine itinere valles transiri possit.

50. Eo die, parvulis equestribus proeliis ad aquam factis, utrique sese suo loco continent: Galli, quid ampliores copias quae nondum convenerant exspectabant; Caesar, si forte timoris simulatione hostes in suum locum elicere posset, ut citra vallem pro castris proelio contenderet; si id efficere non posset, ut, exploratis itineribus, minore cum periculo vallem rivumque transiret. 2 Prima luce hostium equitatus ad castra accedit, proeliumque cum nostris equitibus committit. Caesar consulto equites cedere seque in castra recipere jubet; simul ex omnibus partibus castra altiore vallo muniri, portasque obstrui, atque in his administrandis rebus quam maxime concursari et cum simulatione agi timoribus jubet.

51. Quibus omnibus rebus hostes invitati, copias traducunt, aciemque iniquo loco constituunt; nostris vero etiam de vallo deductis propius accedunt, et tela intra munitionem ex omnibus partibus coniciunt, praecogniteque circummissis pronuntiari jubent, seu quis Gallus seu Romanus velit ante horam tertiam ad se transire, sine periculo licere; post id tempus non fore potestatem. 2 Ac sic nostris contempserunt, ut, obstructis in speciem portis singulis ordinibus cespitum, quod ea non posse introrumpere videbantur, aliis vallum manu scindere, aliis fossas completere inciperent. 3 Tum Caesar, omnibus portis eruptione facta equitatuque emisso, celeriter hostes in fugam dat, sic uti omnino pugnandi causa resisteret nemo; magnumque ex iis numerum occidit, atque omnes armis exuit.
52. Longius prosequi veritus, quod silvae paludesque intercedebant, neque etiam parvulo detrimento illorum locum relinqui videbat, omnibus suis incolumibus copiis, eodem die ad Ciceronem pervenit. 2 Institutae turres, testudines, munitionesque hostium admiratur: legione producta, cognoscit non decimum quemque esse reliquum militem sine vulnere. 3 Ex his omnibus judicat rebus, quanto cum periculo et quanta cum virtute res sint administratae: Ciceronem pro ejs merito legionemque collaudat; centuriones singillatim tribunosque militum appellant, quorum egregiam fuisse virtutem testimonio Ciceronis cognoverat. 4 De casu Sabini et Cottae certius ex captivis cognoscit. Postero die contione habita, rem gestam proponit, milites consolatur et confirmat:

quod detrimentum culpa et temeritate legati sit acceptum, hoc aequiore animo ferendum docet, quod, beneficio deorum immortalium et virtute eorum expiato incommodo, neque hostibus diutina laetatio neque ipsis longior dolor relinquantur.

initium belli fieret explorabant, nocturnaque in locis desertis concilia habebant. 5 Neque ulla... Gallorum acciperet. 6 In his ab L. Roscio [quaestore], quem legiones tertiae decimae praefecerat, certior factus est, magnas Gallorum copias earum civitatum quae Armoricae appellantur oppugnandi sui causa convenisse, neque longius milia passuum octo ab hibernis suis abfuisse, sed, nuntio allato de victoria Caesaris, discessisse adeo ut fugae similis discessus videretur.

54. At Caesar, principibus cujusque civitatis ad se evocatis, alias territando cum se scire quae fierent desuntiaret, alias cohortando, magnam partem Galliae in officio tenuit. 2 Tamen Senones, quae est civitas imprimis firma et magna inter Gallos auctoritatis, Cavarinum, quem Caesar apud eos regem constituerat (cujus frater Moritasgus adventu in Galliam Caesaris, cujusque maiores regnum obtinuerant), interficere publico consilio conati, cum ille praesensisset ac profugisset, usque ad fines insecuti regno domoque expulerunt; 3 et, missis ad Caesarem satisfaciendi causa legatis, cum is omnem ad se senatum venire jussisset, dicto audientes non fuerunt. 4 Tantum apud homines barbaros valuit esse aliquos repertos principes inferendi belli, tantamque omnibus voluntatem commutationem attulit, ut—praeter Haeduos et Remos, quos praecipuo semper honore Caesar habuit, alteros pro vetere ac perpetua erga populum Romanum fide, alteros pro recentibus Gallici belli officiis—nulla fere civitas fuerit non suspecta nobis. 5 Idque adeo haud scio mirandum sit, cum compluribus aliis de causis, tum maxime quod ei qui virtute belli omnibus gentibus praeferebantur, tantum se ejus opinionis desperdisse ut a populo Romano imperia perferrent, gravissime dolebant.

55. Treveri vero atque Indutiomarus totius hiemis nullum tempus intermiserunt, quin trans Rhenum legatos mitterent, civitates sollicitarent, pecunias pollicerentur, magna parte exercitus nostri interflecta, multo minorem superesse dicerent partem. 2 Neque tamen ulli civitati Germanorum persuaderi potuit ut Rhenum transiret, cum se bis expertos dicerent, Ariovisti bello, et Tencterorum transitu: non esse amplius fortunam tempataros. 3 Hac spe lapsus Indutiomarus, nihilo minus copias cogere, exercere, a finitimis equos parare, exsules damnatosque tota Gallia magnis praemiis ad se allicere coepit. Ac tantam sibi jam his rebus in Gallia auctoritatem comparaverat, ut undique ad eum legationes currerent, gratiam atque amicitiam publice privatimque peterent.

56. Ubi intellexit ultro ad se veniri, altera ex parte Senones Carnutesque conscientia facinoris instigari, altera Nervios Aduatucosque bellum Romanis parare, neque sibi voluntariorum copias defore si ex finibus suis progredi coepisset, armatum concilium indicit. 2 Hoc more Gallorum est initium belli, quo lege communi omnes puberes armati convenire consuerunt; qui ex iis novissimus venit, in conspectu multitudinis omnibus cruciatibus affectus necatur. 3 In eo concilio Cingetorigem, alterius principem factionis, generum suum, quem supra demonstravimus Caesaris secutum fidem ab eo non discessisse, hostem judicat bonaque ejus publicat. 4 His rebus confectis, in concilio pronuntiat, accessitum se a Senonibus et Carnutibus aliisque compluribus Galliae civitatibus; huc iturum per fines Remorum, eorumque agros populaturum; ac prius quam id faciat, castra Labieni oppugnaturum: quae fieri velit praecipit.

57. Labienus, cum et loci natura et manu munitissimis castris sese teneret, de suo ac legionis periculo nihil timebat; ne quam occasionem rei bene gerendae dimitteret cogitabat. 2 Itaque, a Cingetorige atque ejus propinquis oratione Indutiomari cognita, quam in concilio Rashness and Death of Indutiomarus.

58. Cum majore in dies contemptione Indutiomarus ad castra accederet, nocte una, intromissis equitibus omnium finitimarum civitatum, quos arcessendos curaverat, tanta diligentia omnes suos custodiis intra castra continuit, ut nulla ratione ea res enuntiari aut ad Treveros perferri posset. 2Interim ex consuetudine cotidiana Indutiomarus ad castra accedit, atque ibi magnam partem diei consumit; equites tela coniciunt, et magna cum contumelia verborum nostros ad pugnam evocant. Nullo ab nostris dato responso, ubi visum est sub vesperum dispersi ac dissipati discedunt. 3Subito Labienus duabus portis omnem equitatum emittit; praecipit atque interdicit, proterritis hostibus atque in fugam conjectis (quod fore sicut accidit videbat), unum omnes peterent Indutiomarum; neu quis quem prius vulneret, quam illum interfecerit, quod mora reliquorum spatium nactum illum effugere nollet: magna proponit iis qui occiderint praemia; submittit cohortes equitibus subsidio. 4Comprobat hominis consilium fortuna; et cum unum omnes peterent, in ipso fluminis vado deprehensus Indutiomarus interficitur, caputque ejus refertur in castra: redeuntes equites quos possunt consectantur atque occidunt. Hac re cognita, omnes Eburonum et Nervorum quae convenerant copiae discedunt; pauloque habuit post id factum Caesar quietiorem Galliam.
BOOK VI.

SECOND EXPEDITION INTO GERMANY.—Disturbances continue, and are evidently kept up by understanding with the Germans. Cæsar accordingly, having disarmed the Nervii, the Treveri also being defeated by Labienus, decides again to cross the Rhine (1–10). Here follows a long and interesting description of the people and customs of Gaul (11–20); and a very curious account of the Germans, with descriptions, half fabulous, of the Hercynian Wood and the wild beasts there inhabiting, the reindeer, elk, and buffalo (21–28). Finding the country mostly a wilderness, Cæsar returns to Gaul, where the force of Ambiorix is crushed, and the territory of the Eburones ravaged (29–34). A dangerous attack by the Sigambri, a German tribe from over the Rhine, is repelled by Cæsar’s advance (35–42). After inflicting military severities upon the resisting tribes, he returns to Italy, leaving the Province, as he thinks, fully subdued (43, 44).

MULTIS de causis Cæsar majorem Galliae motum exspectans, per M. Silanum C. Antistium Regi- num T. Sextium legatos delectum habere instituit: 2 simul ab Cn. Pompeio proconsule petit, quoniam ipse ad urbem cum imperio reipublicae causa remaneret, quos ex Cis- alpina Gallia consulis sacramento rogavisset, ad signa convenire et ad se proficisci juberet; 3 magni interesse etiam in reliquum tempus ad opinionem Galliae existi- mans, tantas videri Italiae facultates, ut, si quid esset in bello detrimenti acceptum, non modo id brevi tempore resarciri, sed etiam majoribus adaugeri copiis posset. 4 Quod cum Pompeius et reipublicae et amicitiae tribu- isset, celeriter confecto per suos dilectu, tribus ante exactam hiemem et constitutis et adductis legionibus, duplicatoque earum cohortium numero quas cum Q. Titurio amiserat, et celeritate et copiis docuit quid po- puli Romani disciplina atque opes possent.
2. Interfecto Indutiomaro, ut docuimus, ad ejus propinquos a Treveris imperium defertur. Illi finitimos Germanos sollicitare et pecuniam polliceri non desistunt.
Cum ab proximis impetrare non possent, ulteriores temptant. Inventis nonnullis civitatibus, jurejurando 5 inter se confirmand, obsidibusque de pecunia cavit:
Ambiorigem sibi societate et foedere adjungunt.
Quibus rebus cognitis, Caesar, cum undique bellum parari videret, Nervios, Aduatucos ac Menapios, adjunctis Cisrhenanis omnibus Germanis, esse in armis, Senones ad imperatum non venire et cum Carnutibus finitimisque civitatibus consilia communicare, a Treveris Germanos crebris legationibus sollicitari, maturius sibi de bello cogitandum putavit.

3. Itaque, nondum hieme confecta, proximis quattuor 15 coactis legionibus, de improviso in fines Nerviorum contendit, et prius quam illi aut convenire aut profugere possent, magno pecoris atque hominum numero capto atque ea praeda militibus concessa, vastatisque agris, in deditionem venire atque obsides sibi dare coegit.

2 Eo celeriter confecto negotio, rursus in hiberna legiones reductit. Concilio Galliae primo vere, uti instituerat, indicto, cum reliqui praeter Senones, Carnutes, Treverosque, venissent, initium belli ac defectionis hoc esse arbitratus, ut omnia postponere videretur, concilium 25 Lutetiam Parisiorum transfert. Confines erant hi Se-onibus, civitatemque patrum memoria conjuxerant; sed ab hoc consilio abfuisse existimabantur. Hac re pro suggestu pronuntiata, eodem die cum legionibus in Senones proficiscitur, magnisque itineribus eo pervenit.

4. Cognito ejus adventu, Acco, qui princeps ejus con-silii fuerat, jubet in oppida multitudinem convenire:
conantibus, prius quam id effici posset, adesse Romanos nuntiatur. 2 Necessario sententia desistunt, legatosque deprecandi causa ad Caesarem mittunt; adeunt per 35
Haeduos, quorum antiquitatis erat in fide civitas.
ter Caesar, petentibus Haeduis, dat veniam excusationemque accipit, quod aestivum tempus instantis belli, non quaestionis, esse arbitrabatur; obsidibus imperatis centum, hos Haeduis custodiendos tradit. Eodem Car-nutes legatos obsidesque mittunt, usi deprecatoribus Remis, quorum erant in clientela: eadem rerum responsa. Peragit concilium Caesar, equitesque imperat civitatibus.

5. Hac parte Galliae pacata, totus et mente et animo in bellum Treverorum et Ambiorigis insistit. Cavari-num cum equitatu Senonum secum proficisci jubet, ne quis aut ex hujus iracundia, aut ex eo quod meruerat odio, civitatis motus existat. His rebus constitutis, quod pro explorato habebat Ambiorigem proelio non esse concertaturum, reliqua ejus consilia animo circum-spiciebat. Erant Menapii propinqui Eburonum finibus, perpetuis paludibus silvisque muniti, qui uni ex Gallia de pace ad Caesarem legatos numquam miserant. Cum his esse hospitium Ambiorigi sciebat: item per Treveros venisse Germanis in amicitiam cognoverat. Haec prius illi detrahenda auxilia existimabat quam ipsum bello lacesseret; ne, desperata salute, aut se in Menapios abderet aut cum Transrhenanis congradi cogeretur. Hoc initio consilio, totius exercitus impedimenta ad Labium in Treveros mittit, duasque legiones ad eum proficiscii jubet; ipse cum legionibus expeditis quinque in Menapios proficiscitur. Illi, nulla coacta manu, loci praesidio freti, in silvas paludesque confugiunt suaque eodem conferunt.

6. Caesar, partitis copiis cum C. Fabio legato et M. Crasso quae store, celeriterque effectis pontibus, adit tri-partito, aedificia vicosque incendit, magno pecoris atque hominum numero potitum. Quibus rebus coacti Menapii legatos ad eum pacis petendae causa mittunt. Ille, obsidibus acceptis, hostium se habiturum numero confirmat, si aut Ambiorigem aut ejus legatos finibus suis recepissent. 3 His confirmatis rebus, Commium Atrebatem cum equitatu custodis loco in Menapiis relinquit; ipse in Treveros proficiscitur.

7. Dum haec a Caesare geruntur, Treveri, magnis coactis peditatus equitatusque copiis, Labienum cum 5 una legione quae in eorum finibus hiemaverat adoriri parabant: jamque ab eo non longius bidui via aberant, cum duas venisse legiones missu Caesaris cognoscent. 2 Positis castris a milibus passuum quindecim, auxilia Germanorum exspectare constituunt. Labienus, hostium cognito consilio, sperans temeritate eorum fore aliquam dimicandi facultatem, praesidio quinque cohortium impedimentis relicto, cum xxv cohortibus magnisque equitatu contra hostem proficiscitur; et, mille passuum intermisso spatio, castra communit. 3 Erat inter Labienum atque hostem difficili transitu flumen ripisque praeruptis. Hoc neque ipse transire habebat in animo, neque hostes transituros existimabat. Augebatur auxiliorum cotidie spe. 4 Loquitur in concilio palam: 'Quoniam Germani appropinquare dicantur, sese suas exercitusque fortunas in dubium non devocaturum, et postero die prima luce castra moturum.' 5 Celeriter haec ad hostes deferuntur, ut ex magno Gallorum equitum numero nonnullos Gallicis rebus favere natura cogebeat. 6 Labienus, noctu tribunis militum primisque ordinibus convocatis, quid sui sit consilii proponit, et, quo facilius hostibus timoris det suspicionem, majore strepitu et tumultu quam populi Romani fert consuetudo castra moveri jubet. 7 His rebus fugae similem profectionem efficit. Haec quoque per exploratores ante 30 lucem in tanta propinquitate castrorum ad hostes deferruntur.

8. Vix agmen novissimum extra munitiones processerat, cum Galli — cohortati inter se ne speratam praedam ex manibus demitterent; longum esse, perterritis Romanis, Germanorum auxilium exspectare; neque suam pati dignitatem, ut tantis copiis tam exiguum manum praesertim fugientem atque impeditam adoriri non audeant—flumen transire et iniquo loco committere proelium non dubitant. 2 Quae fore suspicatus Labienus, ut omnes citra flumen eliceret, eadem usus simulatione itineris, placide progresiebatur. 3 Tum, praemissis pa-lum impedimentis atque in tumulo quodam collocatis, “Habetis,” inquit, “milites, quam petistis faculatatem: hostem impedito atque iniquo loco tenetis: praestate eandem nobis ducibus virtutem quam saepenumber imperatori praestitistis; atque adesse illum et haec coram cernere existimate.” 4 Simul signa ad hostem converti aciemque dirigi jubet; et, paucis turmis prae-sidio ad impedimenta dimissis, reliquos equites ad latera disponit. Celeriter nostri, clamore sublato, pila in hos-tes immittunt. 5 Illi, ubi praeter spem quos fugere credebant infestis signis ad se ire viderunt, impetum modo ferre non potuerunt, ac primo concursu in fugam conjec\a{t}i proximas silvas petierunt. 6 Quos Labienus equitatu consectatus, magno numero interfecto, compluribus captis, paucis post diebus civitatem receptit. Nam Germani, qui auxilio veniebant, percepta Treve-rorum fuga, sese domum receperunt. 7 Cum his pro-pinqui Indutiomari, qui defectionis auctores fuerant, comitati eos ex civitate exsesserunt. Cingetorigi, quem ab initio permansisse in officio demonstravimus, princ-patus atque imperium est traditum.

9. Caesar, postquam ex Menapiis in Treveros venit, duabus de causis Rhenum transire constituit: quarum una erat quod auxilia contra se Treveris miserant; altera, ne ad eos Ambiorix receptum haberet. 2 His constitutis rebus, paulum supra eum locum quo ante exercitum traduxerat facere pontem instituit. Nota atque instituta ratione, magno militum studio, paucis diebus opus efficitur. 3 Firmo in Treveris ad pontem praesidio relict\o, ne quis ab his subito motus oreretur, reliquas copias equitatumque traducit.

4 Ubii, qui ante obsides dederant atque in deditionem venerant, purgandi sui causa ad eum legatos mittunt, qui doceant, neque auxilia ex sua civitate in Treveros missa, neque ab se fidem laesam:

5 petunt atque orant ut sibi parcat; ne, communi odio Germanorum, innocentes pro nocentibus poenas pendant; si amplius obsidum velit, dare pollucentur.

6 Cognita Caesar causa, reperit ab Suevis auxilia missa esse; Ubiorum satisfactionem accipit; aditus viaeque in Suevos perquirit.

10. Interim, paucis post diebus, fit ab Ubiis certior Suevos omnes in unum locum copias cogere, atque iis nationibus, quae sub eorum sint imperio, denuntiare, ut auxilia peditatus equitatusque mittant.

2 His cognitis rebus, rem frumentariam providet, castris idoneum locum deligit, Ubiis imperat ut pecora deducant, suaque omnia ex agris in oppida conferant,—sperans barbaros atque imperitos homines, inopia cibariorum adductos, ad iniquam pugnandi condicionem posse deduci; mandat ut crebros exploratores in Suevos mittant, quaeque apud eos gerantur cognoscant.

3 Illi imperata faciunt; et, paucis diebus intermissis, referunt: 'Suevos omnes, posteaquam certiores nuntii de exercitu Romanorum venerint, cum omnibus suis sociorumque copiis quas coegissent, penitus ad extremos fines se recepisse;

11. Quoniam ad hunc locum perventum est, non alienum esse videtur, de Galliae Germaniaeque moribus, et quo differant hae nationes inter sese, proponere.

2 In Gallia non solum in omnibus civitatibus atque in omnibus pagis [partibusque], sed paene etiam in singulis domibus, factiones sunt; earumque factionum principes sunt, qui summam auctoritatem eorum judicio habere existimantur, quorum ad arbitrium judiciumque summa omnium rerum consiliorumque redeat. \(^3\) Itaque ejus rei causa antiquitus institutum videtur, ne quis ex plebe contra potentiorem auxiliis egeret; suos enim quisque opprimi et circumveniri non patitur, neque, alter si faciat, ullam inter suas habet auctoritatem. \(^4\) Haec eadem ratio est in summa totius Galliae; namque omnes civitates in partes divisae sunt duas.

12. Cum Caesar in Galliam venit, alterius factionis principes erant Haedui, alterius Sequani. \(^1\) Hi, cum per se minus valerent (quod summa auctoritas antiquitus erat in Haeduis, magnaeque eorum erant clientelae), Germanos atque Ariovistum sibi adjunxerant, eosque ad se magnis jacturis polluctionibusque perduxerant. \(^2\) Proelii vero compluribus factis secundis, atque omni nobilitate Haeduorum interfecta, tantum potentia antecesserant, ut magnam partem clientium ab Haeduis ad se traducerent, obsidesque ab iis principum filios acciperent, et publice jurare cogerent nihil se contra Sequanos consiliis inituros, et partem finitimi agri per vim occupatam possiderent, Galliaeque totius principatum obtinerent. \(^3\) Qua necessitate adductus, Divitiacus, auxilliis petendi causa Romam ad Senatum profectus, infecta re redierat. \(^4\) Advenitu Caesaris facta commutatione rerum, obsidibus Haeduis redditis, veteribus clientelis restitutis, novis per Caesarem comparatis, quod hi, qui se ad eorum amicitiam aggregaverant, meliore condicione atque aequiore imperio se uti videbant, reliquis rebus eorum gratia dignitateque amplificata, Sequani principatum dimiserant. \(^5\) In eorum locum Remi successerant: quos quod adaequare apud Caesarem gratia intellegebatur, ii qui propter veteres inimicitias nullo modo cum Haeduis conjungi poterant se Remis in clientelam dicabant. \(^6\) Hos illi diligenter tuebantur: ita et novam et repente collectam auctoritatem tenebant.

13. In omni Gallia eorum hominum qui aliquo sunt numero atque honore genera sunt duo. Nam plebes paene servorum habetur loco, quae nihil audet per se, et nullo adhibetur consilio. \textsuperscript{2} Plerique, cum aut aere alieno aut magnitudine tributorum aut injuria potentiorum premuntur, sese in servitutem dicant nobilibus. In hos eadem omnia sunt jura quae dominis in servos.

3 Sed de his duobus generibus alterum est Druidum, alterum Equitum. Illi rebus divinis intersunt, sacrificia publica ac privata procurant, religiones interpretantur. \textsuperscript{4} Ad eos magnus adulescentium numerus disciplinae causa concurrît, magnoque hi sunt apud eos honore. Nam fere de omnibus controversiis publicis privatisque constitunt; et, si quod est admissum facinus, si caedes facta, si de hereditate, de finibus controversia est, idem decernunt; praemia poenasque constituunt: si qui, aut privatus aut populus, eorum decreto non stetit, sacrificiiis interdicunt. \textsuperscript{5} Haec poena apud eos est gravissima. Quibus ita est interdictum, hi numero impiorum ac sceleratorum habentur; his omnes decedunt, aditum sermonemque defugiunt, ne quid ex contagione incommodi accipiant: neque his petentibus jus redditur, neque honos ullus communicatur. \textsuperscript{6} His autem omnibus Druidibus praestest unus, qui summam inter eos habet auctoritatem. Hoc mortuo, si qui ex reliquis excellit dignitate, succedtit; aut, si sunt plures pares, suffragio Druidum, nonnunquam etiam armis de principatu contendunt. \textsuperscript{7} Hi certo anni tempore in finibus Carnutum, quae regio totius Galliae media habetur, considunt in loco consecrato: huc omnes undique qui controversias habent conveniunt, eorumque decretis judiciisque parent. \textsuperscript{8} Disciplina in Britannia reperta atque inde in Galliam translata esse existimatur; et nunc, qui diligentius eam rem cognoscere volunt, plerumque illo discendi causa proficiscuntur.

14. Druides a bello abesse consuerunt, neque tributa una cum reliquis pendunt; militiae vacationem omniumque rerum habent immunitatem. 2 Tantis excitati praemii, et sua sponte multi in disciplinam conveniunt, et a parentibus propinquis ediscere dicuntur. Itaque annos nonnulli vicenos in disciplina permanent. 3 Neque fas esse existimant ea litteris mandare, cum in reliquis fere rebus, publicis privatisque rationibus, Graecis litteris utantur. 4 Id mihi duabus de causis instituisse videntur: quod neque in vulgum disciplinam efferri velint, neque eos qui discunt, litteris confisos, minus memoriae studere,—quod fere plerisque accidit, ut praesidio litterarum diligientiam in perdiscendo ac memoriam remittant. 5 In primis hoc volunt persuadere, non interire animas, sed ab aliis post mortem transire ad alios; atque hoc maxime ad virtutem excitari putant, metu mortis neglecto. 6 Multa praeterea de sideribus atque eorum motu, de mundi ac terrarum magnitudine, de rerum natura, de deorum immortalium vi ac potestate disputant et juventuti tradunt.

15. Alterum genus est Equitum. Hi, cum est usus atque aliquod bellum incidit (quod fere ante Caesaris adventum quotannis accidere solebat, uti aut ipsi injurias inferrent aut illatas propulsarent), omnes in bello versantur; 2 atque eorum ut quisque est genere copiosisque amplissimus, ita plurimos circum se ambactos clientesque habet. Hanc unam gratiam potentiamque noverunt.

16. Natio est omnis Gallorum admodum dedita religionibus; atque ob eam causam, qui sunt affecti gravioribus morbis, quique in proelii periculisque versantur, aut pro victimis homines immolant, aut se immolaturos vovent, administrisque ad ea sacrificia Druidibus utun-tur,—quod, pro vita hominis nisi hominis vita reddatur, non posse deorum immortalium numen placari arbitrantur; publiceque ejusdem generis habent instituta sacrificia. 2 Alii immani magnitudine simulacra habent, quorum contexta viminibus membra vivis hominibus 5 complent; quibus succensis, circumventi flamma exanimantur homines. 3 Supplicia eorum qui in furto aut in latrocinio aut aliqua noxa sint comprehensi, gratiora diis immortalibus esse arbitrantur; sed, cum ejus generis copia defecit, etiam ad innocentium supplicia de- 10 scendunt.

17. Deum maxime Mercurium colunt: hujus sunt plurima simulacra; hunc omnium inventorem artium ferunt, hunc viarum atque itinerum ducem, hunc ad quaestus pecuniae mercaturasque habere vim maximam 15 arbitrantur. 2 Post hunc, Apollinem et Martem et Jovem et Minervam. De his eandem fere quam reliqua gentes habent opinionem: Apollinem morbos depellere; Minervam operum atque artificiorum initia tradere; Jovem imperium caelestium tenere; Martem bella regere. 20 3 Huic, cum proelio dimicare constituerunt, ea quae bello ceperint plerumque devovent: quem superaverunt, animalia capta immolant, reliquasque res in unum locum conserunt. 4 Multis in civitatibus harum rerum exstructos tumulos locis consecratis conspicari licet. 5 Neque 25 saepe accidit, ut neglecta quispiam religione, aut capta apud se occultare aut posita tollere auderet; gravissimumque ei rei supplicium cum cruciato constitutum est.

18. Galli se omnes ab Dite patre prognatos praedicant, idque ab Druidibus proditum dicunt. Ob eam 30 causam spatia omnis temporis non numero dierum sed noctium finiunt; dies natales et mensium et annorum initia sic observant, ut noctem dies subsequatur. 2 In reliquis vitae institutis hoc fere ab reliquis differunt, quod suos liberos, nisi cum adoleverunt, ut munus mili- 35 tiae sustinere possint, palam ad se adire non patiuntur; filiumque puerili aetate in publico in conspectu patris adsistere turpe ducunt.

19. Viri, quantas pecunias ab uxoribus dotis nomine acceperunt, tantas ex suis bonis, a estimatione facta, cum dotibus communicant. 2 Hujus omnis pecuniae conjunctim ratio habetur, fructusque servantur: uter eorum vita superarit, ad eum pars utriusque cum fructibus superiorum temporum pervenit. 3 Viri in uxores, sicut in liberos, vitae necisque habent potestatem; et cum patertfamiliae illustriore loco natus decessit, ejus propinqui conveniunt, et de morte, si res in suspicionem venit, de uxoribus in servilem modum quaestionem habent, et si compertum est, igni atque omnibus tormentis excruciatas interficiunt. 4 Funera sunt pro cultu Gallorum magnifica et sumptuosa; omniaque, quae vivis cordi fuisse arbitrantur, in ignem inferunt, etiam animalia: ac paulo supra hanc memoriam servi et clientes, quos ab iis dilectos esse constabat, justis funeribus confectis, una cremabantur.

20. Quae civitates commodius suam rem publicam administrare existimantur, habent legibus sanctum, si quis quid de republica a finitimis rumore aut fama acceperit, uti ad magistratum deferat, neve cum quo alio communicet: 2 quod saepe homines temerarios atque imperitos falsis rumoribus terreri, et ad facinus impelli, et de summis rebus consilium capere, cognitum est. 3 Magistratus quae visa sunt occultant; quaeque esse ex usu judicaverunt multitudini produnt. De republica nisi per concilium loqui non conceditur.

21. Germani multum ab hac consuetudine differunt. Nam neque Druides habent qui rebus divinis praesint, neque sacrificiiis student. 2 Deorum numero eos solos ducunt, quos cernunt et quorum aperte opibus juvantur, Solem et Vulcanum et Lunam; reliquos ne fama qui dem acceperunt. 3 Vita omnis in venationibus atque in studiis rei militaris consistit: ab parvulis labori ac duritiae student. 4 Qui diutissime impuberes permanse-runt, maximam inter suos ferunt laudem: hoc ali statu-ram, ali vires nervosque confirmari, putant. 5 Intra annum vero vicesimum feminae notitiam habuisse, in turpissimis habent rebus: cujus rei nulla est occultatio, quod et promiscue in fluminibus perluuntur, et pellibus aut parvis rhenonum tegimentis utuntur, magna corpo-ris parte nuda.

22. Agriculturae non student; majorque pars eorum victus in lacte, caseo, carne consistit. 2 Neque quis- quam agri modum certum aut fines habet proprios; sed magistratus ac principes in annos singulos gentibus cognationibusque hominum, qui una coierunt, quantum et quo loco visum est agri attribuunt, atque anno post alio transire cogunt. 3 Ejus rei multas afferunt causas: ne, assidua consuetudine capti, studium belli gerendi agricultura commutent; ne latos fines parare studeant, potentioresque humiliores possessionibus expellant; ne accuratius ad frigora atque aestus vitandos aedificent; ne qua oriatur pecuniae cupiditas, qua ex re factiones dissensionesque nascentur; ut animi aequitate plebem contineant, cum suas quisque opes cum potentissimis aequari videat.

23. Civitatibus maxima laus est, quam latissime cir-cum se vastatis finibus solitudines habere. Hoc pro-prior virtutis existimant, expulsos agris finitimos cedere, neque quemquam prope audere consistere: simul hoc se fore tutiores arbitrantur, repentinae in-curisionis timore sublato. 2 Cum bellum civitas aut illatum defendit aut infert, magistratus qui ei bello praesint, ut vitae necisque habeant potestatem, deli-guntur. 3 In pace nullus est communis magistratus, sed principes regionum atque pagorum inter suos jus dicunt, controversiasque minuunt. 4 Latrocinia nullam habent infamiam quae extra fines cujusque civitatis fiunt, atque ea juventutis exercendae ac desidiae minu-endae causa fieri praedicant.  Atque ubi quis ex principibus in concilio dixit 'se ducem fore, qui sequi velint profiteantur,' — consurgunt ii qui et causam et hominem probant, suumque auxilium pollicentur, atque ab multi-tudine collaudantur; qui ex his securti non sunt, in desertorum ac proditorum numero ducuntur, omniumque his rerum postea fides derogatur.  Hospitem violare fas non putant: qui quaque de causa ad eos venerunt, ab injuria prohibent sanctosque habent; hisque omnium domus patent, victusque communicatur.

24. Ac fuit antea tempus, cum Germanos Galli virtute superarent, ultro bella inferrent, propter hominum multitudinem agrique inopiam trans Rhenum colonias mitterent.  Itaque ea quae fertilissima Germaniae sunt loca, circum Hercyniam silvam (quam Eratostheni et quibusdam Graecis fama notam esse video, quam illi Orcyniam appeliant), Volcae Tectosages occupaverunt atque ibi consederunt.  Quae gens ad hoc tempus his sedibus sese continet, summamque habet justitiae et bellicae laudis opinionem.  Nunc quidem in eadem inopia, egestate, patientiaque Germani permanent, eodem victu et cultu corporis utuntur; Gallis autem provinciarum propinquitas et transmarinarum rerum notitia multa ad copiam atque usum largitur.  Paulatim adsuefacti superari, multisque victi proeliis, ne se quidem ipsi cum illis virtute comparant.

25. Hujus Hercyniae silvae, quae supra demonstrata est, latitudo novem dierum iter expedito patet: non enim aliter finiri potest, neque mensuras itinerum noverunt.  Oritur ab Helvetiorum et Nemetum et Rauracorum finibus, rectaque fluminis Danubii regione per-tinet ad fines Dacorum et Anartium; hinc se flectit sinistrorsus diversis ab flumine regionibus, multarumque gentium fines propter magnitudinem attingit.  Neque quisquam est hujus Germaniae, qui se [aut audisse] aut adisse ad initium ejus silvae dicat, cum dierum iter sexaginta processerit, aut quo ex loco oriatur acceperit.

4 Multaque in ea genera ferarum nasci constat, quae reliquis in locis visa non sint: ex quibus quae maxime differant ab ceteris et memoriae prodenda videantur, haec sunt.

26. Est bos, cervi figura, cujus a media fronte inter aures unum cornu exsistit, excelsius magisque directum his quae nobis nota sunt cornibus.

3 Ab ejus summo sicut palmae ramique late diffunduntur. Eadem est feminae marisque natura, eadem forma magnitudoque cornuum.

27. Sunt item, quae appellantur Alices. Harum est consimilis capris figura et varietas pellium; sed magnitudine paulo antecedunt, mutilaeque sunt cornibus, et crura sine nodis articulisque habent; neque quietis causa procumbunt, neque, si quo affictae casu conciderunt, erigere sese aut sublevare possunt.

2 His sunt arbores pro cubilibus: ad eas se applicat, atque ita paulum modo reclinatae quietem capiunt.

3 Quarum ex vestigiis cum est animadversum a venatoribus quo se recipere consuerint, omnes eo loco aut ab radicibus subruunt, aut accidunt arbores, tantum ut summa species earum stantium relinquatur.

4 Hoc cum se consuetudine reclinaverunt, infirmas arbores pondere affligunt atque una ipsae concidunt.

28. Tertium est genus eorum qui Uri appellantur. Hi sunt magnitudine paulo infra elephantos; specie et colore et figura tauri.

2 Magna vis eorum est et magna velocitas; neque homini neque ferae quam conspexerunt parcunt. Hos studiose foveis captos interficiunt.

3 Hoc se labore durant adulescentes, atque hoc genere venationis exercent; et qui plurimos ex his interfecerunt, relatis in publicum cornibus, quae sint testimonio, magnam ferunt laudem.

4 Sed adsuescere ad homines et mansuefieri ne parvuli quidem excepti possunt.

Caesar returns to Gaul.

29. Caesar, postquam per Ubios exploratores comperit Suevos sese in silvas recepisse, inopiam frumenti veritus (quod, ut supra demonstravimus, minime omnes Germani agriculturae student), constituit non progredi longius; 2 sed, ne omnino metum reditus sui barbaris tolleret, atque ut eorum auxilia tardaret, reducto exercitu, partem ultiam pontis, quae ripas Ubiorum contingebat, in longitudinem pedum ducentorum rescindit, atque in extremo ponte turrem tabulatorum quattuor constituit, praesidiumque cohortium duodecim pontis tuendi causa ponit, magnisque eum locum munitionibus firmat. 3 Ei loco praesidioque C. Volcatium Tullum adulescentem praefecit; ipse, cum maturescere frumenta inciperent, ad bellum Ambiorigis profectus, per Arduennam silvam — quae est totius Galliae maxima, atque ab ripis Rheni finibusque Treverorum ad Nervios pertinet, milibusque amplius quingentis in longitudinem patet— 4 L. Minucium Basilum cum omni equitatu praemittit, si quid celeritate itinoris atque opportunitate temporis proficere possit; monet ut ignes in castris fieri prohibeat, ne qua ejus adventus procul significatio fiat: sese confestim subsequi dicit.

30. Basilus ut imperatum est facit: celeriter contraque omnium opinem confectione itinere, multos in agris inopinantes deprehendit; eorum indicio ad ipsum Ambiorigem contendit, quo in loco cum paucis equitibus esse dicebatur. 2 Multum cum in omnibus rebus tum in re militari potest fortuna. Nam sicut magno accidit casu, ut in ipsum incautum etiam atque imparatum incideret, priusque ejus adventus ab omnibus videretur quam fama ac nuntius adferretur, sic magnae fuit fortunae, omni militari instrumento quod circum se habebat erepto, rhedis equisque comprehensis, ipsum effugere mortem. 3 Sed hoc quoque factum est, quod, aedificio circumdato silva, ut sunt fere domicilia Gallorum, qui vitandi aestus causa plerumque silvarum ac fluminum petunt propinquitates, comites familiaresque ejus angusto in loco paulisper equitum nostrorum vim sustinerunt. 4 His pugnantibus, illum in equum quidam ex suis intulit; fugientem silvae texerunt. Sic et ad subeundum periculum et ad vitandum, multum fortuna valuit.

31. Ambiorix copias suas judicione non conduxerit, quod proelio dimicandum non existimarit, an tempore exclusus et repentino equitum adventu prohibitus, cum reliquum exercitum subsequi crederet, dubium est. 2 Sed certe, dimissis per agros nuntiis, sibi quemque consulere jussit. Quorum pars in Arduennam silvam, pars in continentes paludes profugit; qui proximi Oceano fuerunt, his insulis sese occultaverunt quas aestus efficere consuerunt; multi ex suis finibus egressi se suaque omnia alienissimis crediderunt. 3 Catuvolcus, rex dimidiae partis Eburonum, qui una cum Ambiorige consilium inierat, aetate jam confectus, cum laborem aut belli aut fugae ferre non posset, omnibus precibus detestatus Ambiorigem, qui ejus consilii auctor fuisset, taxo (cujus magna in Gallia Germaniaque copia est) se examinavit.

32. Segni Condrusique, ex gente et numero Germanorum, qui sunt inter Eburones Treverosque, legatos ad Caesarem miserunt, oratum, 'ne se in hostium numero duceret, neve omnium Germanorum qui essent citra Rhenum, unam esse causam judicaret; nihil se de bello cogitavisse, nulla Ambiorigi auxilia misisse.' 2 Caesar, explorata re quaestione captivorum, si qui ad eos Eburones ex fuga convenissent ad se ut reducerentur imperavit: si ita fecissent, fines eorum se violaturum negavit. 35 nium legionum Aduatucam contulit. Id castelli nomen est. Hoc fere est in mediis Eburonum finibus, ubi Titurius atque Aurunculeius hiemandi causa consedereant. 4 Hunc cum reliquis rebus locum probarat, tum quod superioris anni munitiones integrae manebant, ut militum laborem sublevaret. 5 Praesidio impedimentis legionem quartam decimam reliquit, unam ex his tribus quas proxime conscriptas ex Italia traduxerat. 6 Ei legioni castrisque Q. Tullium Ciceronem praeficit, ducen-

33. Partito exercitu, T. Labienum cum legionibus tribus ad Oceanum versus in eas partes quae Menapios attingunt proficisci jubeat; C. Trebonium cum pari legionum numero ad eam regionem quae ad Aduatucos ad-

15 jacet depopulandam mittit; ipse cum reliquis tribus ad flumen Scaldem, quod influit in Mosam, extremasque Arduennae partes ire constituit, quo cum paucis equitis profectum Ambiorigem audiebat. 2 Discedens post diem septimum sese reversurum confirmat; quam ad diem ei legioni quae in praesidio relinquebatur debere frumentum sciebat. 3 Labienum Treboniumque hortatur, si reipublicae commodo facere possint, ad eum diem revertantur; ut, rursus communicato consilio, explora-

10 tisque hostium rationibus, aliud initium belli capere possint.

34. Erat, ut supra demonstravimus, manus certa nulla, non oppidum, non praesidium, quod se armis defenderet; sed omnes in partes dispersa multitudo. 2 Ubi cuique aut vallis abdita aut locus silvestris aut palus impedita spem praesidii aut salutis aliquam offerebat, consederat. 3 Haec loca vicinitatibus erant nota, mag-

25 namque res diligentiam requirebat, non in summa exer-citus tuenda (nullum enim poterat universis ab perterritis ac dispersis periculum accidere), sed in singulis militibus conservandis; quae tamen ex parte res ad salutem exer-

30 citus pertinebat. 4 Nam et praedae cupiditas multos
loneius evocabat, et silvae incertis occultisque itineribus confertos adire prohibebant. 5 Si negotium confici stir-pemque hominum sceleratorum interfici vellet, dimitten-daee plures manus diducendique erant milites: si continere ad signa manipulos vellet, ut instituta ratio et 5 consuetudo exercitus Romani postulabat, locus ipse erat praesidio barbaris, neque ex occulto insidiandi et dis-persos circumvenienda singulis deere audacia. 6 Ut in eajusmodi difficultatibus, quantum diligentia provideri poterat, providebatur; ut potius in nocendo aliquid praetermitteretur, etsi omnium animi ad ulciscendum ardebat, quam cum aliiqo militum detrimento nocere-tur. 7 Dimittit ad finitimas civitates nuntios Caesar: om-nes ad se vocat spe praedae ad diripiendos Eburones, ut potius in silvis Gallorum vita quam legionarius miles periclitetur; simul ut, magna multitudine circumfusa, pro tali facinore stirps ac nomen civitatis tollatur. Magnus undique numerus celeriter convenit.

35. Haec in omnibus Eburonum partibus gerebantur, diesque appetebat seipsum, quem ad diem Caesar ad impedimenta legionemque reverti constituerat. 2 Hic quantum in bello fortuna possit, et quantos adferat casus, cognosci potuit. Dissipatis ac perterriris hostibus, ut demonstravimus, manus erat nulla quae parvam modo causam timoris afferret. 3 Trans Rhenum ad Germanos pervenit fama, diripi Eburones atque ulterior omnes ad praedam evocari. 4 Cogunt equitum duo milia Sugam-bri, qui sunt proximi Rheno, a quibus receptos ex fuga Tencteros atque Usipetes supra docuimus. 5 Transeunt Rhenum navibus ratibusque, triginta milibus passuum infra eum locum ubi pons erat perfectus praesidiumque ab Caesare relictum. Primos Eburonum fines adeunt; multos ex fuga dispersos excipiunt, magno pecoris numero, cujus sunt cupidissimi barbari, potiuntur. 6 In-vitati praeda longius procedunt: non hos palus, in bello 35 latrociniisque natos, non silvae morantur. Quibus in locis sit Caesar ex captivis quaerunt; profectum longius reperiunt omnemque exercitum discississe cognoscunt.

36. Cicero (qui omnes superiores dies praeceptis Cæsaribus statim diligentia milites in castris continuisset, ac ne calonem quidem quemquam extra munitionem egredi passus esset) septimo die, diffidens de numero dierum Caesaris fidem servaturum, quod longius progressum audiebat, neque ulla de reeditu ejus fama afferebatur; 2 simul eorum permotus vocibus, qui illius patientiam paene obsessionem appellabant, siquidem ex castris egredi non liceret; nullum ejusmodi casum espectans, quo, novem oppositis legionibus maximoque equitatu, dispersis ac paene deletis hostibus, in milibus passuum tribus offendi posset,— quinque cohortes frumentatum in proximas segetes mittit, quas inter et castra unus omnino collis intererat. 3 Complures erant ex legionibus aegri relictis; ex quibus qui hoc spatio dierum convaluerant, circiter trecenti, sub vexillo una mittuntur; magna praeterea multitudo calonum, magna vis jumentorum, quae in castris subsederant, facta postestate sequitur.

37. Hoc ipso tempore et casu Germani equites interveniunt, protinusque eodem illo quo venerant cursu ab decumana porta in castra irrumpere conantur; nec prius sunt visi, objectis ab ea parte silvis, quam castris appropinquarent, usque eo ut qui sub vallo tenderent mercatores recipiendi sui facultatem non habent. 2 Inopinantes nostri re nova perturbantur, ac vix primum impetum cohors in statione sustinet. Circumfunduntur ex reliquis hostes partibus, si quem aditum reperire possent. 3 Aegre portas nostri tuentur, reliquos aditus 5 locus ipse per se munitioque defendit. Totis trepidatur castris, atque alius ex alio causam tumultus quaerit; neque quo signa ferantur neque quam in partem quisque conveniat providet. 4 Alius jam castra capta pronuntiat; alius, deleto exercitu atque imperatore, victores 10 barbaros venisse contendit; plerique novas sibi ex loco religiones fingunt, Cottaeqaeque et Titurii calamitatem, qui in eodem occiderint castello, ante oculos ponunt. 5 Tali timore omnibus perterritis, confirmatur opinio barbaris, ut ex captivo audierant, nullum esse intus praesidium. 15 Perrumpere nituntur, seque ipsi adhortantur, ne tantam fortunam ex manibus dimittant.

38. Erat aeger cum praesidio relictus P. Sextius Baclus, qui primum pilum ad Caesarem duxerat, cujus mentionem superioribus proeliiis fecimus, ac diem jam 20 quintum cibo caruerat. 2 Hic, diffusus suae atque omnium saluti, inermis ex tabernaculo prodit; videt imminere hostes atque in summo rem esse discrimine; capit arma a proximis atque in porta consistit: consequuntur hunc centuriones ejus cohortis quae in statione erat; 25 paulisper una proelium sustinent. 3 Relinquit animus Sextium, gravibus acceptis vulneribus: aegre per manus tractus servatur. Hoc spatio interposito, reliqui sese confirmant tantum, ut in munitionibus consistere audeant speciemque defensorum praebant.

39. Interim, confecta frumentatione, milites nostri clamorem exaudiunt: praecurrunt equites; quanto res sit in periculo cognoscant. 2 Hic vero nulla munitio est quae perterritos recipiat: modo conscripti atque usus militaris imperiti, ad tribunum militum centurionesque 35 ora convertunt; quid ab his praecipiatur exspectant:

nemo est tam fortis quin rei novitate perturbetur.
3 Barbari, signa procul conspicati, oppugnatione desistunt: redisse primo legiones credunt, quas longius discessisse ex captivis cognoverant: postea, despecta paucitate, ex omnibus partibus impetum faciunt.

40. Calones in proximum tumulum procurrent. Hinc celeriter dejecti se in signa manipulosque coniciunt: eo magis timidos perterrent milites. 2 Alii, cuneo facto, ut celeriter perrumpant censent, quoniam tam propinqua sint castra; et si pars aliqua circumventa ceciderit, at reliquos servari posse confidunt; alii ut in jugo consistant atque eundem omnes ferant casum. 3 Hoc veteres non probant milites, quos sub vexillo una profectos docuimus. Itaque inter se cohortati, duce C. Trebonio, 15 equite Romano, qui eis erat praepositus, per medios hostes perrumpunt, incolumesque ad unum omnes in castra perveniunt. 4 Hos subsecuti calones equitesque eodem impetu militum virtute servantur. At ii qui in jugo constiterant, nullo etiam nunc usu rei militaris percepto, neque in eo quod probaverant consilio permanere, ut se loco superiore defenderent, neque eam quam prodesse aliis vim celeritatemque viderant imitari potuerunt; sed se in castra recipere conati, iniquum in locum demiserunt. 5 Centuriones, quorum nonnulli ex inferiores ordinibus reliquarum legionum virtutis causa in superiores erant ordines hujus legionis traducti, ne ante partam rei militaris laudem amitterent, fortissime pugnantes conciderunt. 6 Militum pars, horum virtute submotis hostibus, praeter spem incolunmis in castra pervenit; pars a barbaris circumventa periiit.

41. Germani, desperata expugnatione castrorum, quod nostros jam constitisse in munitionibus videbant, cum ea praeda quam in silvis deposuerant trans Rhenum sese receperunt. 2 Ac tantus fuit etiam post discessum hostium terror, ut ea nocte, cum C. Volusenus missus cum equitatu ad castra venisset, fidem non faceret adesse cum incolumi Caesarem exercitu. 3 Sic omnino animos timor praeoccupaverat, ut, paene alienata mente, deletis omnibus copiis, equitatum tantum se ex fuga recepisse dicerent, neque incolumi exercitu Germanos castra oppugnaturus fuisset contenderent. Quem timorem Cae- 5 saris adventus sustulit.

42. Reversus ille,—eventus belli non ignorans, unum quod cohortes ex statione et praesidio essent emissae questus, ne minimo quidem casu locum relinqui debuisse, —multum fortunam in repente hostium adventu potuisse judicavit; multo etiam amplius, quod paene ab ipso vallo portisque castrorum barbaros avertisset. 2 Quorum omnium rerum maxime admirandum videbatur, quod Germani, qui eo consilio Rhenum transierant ut Ambiorigis fines depopularentur, ad castra Romanorum 15 delati, optatissimum Ambiorigi beneficium obtulerunt.

43. Caesar, rursus ad vexandos hostes profectus, magno coacto numero ex finitimis civitatibus, in omnes partes dimittit. 2 Omnes vici atque omnia aedificia quae quisque conspexerat incendebantur; praeda ex omnibus locis agebatur; frumenta non solum tanta multitudine jumentorum atque hominum consumebantur, sed etiam anni tempore atque imbribus procubuerant; ut, si qui etiam in praesentia se occultasset, tamen his, deducto exercitu, rerum omnium inopia pereundum videretur. 25 3 Ac saepe in eum locum ventum est, tanto in omnes partes diviso equitatu, ut modo visum ab se Ambiorigem in fuga circumspicerent captivi, nec plane etiam abisse ex conspectu contenderent; ut, spe consequendi illata atque infinito labore suscepto, qui se summam ab Cae- 30 sare gratiam inituros putarent, paene naturam studio vincerebant, semperque paulum ad summam felicitatem defuisse videretur; 4 atque ille latebris aut saltibus se eriperet; et noctu occultatus alias regiones partesque peteret, non majore equitum praesidio quam quattuor, 35 quibus solis vitam suam committere audebat.
44. Tali modo vastatis regionibus, exercitum Caesar duarum cohortium damno Durocortorum Remorum reducit; concilioque in eum locum Galliae indicto, de conjuratione Senonum et Carnutum quaestionem habere instituit, et de Accone, qui princeps ejus consilii fuerat, graviore sententia pronuntiata, more majorum supplicium sumpsit. Nonnulli judicium veriti profugerunt: quibus cum aqua atque igni interdixisset, duas legiones ad fines Treverorum, duas in Lingonibus, sex reliquas in Senonum finibus Agendici in hibernis collocavit; frumentoque exercitui proviso, ut instituerat, in Italian ad conventus agendos profectus est.
BOOK VII.

Uprising of Gaul under Vercingetorix.—News of tumults in Rome following the murder of Clodius move the Gauls to another effort for independence: their rising begins in the south (Auvergne) under Vercingetorix (1-5). Rapid and perilous march of Cæsar upon the Arverni (6-8). Difficulties of his advance; he crosses the Loire (9-11); he captures several towns and advances upon Avaricum (Bourges), which is hard pressed by the Gauls (12-19). Suspicions against Vercingetorix, who is enthusiastically acquitted by his countrymen (20, 21). The siege and storming of Avaricum (23-28). Vercingetorix gallantly maintains the war (29-31). Cæsar composes troubles arising among the Ædui, and lays siege to Gergovia (32-36). Appeal of Litavicus to the Ædui: they submit to Cæsar, and Litavicus takes flight (37-40). Attack on the Roman camp at Gergovia; new troubles among the Ædui (41-43). Cæsar attempts the storming of Gergovia, but is repelled, and raises the siege (44-53). Actions in central Gaul; revolt of the Ædui, and able conduct of Labienus (54-62). Vercingetorix is recognized chief throughout Gaul; but is worsted by the Roman and German cavalry, and takes refuge in Alesia, whence he calls for a general levy of the Gauls (63-71). Siege and distress of Alesia; relief is sent to the besieged, but repulsed by Cæsar (72-80). The Gauls attack the Roman camp on both sides, and a desperate struggle ensues; they are at length wholly subdued, and Vercingetorix surrenders (81-89). The pacification of Gaul is completed by Cæsar’s officers (90).

QUIETA Gallia, Caesar, ut constituerat, in Italiam ad conventus agendos proficiscitur. Ibi cognoscit de Clodii caede; senatusque consulto certior factus ut omnes juniores Italiae conjurarent, delectum tota provincia habere instituit. 2 Eae res in Galliam Trans-alpinam celeriter perferuntur. Addunt ipsi et affingunt rumoribus Galli (quod res poscere videbatur) retineri urbano motu Caesarem, neque in tantis dissensionibus ad exercitum venire posse. 3 Hac impulsi occasione, qui jam ante se populi Romani imperio subjectos dolerent, liberius atque audacius de bello consilia inire incipient. 4 Indictis inter se principes Galliae conciliis silvestribus ac remotis locis, queruntur de Acconis morte; posse hunc casum ad ipsos recidere demonstrant; miserantur communem Galliae fortunam; omnibus pollicitationibus ac praemiis deposcunt qui belli initium faciant, et sui capitis periculo Galliam in libertatem vindicent. 5 Im-primis rationem esse habendam dicunt, priusquam eorum clandestina consilia efferantur, ut Caesar ab exercitu intercludatur. 6 Id esse facile, quod neque legiones audeant absente imperatore ex hibernis egredi, neque imperator sine praesidio ad legiones pervenire possit; postremo, in acie praestare interfici, quam non veterem belli gloriam libertatemque quam a majoribus acceperint recuperare.

2. His rebus agitatis, profitentur Carnutes se nullum periculum communis salutis causa recusare, principesque ex omnibus bellum facturos pollicerent; 2 et, quoniam in praesentia obsidibus cavere inter se non possint, ne res efferatur, ut jurejurando ac fide sanciatur petunt, collatis militaribus signis (quo more eorum gravissima caeremonia continetur), ne, facto initio belli, ab reliquis deserantur. 3 Tum, collaudatis Carnutibus, dato jurejurando ab omnibus quiaderant, tempore ejus rei constituto, ab concilio disceditur.

3. Ubi ea dies venit, Carnutes, Cotuato et Conetodunno ducibus, desperatis hominibus, Genabum signo data concurrunt, civesque Romanos, qui negotiandi causa ibi constiterant, in his C. Fufium Citam, honestum equitem Romanum, qui rei frumentariae jussu Caesaris praerat, interficiunt bonaque eorum diripiunt. 2 Celeriter ad omnes Galliae civitates fama perfertur. Nam ubi-cumque major atque illustrior incidit res, clamore per agros regionesque significant; hunc alii deinceps ex-cipiunt et proximis tradunt: ut tum accidit. 3 Nam quae Genabi oriente sole gesta essent, ante primam confectam vigiliam in finibus Arvernorum audita sunt; quod spatum est milium passuum circiter clx.

4. Simili ratione ibi Vercingetorix, Celtilli filius, Arvernus, summae potentiae adulescens,—cujus pater principatum Galliae totius obtinuerat, et ob eam causam, quod regnum appetebat, ab civitate erat interfectus,—convocatis suis clientibus, facile incendit. 2 Cognito ejus consilio, ad arma concurritur. Prohibetur ab Gobannitione, patruo suo, reliquisque principibus, qui hanc temptandam fortunam non existimabant; expellitur ex oppido Gergovia: non destitit tamen, atque in agris habet delectum egentium ac perditorum. 3 Hac coacta manu, quoscumque adit ex civitate, ad suam sententiam perducit; hortatur ut communis libertatis causa arma capiant; magnisque coactis copiis, adversarios suos, a quibus paulo ante erat ejectus, expellit ex civitate. 4 Rex ab suis appellatur. Dimittit quoque versus legationes; obtestatur ut in fide maneant. 5 Celeriter sibi Senones, Pari- sios, Pictones, Cadurcos, Turunos, Aulercos, Lemovices, Andos, reliquosque omnes qui Oceanum attingunt, adjungit: omnium consensu ad eum defertur imperium. 6 Qua oblata potestate, omnibus his civitatibus obsides imperat; certum numerum militum ad se celeriter adduci jubet; armorum quantum quaeque civitas domi, quodque ante tempus efficiat, constituit. 7 Imprimis equitatiu studet; summae diligentiae summam imperii severitatem addit; magnitudine supplicii dubitantes cogit: nam, majore commisso delicto, igni atque omnibus tormentis necat; leviore de causa, auribus desectis aut singulis effossis oculis, domum remittit, ut sint reliquis documento, et magnitudine poenae perterreant alios.

5. His suppliciiis celeriter coacto exercitu, Lucterium Cadurcum, summae hominem audaciae, cum parte copiarum in Rutenos mittit; ipse in Bituriges profiscitur.
Ejus adventu Bituriges ad Haeduos (quorum erant in fide) legatos mittunt subsidium rogatum, quo facilius hostium copias sustinere possint. Haedui de consilio legatorum, quos Caesar ad exercitum reliquerat, copias equitatus peditatusque subsidio Biturigibus mittunt. Qui cum ad flumen Ligerim venissent, quod Bituriges ab Haeduis dividit, paucos dies ibi morati, neque flumen transire ausi, domum revertuntur; legatisque nostris renuntiant, se Biturigum perfidiam veritos revertisse, quibus id consiliu fuisse cognoverint, ut, si flumen transissent, una ex parte ipsi, altera Arverni se circumseisterent.

Id eane de causa quam legatis pronuntiarunt, an perfidia adducti secerint, quod nihil nobis constat, non videtur pro certo esse proponendum. Bituriges, eorum discessu, statim cum Arvernis junguntur.

His rebus in Italiam Caesari nuntiatis, cum jam ille urbanas res virtute Cn. Pompeii commodiore in statum pervenisse intellegaret, in Transalpinam Galliam profectus est. Eo cum venisset, magna difficultate afficiebatur, qua ratione ad exercitum pervenire posset.

Nam si legiones in Provinciam arcesseret, se absentem in itinere proelio dimicaturas intellegebat: si ipse ad exercitum contenderet, ne iis quidem eo tempore qui quieti viderentur suam salutem recte committi videbat.

Interim Lucterius Cadurcus, in Rutenos missus, eam civitatem Arvernis conciliat. Progressus in Nitobriges et Gabalos, ab utrisque obsides accipit, et, magna coacta manu, in Provinciam, Narbonem versus, eruptionem facere contendit. Qua re nuntiata, Caesar omnibus consiliis antevertendum existimavit, ut Narbonem proficisceretur. Eo cum venisset, timentes confirmat, praesidia in Rutenis provincialibus, Volcis Arecomicis, Tolosatibus, circumque Narbonem, quae loca hostibus erant finitima, constituit; partem copiarum ex Provincia, supplementumque quod ex Italia adduxerat in Helvios, qui fines Arvernorum contingunt, convenire jubet.
8. His rebus comparatis, represso jam Lucterio et remoto, quod intrare intra praesidia periculosum putabat, in Helvios proficiscitur. 2 Etsi mons Cevenna, qui Arvernos ab Helviis discludit, durissimo tempore anni iltissima nive iter impediebat; tamen, discussa nive sex in altitudinem pedum, atque ita viis patefactis, summo militum sudore ad fines Arvernorum pervenit. 3 Quibus oppressis inopinantibus, quod se Cevenna ut muro munitos existimabant, ac ne singulari quidem umquam homini eo tempore anni semitae patuerant, equitibus 10 imperat, ut quam latissime possint vagentur, et quam maximum hostibus terrorem inferant. 4 Celeriter haec fama ac nuntiiis ad Vercingetorigem perferuntur; quem perterriti omnes Arverni circumsistunt, atque obsecrant ut suis fortunis consulat, neve ab hostibus diripiantur; 15 praesertim cum videat omne ad se bellum translatum. 5 Quorum illæ precibus permotus, castra ex Biturigibus movet in Arvernos versus.

9. At Caesar, biduum in iis locis moratus, quod haec de Vercingetorige usu Ventura opinione praeeperat, per 20 causam supplementi equitatusque cogendi ab exercitu discedit; Brutum adulescentem his copiis praeficit; hunc monet ut in omnes partes equites quam latissime pervagentur; daturum se operam ne longius triduo ab castris absit. 2 His constitutis rebus, suis inopinantibus, 25 quam maximis potest itineribus Viennam pervenit. 3 Ibi nactus recentem equitatum, quem multis ante diebus eo praemiserat, neque diurno neque nocturno itinere intermissos, per fines Haeduorum in Lingones contendit, ubi duae legiones hiemabant; ut, si quid etiam de sua 30 salute ab Haeduis iniretur consilii, celeritate praecurreret. 4 Eo cum pervenisset, ad reliquas legiones mittit, priusque omnes in unum locum cogit quam de ejus adventu Arvernis nuntiari posset. 5 Hac re cognita, Vercingetorix rursus in Bituriges exercitum reducit, atque 35 inde profectus Gorgobinam, Boiorum oppidum, quos ibi Helvetico proelio victos Caesar collocaverat Haeduuisque attribuerat, oppugnare instituit.

10. Magnam haec res Caesari difficultatem ad consilium capiendum afferebat: si reliquam partem hiemis uno loco legiones contineret, ne, stipendiariis Haedorum expugnatis, cuncta Gallia deficeret, quod nullum amicis in eo praessidium videretur positum esse: si maturius ex hibernis educeret, ne ab re frumentaria duris subvectionibus laboraret. 2 Praestare visum est tamen omnes difficultates perpeti, quam, tanta contumelia accepta, omnium suorum voluntates alienare. 3 Itaque cohortatus Haeduos de supportando commeatu, praemitit ad Boios, qui de suo adventu doceant, hortenturque ut in fide maneant, atque hostium impetum magno animo sustineant. 4 Duabus Agedici legionibus atque impedimentis totius exercitus relictis, ad Boios proficiscitur.

11. Altero die, cum ad oppidum Senonum Vellaunodunum venisset, ne quem post se hostem relinqueret, quo expeditiore re frumentaria uteretur, oppugnare instituit, idque biduo circumvallavit; tertio die, missis ex oppido legatis de deditione, arma conferri, jumenta produci, sexcentos obsides dari, jubet: ea qui conficeret, C. Trebonium legatum relinquit. 2 Ipse, ut quam primum iter faceret, Genabum Carnutum proficiscitur; qui, tum primum allato nuntio de oppugnatione Vellaunoduni, cum longius eam rem ductum iri existimarent, praessidium Genabi tuendi causa, quod eo mitterent, comparabant. 3 Huc biduo pervenit. Castris ante oppidum positis, dei tempore exclusus in posterum oppugnationem differt, quaeque ad eam rem usui sint militibus imperat; et, quod oppidum Genabum pons fluminis Ligeris continebat, veritus ne noctu ex oppido profugerent, duas legiones in armis excubare jubet. 4 Genabenses, paulo ante medium noctem silentio ex oppido egressi, flumen transire coeperunt. 5 Qua re per exploratores nuntiata, Caesar legiones, quas expeditas esse jusserat, portis incensis, intromittit atque oppido potitur, perpau-cis ex hostium numero desideratis quin cuncti vivi cape-rentur, quod pontis atque itinerum angustiae multitudinis fugam intercluserant. 6 Oppidum diripit atque incendit, 5 praedam militibus donat; exercitum Ligerem traducit, atque in Biturigum fines pervenit.

12. Vercingetorix, ubi de Caesaris adventu cognovit, oppugnatione destitit atque obviam Caesari proficiscitur.
Ille oppidum Biturigum positum in via Noviodunum 10 oppugnare instituerat. 2 Quo ex oppido cum legati ad eum venissent, oratum ut sibi ignosceret suaque vitae consuleret, ut celeritate reliquas res conficeret qua pleraque erat consecutus, arma conferri, equos produci, obsides dari, jubet. 3 Parte jam obsidum tradita, cum reliqua 15 administrantur, centurionibus et paucis militibus in-tromissis qui arma jumentaque conquirerent, equitatus hostium procul visus est, qui agmen Vercingetorigis antecesserat. 4 Quem simul atque oppidani conspexere-runt atque in spem auxilii venerunt, clamore sublato, 20 arma capere, portas claudere, murum compleere coepe-runt. 5 Centuriones in oppido, cum ex significatione Gallorum novi aliquid ab his iniri consilii intellexissent, glaudiiis directis, portas occupaverunt suosque omnes incolumes receperunt.

13. Caesar ex castris equitatum educi jubet, proeliumque equestre committit: laborantibus jam suis Germanos equites circiter cccc submittit, quos ab initio habere secum instituerat. 2 Eorum impetum Galli sustinere non potuerunt, atque in fugam conjeci, multis amissis, 30 se ad agmen receperunt; quibus profligatis, rursus oppidani perterriti comprehensos eos, quorum opera plebem concitatam existimabant, ad Caesarem perduxerunt sese-que ei dediderunt. 3 Quibus rebus confectis, Caesar ad oppidum Avaricum, quod erat maximum munitissimumque in finibus Biturigum atque agri fertilissima regione, profectus est; quod, eo oppido recepto, civitatem Biturigum se in potestatem redacturum confidebat.

14. Vercingetorix, tot continuis incommodis Vellau noduni, Genabi, Novioduni acceptis, suos ad concilium convocat. 2 Docet, 'longe alia ratione esse bellum gerendum atque antea gestum sit; omnibus modis huic rei studendum, ut pabulatione et commeatu Romani prohibeantur: id esse facile, quod equitatu ipsi abundant, et quod anni tempore subleventur; pabulum secari non posse; necessario dispersos hostes ex aedificiis petere: hos omnes cotidie ab equitibus deleri posse. 3 Praeterea, salutis causa, rei familiaris commoda neglegenda; vicos atque aedificia incendi oportere hoc spatio [a Boia] quoque versus, quo pabulandi causa adire posse videantur. 4 Harum ipsis rerum copiam suppetere, quod quorum in finibus bellum geratur, eorum opibus subleventur. Romanos aut inopiam non latus, aut magnus periculo longius ab castris processuros; neque interesse, ipsosne interficient impedimentisne exuant, quibus amissis bellum geri non possit. 5 Praeterea, oppida incendi oportere quae non munitione et loci natura ab omni sint periculo tuta: neu suis sint ad detractandam militiam receptacula, neu Romanis proposita ad copiam commeatus praedamque tollendam. 6 Haec si gravia aut acerba videantur, multo illa gravius aestimare, liberos, conjuges in servitutem abstrahi, ipsos interfici; quae sit necesse accidere vicis.'

15. Omnium consensu hac sententia probata, uno die amplius xx urbes Biturigum incenduntur. Hoc idem fit in reliquis civitatibus. 2 In omnibus partibus incendia conspiciuntur; quae etsi magno cum dolore omnes ferebant, tamen hoc sibi solatii proponebant, quod se, prope explorata victoria, celeriter amissa recuperaturas confidebant. 3 Deliberatur de Avarico in communi concilio, incendi placeret an defendi. 4 Procumbunt omnibus Gallis ad pedes Bituriges, ne pulcherrimam prope to-tius Galliae urbem, quae praesidio et ornamento sit civitati, suis manibus succedere cogentur; facile se loci natura defensuros dicunt, quod, prope ex omnibus partibus flumine et palude circumdata, unum habeat et perangustum aditum. 5 Datur petentibus venia, dissuadente primo Vercingetorige, post concedente, et precibus ipserum et misericordia volgi. Defensores oppido idonei deliguntur.

16. Vercingetorix minoribus Caesarem itineribus subsequit, et locum castris deligit paludibus silvisque munitum, ab Avarico longe milia passuum xvi. 2 Ibi per certos exploratores in singula diei tempora quae ad Avaricum agerentur cognoscerebat, et quid fieri vellet imperabat. 3 Omnes nostras pabulationes frumentationesque observabat, dispersosque, cum longius necessario procederent, adoribatur magnoque incommodo afficiabat; etsi, quantum ratione provideri poterat, ab nostris occurrebatur, ut incertis temporibus diversisque itineribus iretur.

17. Castris ad eam partem oppositi Caesar, quae intermissa a flumine et a palude aditum, ut supra diximus, angustum habeat, aggerem apparare, vineas agere, turres duas constituere coepit: nam circumvallare loci natura prohibebat. 2 De re frumentaria Boios atque Haeduos adhortari non destitit: quorum alteri, quod 25 nullo studio agebant, non multum adjuvabant; alteri non magnis facultatibus, quod civitas erat exigua et infirma, celeriter quod habuerunt consumpserunt. 3 Summa difficultate rei frumentariae affecto exercitu, tenuitae Boiorum, indiligentia Haedorum, incendiis aedificiorum, — usque eo ut complures dies frumento milites carerint, et, pecore e longinquioribus vicis adacto, extremam famem sustentarent, — nulla tamen vox est ab iis audita populi Romani majestate et superioribus victoriis indigna. 4 Quin etiam Caesar cum in opere singulas legiones appellaret, et, si acerbius inopiam ferrent, se dimissurum oppugnationem diceret, universi ab eo ne id faceret petebant: 5 'sic se complures annos, illo imperante, meruisse, ut nullam ignominiam acciperent, nusquam infecta re discederent; hoc se ignominiae laturos loco, si inceptam oppugnationem reliquissent: 6 praestare omnes perferre acerbitates quam non civibus Romanis, qui Genabi perfidia Gallorum interissent, parentarent.' Haec eadem centurionibus tribunisque militum mandabant, ut per eos ad Caesarem deferrentur.

18. Cum jam muro turres appropinquassent, ex captivis Caesar cognovit Vercingetorigem, consumpto pabulo, castra movisse propius Avaricum, atque ipsum cum equitatu expeditisque, qui inter equites proeliari consuissent, insidiarum causa eo propectum, quo nostros postero die pabulatum venturos arbitraretur. 2 Quibus rebus cognitis, media nocte silentio profectus ad hostium castra mane pervenit. 3 Illi, celeriter per exploratores adventu Caesaris cognito, carros impedimentaque sua in artiores silvas abdiderunt, copias omnes in loco edito atque aperto instruxerunt. 4 Qua re nuntiata, Caesar celeriter sarcinas conferri, arma expediri jussit.

19. Collis erat leniter ab infimo acclivis. Hunc ex omnibus fere partibus palus difficilis atque impedita cingebat, non latior pedibus quinquaginta. 2 Hoc se colle, interruptis pontibus, Galli fiducia loci continebant, generatimque distributi in civitates, omnia vada ac † saltus ejus paludis obtinebant, sic animo parati ut, si eam paludem Romani perrumpere conarentur, haesitantes premerent ex loco superiore: 3 ut, qui propinquitatem loci videret, paratos prope aequo Marte ad dimicandum existimaret; qui iniquitatem conditionis perspiceret, inani simulatione sese ostentare cognosceret. 4 Indignantes milites Caesar, quod conspectum suum hostes per ferre possent, tantulo spatio interjecto, et signum proelii exposcentes, edocet quanto detrimento et quot virorum fortium morte necesse sit constare victoriam; 5 quos cum sic animo paratos videat ut nullum pro sua laude periculum recusent, summae se iniquitatis condemnari debere, nisi eorum vitam sua salute habeat cariorem. 6 Sic milites consolatus eodem die reducit in castra; reliquaque quae ad oppugnationem pertinebant oppidi administrare instituit.

20. Vercingetorix, cum ad suos redisset, proditionis insimulatus,—quod castra propius Romanos movisset, quod cum omni equitatu discessisset, quod sine imperio tantas copias reliquisset, quod ejus discessu Romani tanta opportunitate et celeritate venissent; non haec omnia fortuito aut sine consilio accidere posse; regnum illum Galliae malle Caesaris concessu quam ipsorum habere beneficio,—tali modo accusatus, ad haec respondit: 2' Quod castra movisset, factum inopia pabuli, 15 etiam ipsam hortantibus; quod propius Romanos accessisset, persuasum loci opportunitate, qui se ipsum munitione defenderet; equitum vero operam neque in loco palustri desiderari debuisse, et illieuisse utilem quo sint profecti. 3 Summam imperii se consulto nulli discedentem tradidisse, ne is multitudinis studio ad dimicandum impelleretur; cui rei propter animi mollitiem studere omnes videret, quod diutius laborem ferre non possent. 4 Romani si casu intervenerint, fortunae; si alicujus indicio vocati, huic habendam gratiam, quod et paucitatem eorum ex loco superiore cognoscere et virtutem despicere potuerint; qui dimicare non ausi turpiter se in castra receperint. 5 Imperium se ab Caesare per proditionem nullum desiderare, quod habere victoria posset, quae jam esset sibi atque omnibus Gallis exporata: quin etiam ipsa remittere, si sibi magis honorem tribuere quam ab se salutem accipere videantur.' 6 “Haec ut intelligatis,” inquit, “a me sincere pronuntiari, audite Romanos milites.” Producit servos, quos in pabulatione paucis ante diebus exceperat, et fame vinculisque excrucciaverat. 7 Hi, jam ante edocti quae interrogati pronuntiarent, milites se esse legionarios dicunt; fame et inopia adductos clam ex castris exisse, si quid frumenti aut pecoris in agris reperire possent; simili omnem exercitum inopia premi, nec jam vires sufficere cujusquam, nec ferre operis laborem posse: itaque statuisset imperatorem, si nihil in oppugnatione oppidi profecissent, triduo exercitum deducere. 5 "Haec," inquit, "a me," Vercingetorix, "beneficia habetis, quem proditionis insinulatis; cujus opera sine vestro sanguine tantum exercitum victorem fame consumptum videtis; quem turpiter se ex hac fuga recipientem, ne qua civitas suis finibus recipiat, a me provisum est."

21. Conclamat omnis multitudo, et suo more armis concrepat,—quod facere in eo consuerunt cujus orationem approbant; summum esse Vercingetorigem ducem, nec de ejus fide dubitandum, nec majore ratione bellum administrari possit. Statuunt, ut decem milia hominum delecta ex omnibus copiis in oppidummittantur, nec solis Biturigibus communem salvem committendam censent; quod paene in eo, si id oppidum retinuissent, summam victoriae constare intellegebant.

22. Singulari militum nostrorum virtuti consilia cujusquemodi Gallorum occurrebant, ut est summae genus sollertiae, atque ad omnia imitanda et efficienda quae ab quoque traduntur aptissimum. 2 Nam et laqueis falces avertebant, quas, cum destinaverant, tormentis introrsus reducebant; et aggerem cuniculis subtrahebant, eo scientius quod apud eos magnae sunt ferrariae, atque omne genus cuniculorum notum atque usitatum est. 3 Totum autem murum ex omni parte turribus contabulaverant, atque has coriis intexerant. 4 Tum crebris diurnis nocturnisque eruptionibus aut aggeri ignem inferebant, aut milites occupatos in opere adoriebantur; et nostrarum turrium altitudinem, quantum has cotidianus agger expresserat, commissis suarum turrium malis adaequabant; 5 et apertos cuniculos praeusta et praeacuta materia, et pice fervefacta, et maximi ponderis saxis morabuntur, moenibusque appropinquare prohibebant.

23. Muri autem omnes Gallici hac fere forma sunt. Trabes directae perpetuae in longitudinem, paribus intervallis, distantes inter se binos pedes, in solo collo-cantur: hae revinciuntur introrsus, et multo aggere vestiuntur: ea autem quae diximus intervalla grandibus in fronte saxis effarciuntur. ² His collocatis et coagmentatis, alius insuper ordo additur, ut idem illud intervallum servetur, neque inter se contingant trabes, sed paribus intermissae spatiis, singulae singulis saxis inter-jectis, arcte contineantur. Sic deinceps omne opus contextitur, dum justa muri altitudo expleatur. ³ Hoc cum in speciem varietatemque opus deforme non est, alternis trabibus ac saxis, quae rectis lineis suos ordines servant: tum ad utilitatem et defensionem urbum summam habet opportunitatem; quod et ab incendio lapis, et ab ariete materia defendit, quae, perpetuis trabibus pedes quadragenos plerumque introrsus revincta, neque perrumpi neque distrahí potest.

24. His tot rebus impedita oppugnatione, milites, cum toto tempore frigore et assiduis imbribus tardarentur, tamen continenti labore omnia haec superaverunt, et diebus xxv, aggerem latum pedes cccxxx, altum pedes lxxx, exstruxerunt. ² Cum is murum hostium paene contingeret, et Caesar ad opus consuetudine excubaret, militesque hortaretur ne quod omnino tempus ab opere intermitteretur,—paulo ante tertiam vigiliam est animadversum fumare aggerem, quem cuniculo hostes succederant; eodemque tempore toto muro clamore sublato, duabus portis ab utroque latere turrium eruptio fiebat. ³ Alii faces atque aridam materiem de muro in aggerem eminus jaciebant; picem reliquasque res quibus ignis excitari potest fundebant; ut, quo primum curreretur, aut cui rei feretur auxilium, vix ratio iniri posset. ⁴ Tamen, quod instituto Caesaris semper duae
The Gaurs prepare to fly.

The Gauls prepare to fly. Caesar legiones pro castris excubabant, pluresque partitis temporibus erant in opere, celeriter factum est, ut alii eruptionibus resisterent, alii turres reducerent, aggeremque interscinderent, omnis vero ex castris multitudo ad 5 restinguendum concurreret.

25. Cum in omnibus locis, consumpta jam reliqua parte noctis, pugnaretur, semperque hostibus spes victoriae redintegraretur, — eo magis, quod deustos pluteos turrium videbant, nec facile adire apertos ad auxilian-dum animadvertebant, — semperque ipsi recentes defessis succedenter omnemque Galliae salutem in illo vestigio temporis positam arbitrarentur; accidit, inspectantibus nobis, quod dignum memoria visum praetereundum non existimavimus. 2 Quidam ante portam oppidi Gallus per manus sevi ac picis traditas glebas in ignem e regione turris proiciebat; scorpione ab latere dextro tra-jectus examinatusque concidit. 3 Hunc ex proximis unus jacentem transgressus eodem illo munere fung-batur; eadem ratione ictu scorpionis examinato alteri successit tertius, et tertio quartus; nec prius ille est a propugnatoribus vacuus relictus locus, quam, restincto aggere atque omni parte submotis hostibus, finis est pugnandi factus.

26. Omnia experti Galli, quod res nulla successerat, 25 postero die consilium ceperunt ex oppido profugere, hortante et jubente Vercingetorige. 2 Id silentio noctis conati, non magna jactura suorum seque effecturos sperabat; propterea quod neque longe ab oppido castra Vercingetorigis aberant, et palus, quae perpetua inter-cedebat, Romanos ad insequendum tardabat. 3 Jamque hoc facere noctu apparabant, cum matresfamiliae repente in publicum procurrerunt, flentesque, projectae ad pedes suorum, omnibus precibus petierunt, ne se et communes liberos hostibus ad supplicium dederent, quos 35 ad capiendam fugam naturae et virium infirmitas im-pediret. 4 Ubi eos in sententia perstare viderunt, quod plerumque in summo periculo timor misericordiam non recipit, con clamare et significare de fuga Romanis coeperunt. \(^5\) Quo timore perterriti Galli, ne ab equitatu Romanorum viae praeoccuparentur, consilio destiterunt.

27. Posterо die Caesar, promota turri directisque operibus quae facere instituerat, magno coörto imbre, non inutilem hanc ad capiendum consilium tempestatem arbitratus est, quod paulo incautius custodias in muro dispositas videbat, suosque languidius in opere versari jussit, et quid fieri vellet ostendit. \(^2\) Legionibusque intra vineas in occulto expeditis, cohortatus ut aliquando pro tantis laboribus fructum victoriae perci perent, iis qui primi murum ascendissent praemia proposuit, militibusque signum dedit. \(^3\) Illi subito ex omnibus partibus evolaverunt, murumque celeriter compleverunt.

28. Hostes re nova perterriti, muro turribusque dejecti, in foro ac locis patentioribus cuneatim constiterunt, hoc animo ut, si qua ex parte obviam contra veniretur, acie instructa depugnarent. \(^2\) Ubi neminem in aequum locum sese demittere, sed toto undique muro circumfundi viderunt, veritus ne omnino spes fugae tolle retur, abjectis armis, ultimas oppidi partes continentis impetu petiverunt; parsque ibi, cum angusto portarum exitu se ipsi premerent, a militibus, pars jam egressa portis ab equitibus, est interficta: nec fuit quisquam qui praedae studeret. \(^3\) Sic et Genabi caede et labore operis incitati, non aetate confectis, non mulieribus, non infantibus pepercerunt: denique ex omni numero, qui fuit circiter milium xl, vix dccc, qui primo clamore audito se ex oppido ejecerunt, incolumes ad Vercingetorigem pervenerunt. \(^4\) Quos ille multa jam nocte silentio ex fuga exceptit, veritus ne qua in castris ex eorum concursu et misericordia volgi seditio oreretur, ut, procul in via dispositis familiaribus suis principibusque civitatum, disparandos deducendosque ad suos curaret, quae cuique civitatis pars castrorum ab initio obvenerat.
29. Postero die concilio convocato, consolatus cohortatusque est: 'Ne se admodum animo demitterent, ne perturbarentur incommodo; non virtute neque in acie vicisse Romanos, sed artificio quodam et scientia op-pugnationis, cujus rei fuerint ipsi imperiti; errare, si qui in bello omnes secundos rerum proventus exspectent; sibi nunquam placuisse Avaricum defendi, cujus rei testes ipsos haberet, sed factum imprudentia Biturigum et nimia obsequentia reliquorum, uti hoc incommodum acciperetur; id tamen se celeriter majoribus commodis sanaturum. Nam, quae ab reliquis Gallis civitates dissentirent, has sua diligentia adjuncturum atque unum consilium totius Galliae effecturum, cujus consensui ne orbis quidem terrarum possit obstistere; idque se prope jam effectum habere. Interea aequum esse, ab iis communis salutis causa impetrari, ut castra munire instituerent, quo facilius repentinon hostium impetus sustinerent.'

30. Fuit haec oratio non ingrata Gallis, et maxime quod ipse animo non defecerat tanto accepto incommodo, neque se in occultum abdiderat et conspectum multitudinis fugerat; plusque animo providere et prae-sentire existimabatur, quod, re integra, primo incendendum Avaricum, post deserendum censuerat. Itaque, ut reliquorum imperatorum res adversae auctoritatem minuunt, sic hujus ex contrario dignitas, incommodo accepto, in dies augebatur. Simul in spem veniebant ejus affirmatione de reliquis adjungendis civitatibus; primumque eo tempore Galli castra munire instituerunt, et sic sunt animo confirmati, homines insueti laboris, ut omnia quae imperarentur sibi patienda existimarent.

31. Nec minus quam est pollicitus, Vercingetorix animo laborabat ut reliquas civitates adjungeret, atque eas donis polllicitationibusque alliciebat. Huic rei idoneos homines deligebat, quorum quisque aut oratione subdola aut amicitia facillime capere posset. Qui Avarico expugnato refugерant, armandos vestiendosque curat. 3 Simul, ut deminutae copiae redintegrarentur, imperat certum numerum militum civitatibus, quem, et quam ante diem, in castra adduci velit; sagittariosque omnes, quorum erat permagnus numerus in Gallia, conquiri et ad se mitti jubet. 4 His rebus celeriter id quod Avarici deperierat expletur. Interim Teutomatus, Olloviconis filius, rex Nitiobrigum, cujus pater ab senatu nostro amicus erat appellatus, cum magno equitum suo- rum numero et quos ex Aquitania conduxerat ad eum pervenit.

32. Caesar Avarici complures dies commoratus, sum-mamque ibi copiam frumenti et reliqui commeatus nanc-tus, exercitum ex labore atque inopia refecit. 2 Jam prope hieme confecta, — cum ipso anni tempore ad ge-rendum bellum vocaretur, et ad hostem proficisci con-stituisset, sive eum ex paludibus silvisque elicere sive obsidione premere posset, — legati ad eum principes Haeduorum veniunt, oratum, ut maxime necessario tem-pore civitati subveniat: 3 4 summo esse in periculo rem; quod, cum singuli magistratus antiquitus creari atque regiam potestatem annum obtinere consuessent, duo magistratum gerant, et se uterque eorum legibus creatum esse dicat. 4 Horum esse alterum Convictolitavem, florentem et illustrem adulœscentem; alterum Cotum, 25 antiquissima familia natum, atque ipsum hominem sum-mae potentiae et magnae cognationis, cujus frater Val- tiacus proximo anno eundem magistratum gesserit; civitatem omnem esse in armis, divisum senatum, divi-sum populum, suas cujusque eorum clientelas. 5 Quod si diutius alatur controversia, fore uti pars cum parte civitatis confligat; id ne accidat, positum in ejus dili-gentia atque auctoritate.

33. Caesar, etsi a bello atque hoste discedere detrimentosum esse existimabat, tamen non ignorans quanta ex dissensionibus incommoda oriri consuessent, ne tanta et tam conjuncta populo Romano civitas, quam ipse semper aluisset omnibusque rebus ornasset, ad vim atque ad arma descenderet, atque ea pars quae minus confideret auxilia a Vercingetoriige arcesseret, huic rei praecertendum existimavit; 2 et quod, legibus Haedorum, iis qui summum magistratum obtinerent excedere ex finibus non liceret, ne quid de jure aut de legibus eorum deminuisse videretur, ipse in Haeduos proficisci statuit, senatumque omnem et quos inter controversia esset ad se Decetiam evocavit. 3 Cum prope omnis civitas eo convenisset, docereturque, paucis clam convocatis, alio loco alio tempore atque oportuerit, fratrem a fratre renuntiatum, cum leges duo ex una familia, vivo utroque, non solum magistratus creari vetarent, sed etiam in se- natu esse prohiberent, — Cotum imperium deponere coegit; Convictolitavem, qui per sacerdotes, more civitatis, intermissis magistratibus, esset creatus, potestatem obtinere jussit.

34. Hoc decreto interposito, — cohortatus Haeduos ut controversiarum ac dissensionis obliviscerentur, atque, omnibus omissis rebus, huic bello servirent, eaque quae meruissent praemia ab se, devicta Gallia, exspectarent, equitatumque omnem et peditum milia decem sibi celebrerent, quae in praesidiis rei frumentariae causa disponeret, — 2 exercitum in duas partes divisit: IV legiones in Senones Parisiosque Labieno ducendas dedit; VI ipse in Arvernos, ad oppidum Gergoviam secundum flumen Elaver, duxit; equitatus partem illi attribuit, partem sibi reliquit. 3 Qua re cognita, Vercingetorix, omnibus interruptis ejus fluminis pontibus, ab altera fluminis parte iter facere coepit.

35. Cum uterque utrimque exisset exercitus, in conspectu, fereque e regione castris, castra ponebant. Dispositis exploratoribus, necubi effecto ponte Romani copias traducerent, erat in magnis Caesaris difficultatibus res, ne majorem aestatis partem flumine impediretur; quod non fere ante autumnum Elaver vado transiri solet.
2 Itaque, ne id accideret, silvestri loco castris positis, e regione unius eorum pontium quos Vercingetorix rescindendos curaverat, postero die cum duabus legionibus in occulto restitit; reliquas copias cum omnibus impedi-mentis, ut consuverat, misit, † captis quibusdam cohori-tibus, uti numerus legionum constare videretur.
3 His quam longissime possent proptere parte jussis, cum jam ex diei tempore conjecturam ceperat in castra perventum, iisdem sublicis, quorum pars inferior integra remanebat, pontem reficere coepit.
4 Celeriter effecto opere legionis busque traductis et loco castris idoneo delecto, reliquas copias revocavit. Vercingetorix, re cognita, ne contra suam voluntatem dimicare cogeretur, magnis itineribus antecessit.

36. Caesar ex eo loco quintis castris Gergoviam per-venit, equestri regio die proelio levî facto, perspecto urbis situ, quae posita in altissimo monte omnes aditus dificiles habebat, de expugnatione desperavit; de obses-zione non prius agendum constituit, quam rem frumen-tariam expedisset.
2 At Vercingetorix, castris prope oppidum positis, mediocribus circum se intervallis separati singularum civitatum copias collocaverat; atque, omnibus ejus juxi collibus occupatis qua despici poterat, horribilem speciem praebebat; principesque earum civitatum, quos sibi ad consilium capiendum delegerat, prima luce cotidie ad se convenire jubebat, seu quid commuicandum seu quid administrandum videretur; neque ullum fere diem intermittebat, quin equestri proelio, in-terjectis sagittariis, quid in quoque esset animi ac vir-tutis suorum perspicaret.
3 Erat et regione oppidi collis sub ipsis radicibus montis, egregie munitus atque ex oni parte circumcisus, quem si tenerent nostri, et aquae magna parte et pabulatione libera prohibituri hostes videbantur; sed is locus praecidio ab his non nimis firmo tenebatur;
4 tamen silentio noxitis Caesar ex castris egres-Aiduan Reinforcement deserts.

37. Dum haec ad Gergoviam geruntur, Convictolitavis Haeduus, cui magistratum adjudicatum a Caesare demonstravimus, sollicitatus ab Arvernis pecunia, cum qui-busdam adulescentibus colloquitur, quorum erat princeps Litavicus atque ejus frater, amplissima familia nati adulescentes.

15 Cur enim potius Haedui de suo jure et de legibus ad Caesarem disceptatorem, quam Romani ad Haeduos veniant?

Celeriter adulescentibus et oratione magistratus et praemio deductis, cum se vel principes ejus consilii fore profiterentur, ratio perficiendi quaerabatur, quod civitatem temere ad susciendum bellum adduci posse non confidebant.

Placuit ut Litavicus decem illis milibus quae Caesari ad bellum mitterentur, praeficeretur, atque ea ducenda curaret, fratresque ejus ad Caesarem prae-currerent. Reliqua qua ratione agi placet constituunt.

Haec ab ipsis cognoscite qui ex ipsa caede fugerunt; nam ego, fratribus atque omnibus meis propinquis inter-fectis, dolore prohibeo quae gesta sunt pronuntiare.”

8 Nuntios tota civitate Haeduorum dimittit: eodem mendacio de caede equitum et principum permovet; hortatur, ut simili ratione atque ipse fecerit suas injurias persequantur.

39. Eporedorix Haeduus, summo loco natus adulescens et summae domi potentiae, et una Viridomarus, pari aetate et gratia sed genere dispari, quem Caesar ab Divitiaco sibi traditum ex humili loco ad summam dignitatem perduxerat, in equitum numero convenerant, nominatim ab eo evocati. 2 His erat inter se de principatu contentio; et in illa magistratuum controversia, alter pro Convictolitavi, alter pro Coto, summis opibus pugnaverant. 3 Ex iis Eporedorix, cognito Litavici consilio, media fere nocte rem ad Caesarem defert; orat, ne patiatur civitatem pravis adulescentium consiliis ab amicitia populi Romani deficere; 4 quod futurum provideat, si se tot hominum milia cum hostibus conjunxerint, quam salutem neque propinqui neglegere neque civitas levi momento aestimare posset.

40. Magna affectus sollictitudine hoc nuntio Caesar, quod semper Haeduorum civitati praccipue indulserat, nulla interposita dubitatione, legiones expeditas quattuor equitatumque omnem ex castris educit; nec fuit spatium tali tempore ad contrahenda castra, quod res posita in celeritate videbatur. C. Fabium legatum cum legionibus duabus castris praesidio relinquit. Fratres Litavici cum comprehendi jussisset, paulo ante reperit ad hostes fugisse. Adhortatus milites ne necessario tempore itineris labore permoveantur, cupidissimis omnibus, progressus milia passuum xxv, agmen Haeduorum conspicatus, immisso equitatu, iter eorum moratur atque impedit; interdicitque omnibus ne quemquam interficiant. Eporedorigem et Viridomarum, quos illi interfectos existimabant, inter equites versari suosque appellare jubet. His cognitis, et Litavici fraude perspecta, Haedui manus tendere, deditionem significare, et projectis armis mortem deprecari incipiunt. Litavicus cum suis clientibus, quibus more Gallorum nefas est etiam in extrema fortuna deserere patronos, Gergoviam profugit.

42. Dum haec ad Gergoviam geruntur, Haedui primis nuntiis ab Litavico acceptis, nullum sibi ad cognoscendum spatium relinquunt. 2 Impellit alios avaritia, alios iracundia et temeritas, quae maxime illi hominum generi est innata, ut levem auditionem habeant pro re comperta: bona civium Romanorum diripiunt, caedes faciunt, in servitutem abstrahunt. 3 Adjuvat rem proclinatam Convictolitavis, plebemque ad furorem impellit, ut, facinore admisso, ad sanitatem reverti pudeat. 4 M. Aristium, tribunum militum, iter ad legionem facientem, fide data, ex oppido Cabillono educunt; idem facere cogunt eos qui negotiandi causa ibi constiterant. 5 Hos continuo in itinere adorti omnibus impedimentis exuunt; repugnantes diem noctemque obsident; multis utrimque interfectis, majorem multitudinem ad arma concitant.

43. Interim, nuntio allato omnes eorum milites in postestate Caesaris teneri, concurrunt ad Aristium; nihil publico factum consilio demonstrant; quaestionem de bonis direptis decernunt; Litavici fratrumque bona publicant; legatos ad Caesarem sui purgandi gratia mittunt.

44. Haec cogitanti accidere visa est facultas bene gerendae rei. Nam cum in minora castra operis perspiciendi causa venisset, animadvertit collem, qui ab hosti-bus tenebatur, nudatum hominibus, qui superioribus diebus vix praeb multitudine cerni poterat. 2 Adm constructus quaeerit ex perfugis causam, quorum magnus ad eum cotidie numerus confluebat. Constabat inter omnes, quod jam ipse Caesar per exploratores cognoverat, dorum esse ejus jugi prope aequum, sed hunc silvestrem et angustum, qua esset aditus ad alteram partem oppidi: vehementer huic illos loco timere, nec jam aliter sentire, uno colle ab Romanis occupato, si alterum amissent, quin paene circumvallati atque omni exitu et pabulatione interclusi viderentur; ad hunc muniendum omnes a Vercingetorique evocatos.

45. Hac re cognita, Caesar mittit complures equitum turmas: eis de media nocte imperat, ut paulo tumultuosius omnibus locis vagarentur. 2 Prima luce magnum numerum impedimentorum ex castris mulorumque produci, deque his stramenta detrahi, mulionesque cum cassidibus, equitum specie ac simulatione, collibus circumvehijubet. 3 His paucos addit equites, qui latius ostentionis causa vagarentur. Longo circuitu easdem omnes jubet petere regiones. 4 Haec procul ex oppido videbantur, ut erat a Gergovia despectus in castra; neque, tanto spatio, certi quid esset explorari poterat. 6 Legionem unam eodem jugo mittit, et paulum progressam inferiore constituit loco, silvisque occultat. Augeatur Gallis suspicio, atque omnes illo munitionum copiae traducuntur. 6 Vacua castra hostium Caesar conspicatus, tectis insignibus suorum, occultatisque signis militaribus, raros milites (ne ex oppido animadverterentur) ex majoribus castris in minora traducit, legatisque, quos singulis legionibus praefecerat, quid fieri velit ostendit: 7 imprimis monet, ut contineant milites, ne studio pugnandi aut spe praedae longius progradiantur; quid iniquitas loci habeat incommodi proponit; hoc una celeritate posse mutari; occasionis esse rem, non proelii. 8 His rebus expositis, signum dat, et ab dextra parte alio adscensu eodem tempore Haeduos mittit.

46. Oppidi murus ab planicie, atque initio adscensus recta regione, si nullus amfractus intercederet, mccc passusaberat; quidquid hoc circuitus ad molliiendum clivi-um accesserat, id spatium itineris augebat. 2 At medio fere colle in longitudinem, ut natura montis ferebat, ex grandibus saxis sex pedum murum, qui nostrorum impetum tardaret, praeduxerant Galli; atque, inferiore omni spatio vacuo relickto, superiorem partem collis usque ad murum oppidi densissimis castris complever-
unt. 3 Milites, dato signo, celeriter ad munitionem perveniunt, eamque transgressi trinis castris potiuntur.
4 Ac tanta fuit in castris capiendis celeritas, ut Teuto-matus, rex Nitiobrigum, subito in tabernaculo oppressus, ut meridie conquieverat, superiore corporis parte nudata, vulnerato equo, vix se ex manibus praedantium militum eriperet.

47. Consecutus id quod animo proposuerat, Caesar receptui cani jussit, legionique decimae, quacum erat, 20 contionatus, signa constituit. 2 At reliquarum legionum milites, non exaudito sono tubae, quod satis magna valles intercedebat, tamen ab tribunis militum legatisque, ut erat a Caesare praeceptum, retinebantur. 3 Sed elati spe celeris victoriae et hostium fuga et superiorum tempo-rum secundis proeliis, nihil adeo arduum sibi esse existimaverunt quod non virtute consequati possent; neque finem prius sequendi fecerunt quam muro oppidi portisque appropinquarunt. 4 Tum vero ex omnibus urbis partibus orto clamore, qui longius aberant, repentino tumultu perterriti, cum hostem intra portas esse existi-marent, sese ex oppido ejecerunt. 5 Matresfamiliae de muro vestem argentumque jactabant; et, pectore nudo prominentes, passis manibus obtestabantur Romanos, ut sibi parcerent; neu, sicut Avarici fecissent, ne a mulieribus quidem atque infantibus abstinerent. 6 Nonnullae, de muris per manus demissae, sese militibus tradebant. L. Fabius, centurio legionis octavae, quem inter suos eo die dixisse constabat, excitari se Avaricensibus prae-miis, neque commissurum, ut prius quisquam murum adscenderet, tres suos nactus manipulares, atque ab iis sublevatus, murum adscendit. Hos ipse rursus, singulos exceptans, in murum extulit.

48. Interim ii qui ad alteram partem oppidi, ut supra demonstravimus, munitionis causa convenerant, primo exaudito clamore, inde ctiam crebris nuntiis incitati, oppidum ab Romanis teneri, praemissis equitibus, magno concursu eo contenderunt. 2 Eorum ut quisque primus venerat, sub muro consistebat, suorumque pugnantium numerum augebat. Quorum cum magna multitudine convenisset, matresfamiliae, quae paulo ante Romanis de muro manus tendebant, suos obtestari, et more Gallico passum capillum ostentare, liberosque in conspectum proferre coeperunt. 3 Erat Romanis nec loco nec numero aequa contentio: simul et cursu et spatio pugnae defatigati, non facile recentes atque integros sustine-bant.

49. Caesar cum iniquo loco pugnari hostiumque augeri copias videret, praemetuens suis, ad T. Sextium legatum, quem minoribus castris praesidio reliquerat, misit, ut cohortes ex castris celeriter educeret, et sub infimo colle ab dextro latere hostium constitueret; 2 ut, si nostros loco depulsos vidisset, quo minus libere hostes insequerentur terreret. Ipse, paulum ex eo loco cum legione progressus ubi constiterat, eventum pugnae exspectabat.

50. Cum acerrime comminus pugnaretur, hostes loco et numero, nostri virtute confiderent, subito sunt Haedui visi, ab latere nostris aperto, quos Caesar ab dextra parte alio adscensu manus distinendae causa miserat.

2 Hi similitudine armorum vehementer nostros perterruerunt; ac, tametsi dextris humeris exertis animadver-Exploit of Petronius.

51. Nostri, cum undique premerentur, quadraginta sex centurionibus amissis, dejecti sunt loco; sed intole- 20 rantius Gallos insequentes legio decima tardavit, quae pro subsidio paulo aequior loco constiterat. 2 Hanc rursus decimae tertiae legionis cohortes exceperunt, quae, ex castris minoribus eductae, cum T. Sextio legato ceperant locum superiorem. 3 Legiones ubi primum 25 planitiem attigerunt, infestis contra hostes signis con- stiterunt. Vercingetorix ab radicibus collis suos intra munitiones reduxit. Eo die milites sunt paulo minus septingenti desiderati.

52. Postero die Caesar, contione advocata, tementem cupiditatemque militum reprehendit, quod sibi ipsi judicavissent quo procedendum aut quid agendum vide- retur, neque, signo reciprociendi dato, constitissent, neque ab tribunis militum legatisque retineri potuissent. 2 Ex- posuit quid iniquitas loci posset, quod ipse ad Avaricum 35 sensisset, cum sine duce et sine equitatu reprehensis hostibus exploratam victoriam dimisisset, ne parvum modo detrimentum in contensione propter iniquitatem loci accideret. 3 Quanto opere eorum animi magnitudinem admiraretur, quos non castrorum munitiones, non altitudo montis, non murus oppidi tardare potuisset: tanto opere licentiam arrogantiamque reprehendere, quod plus se quam imperatorem de victoria atque exitu rerum sentire existimarent: nec minus se ab milite modestiam et continentiam quam virtutem atque animi magnitudinem desiderare.

53. Hac habita contione, et ad extremam orationem confirmatis militibus, ne ob hanc causam animo permo- verentur, neu, quod iniquitas loci attulisset, id virtuti hostium tribuerent; eadem de profectione cogitans quae ante senserat, legiones ex castris eduxit, aciemque idoneo loco constituit. 2 Cum Vercingetorix nihilo magis in aequum locum descendenter, levi facto equestri proelio atque secundo, in castra exercitum reduxit. 3 Cum hoc idem postero die fecisset, satis ad Gallicam ostentationem minuendum militumque animos confirmandos factum existimans, in Haeduos movit castra. Ne tum quidem insecutis hostibus, tertio die ad flumen Elaver pontes reficit, atque exercitum traducit.

54. Ibi a Viridomaro atque Eporedorige Haeduis appellatus, discit, cum omni equitatu Litavicum ad sollicitandos Haeduos profectum; opus esse ipsos antecedere ad confirmandam civitatem. 2 Etsi multis jam rebus perfidiam Haeduorum perspectam habebat, atque horum discessu admodum defectionem civitatis existimabat; tamen eos retinendos non constitui, ne aut inferre injuriam videretur, aut dare timoris aliquam suspicicionem. 3 Discendentibus his breviter sua in Haeduos merita exposuit; quos et quam humiles accepisset, compulsos in oppida, multatos agris, omnibus ereptis copiis, imposito stipendio, obsidibus summa cum contumelia extortis; 4 et quam in fortunam quamque in amplitudinem deduxisset, ut non solum in pristinum statum redissent, sed omnium temporum dignitatem et gratiam antecessisse viderentur. His datis mandatis, eos ab se dimisit.

55. Noviodunum erat oppidum Haeduorum, ad ripas Ligeris opportuno loco positum. Huc Caesar omnes obsides Galliae, frumentum, pecuniam publicam, suorum atque exercitus impedimentorum magnam partem contulerat; hoc magnum numerum equorum, hujus belli causa in Italia atque Hispania coëmptum, miserat. 2 Eo cum Eporedorix Viridomarusque venissent, et de statu civitatis cognovissent, Litavicum Bibracti ab Haeduis receptum, quod est oppidum apud eos maximae auctoritatis, Convictolitavim magistratum magnamque partem senatus ad eum convenisse, legatos ad Vercingetorigem de pace et amicitia concilianda publice missos; non praetermittendum tantum commodum existimaverunt. 3 Itaque, interfectis Novioduni custodibus, quique eo negotiandi causa convenerant, pecuniam atque equos inter se partiti sunt; obsides civitatum Bibracte ad magistratum deducendos curaverunt; oppidum, quod a se teneri non posse judicabant, ne quoi esset usui Romanis, incenderunt; 4 frumenti quod subito potuerunt navibus avexerunt, reliquum flumine atque incendio corruperunt; ipsi ex finitimis regionibus copias cogere, praesidia custodiasque ad ripas Ligeris disponere, equitatumque omnibus locis iniciendi timoris causa ostentare coeperunt; si ab re frumentaria Romanos excludere aut adductos inopia in Provinciam expellere possent. 5 Quam ad spem multum eos adjuvabat, quod Liger ex nivibus creverat, ut omnino vado non posse transiri videretur.

56. Quibus rebus cognitis, Caesar maturandum sibi censuit, si esset in perficiendis pontibus periclitandum; ut, prius quam essent majores eo coactae copiae, dimiseret. 2 Nam ne commutato consilio iter in Provinciam converteret, ut nemo non tum quidem necessario faci-endum existimabat, cum infamia atque indignitas rei et oppositus mons Cevenna viarumque difficlitas impediebat; tum maxime, quod abjuncto Labieno atque iis legionibus quas una miserat, vehementer timebat.

3 Itaque, admodum magnis diurnis atque nocturnis iti-neribus confectis, contra omnium opinionem ad Ligerim venit; vadoque per equites invento, pro rei necessitate, opportuno, ut brachia modo, atque humeri ad sustinenda arma liberi ab aqua esse possent, disposito equitatu, qui vim fluminis refringeret, atque hostibus primo adspectu perturbatis, incolorem exercitum traduxit; frumentumque in agris et pecoris copiam nactus, repleto his rebus exercitu, iter in Senones facere instituit.

57. Dum haec apud Caesarem geruntur, Labienus, eo

15 supplemento quod nuper ex Italia venerat relictum Age-dici, ut esset impedimentis praesidio, cum quattuor legionibus Lutetiam proficiscitur: id est oppidum Parisiorum, quod posuit est in insula fluminis Sequanae.

2 Cujus adventu ab hostibus cognito, magnae ex finitimis civitatibus copiae convenerunt. Summa imperii traditur Camulogeno Aulerco, qui prope confectus aetate tamen propter singularem scientiam rei militaris ad eum est honorem evocatus.

3 Is cum animadvertisset perpetuam esse paludem quae influeret in Sequanam, atque illum omnem locum magnopere impediret, hic consedit, nostrosque transitu prohibere instituit.

58. Labienus primo vines agere, cratibus atque ag-gere paludem explere, atque iter munire conabatur.
Postquam id difficilius confieri animadvertit, silentio e

30 castris tertia vigilia egressus, eodem quo venerat itinere Melodunum pervenit.

2 Id est oppidum Senonum in insula Sequanae positum, ut paulo ante de Lutetia diximus.

Deprehensis navibus circiter quinquaginta celeriterque conjunctis, atque eo militibus injectis, et

35 rei novitate perterritis oppidanis, quorum magna pars erat ad bellum evocata, sine contentione oppido potitur.
Refecto ponte, quem superioribus diebus resciderant, exercitum traducit, et secundo flumine ad Lutetiam iter facere coepit. Hostes, re cognita ab iis qui a Meloduno fugerant, Lutetiam incendi, pontesque ejus oppidi rescindi jubent; ipsi, projecta palude, ad ripas Sequanae, e regione Lutetiae, contra Labieni castra considunt.

59. Jam Caesar a Gergovia discessisse audiebatur; jam de Haeduorum defectione et secundo Galliae motu rumores afferebantur; Gallique in conloquis, interclusum itinere et Ligeri Caesarem, inopia frumenti coactum, in Provinciam contendisse, confirmabant. Bellovaci autem, defectione Haeduorum cognita, qui ante erant per se infideles, manus cogere atque aperte bellum parare coeperunt. Tum Labienus, tanta rerum commutatione, longe aliud sibi capiendum consilium atque antea senserat intellegebat; neque jam ut aliquid acquireret proelioque hostes laceraret, sed ut incolum exercitum Agedicum reduceret, cogitabat. Namque altera ex parte Bellovaci, quae civitas in Gallia maximam habet opinionem virtutis, instabat; alteram Camulogenus parato atque instructo exercitu tenebat; tum legiones a praesidio atque impedimentis interclusas maximum flumen distinebat. Tantis subito difficultatibus objectis, ab animi virtute auxilium petendum videbat.

60. Sub vesperum consilio convocato, cohortatus ut ea quae imperasset diligenter industrieque administaret, naves quas a Meloduno deduxerat singulas equitibus Romanis attribuit; et, prima confecta vigilia, milia passuum secundo flumine silentio progregi, ibique se exspectari jubet. Quinque cohortes, quas minime firmas ad dimicandum esse existimabat, castris praesidio relinquit; quinque ejusdem legionis reliquas de media nocte cum omnibus impedimentis adverso flumine magno tumultu proficisci imperat. Conquirit etiam lintres; has magno sonitu remorum incitatas in eandem partem mittit. Ipse post paulo, silentio egressus cum tribus legionibus, eum locum petit quo naves appelli jusserat.

61. Eo cum esset ventum, exploratores hostium, ut omni fluminis parte erant dispositi, inopinantes, quod magna subito erat coorta tempestas, ab nostris opprimuntur; exercitus equitatusque, equitibus Romanis administrantibus quos ei negotio praefecerat, celeriter transmittitur. 2 Uno fere tempore sub lucem hostibus nuntiatur in castris Romanorum praeter consuetudinem: tumultuari, et magnum ire agmen adverso flumine, sonitusque remorum in eadem parte exaudiri, et paulo infra milites navibus transportari. 3 Quibus rebus auditis, quod existimabant tribus locis transire legiones, atque omnes perturbatos defectione Haeduorum fugam parare, suas quoque copias in tres partes distribuerunt. 4 Nam, praesidio et regione castrorum relictis, et parva manu Melodunum versus missa, quae tantum progrediatur quantum naves processissent, reliquas copias contra Labienum duxerunt.

62. Prima luce et nostri omnes erant transportati, et hostium acies cernebatur. 2 Labienus, milites cohortatus ut suae pristinae virtutis et secundissimorum proeliorum retinerent memoriam, atque ipsum Caesarem, cujus ductu saepenumero hostes superassent, praesentem adesse existimarent, dat signum proelii. 3 Primo concursu, ab dextro cornu, ubi septima legio constiterat, hostes pelluntur atque in fugam coniciuntur; ab sinistro, quem locum duodecima legio tenebat, cum primi ordines hostium transfixi pilis concidissent, tamen acerrime reliqui resistebant, nec dabat suspicionem fugae quisquam. 4 Ipse dux hostium Camulogenus suis aderat, atque eos cohortabatur. Incerto nunc etiam exitu victoriae, cum septimae legionis tribunis esset nuntiatum quae in sinistro cornu gererentur, post tertum hostium legionem ostenderunt, signaque intulerunt 5 Ne eo quidem tempore quisquam loco cessit, sed circumventi omnes interfectique sunt. Eandem fortunam tulit Camulogenus. At ii qui praesidio contra castra Labieni erant relictii, cum proelium commissum audissent, subsidio suis ierunt, collemque ceperunt, neque nostrorum militum victorum impetum sustinere potuerunt. Sic, cum suis fugientibus permixti, quos non silvae montesque texerunt, ab equitatu sunt interfecti. Hoc negotio confecto, Labienus revertitur Agedicum, ubi impedimenta totius exercitus relictæ erant. Inde cum omnibus copiis ad Caesarem pervenit.

64. Ipse imperat reliquis civitatibus obsides; denique ei rei constituit diem huc. Omnes equites, quindecim milia numero, celeriter convenire jubet; peditatu quem ante habuerat se fore contentum dicit, neque fortunam temptaturum, aut in acie dimicaturum; sed, quoniam abundet equitatu, perfacile esse factu frumentationibus pabulationibusque Romanos prohibere: 3 æquo modo animo sua ipsi frumenta corrupiant, aedificiaque incendant; qua rei familiaris jactura perpetuum imperium libertinatemque se consequi videant. 4 His constitutis rebus, Haeduis Segusiavisque, qui sunt finitimi Provinciae, decem milia peditum imperat; huc addit equites octingentos. His praecedit fratem Eporedorigis, bellumque inferri Allobrogibus jubet. 5 Altema ex parte, Gabalos proximosque pagos Arvernorum in Helvios, item Rutenos Cadurcosque ad fines Volcarum Arecomicorum depopulandos mittit. 6 Nihilo minus clandestinis nuntiis legationibusque Allobrogas sollicitat, quorum mentes nondum ab superiore bello resedisse sperabat. Horum principibus pecunias, civitati autem imperium totius provinciae pollicetur.

65. Ad hos omnes casus provisa erant praesidia cohortium duarum et viginti, quae ex ipsa Provincia ab L. Caesare legato ad omnes partes opponebantur. 2 Helvii sua sponte cum finitimis proelio congressi polluntur, et, C. Valerio Donnotauro, Caburi filio, principe civitatis, compluribusque aliis interfectis, intra oppida ac muros compelluntur. 3 Allobroges, crebris ad Rhodanum dispositis praesidiis, magna cum cura et diligentia suos fines tuentur. 4 Cæsar, quod hostes equitatu superiores esse intellegebat, et, interclusis omnibus itineribus, nulla re ex Provincia atque Italia sublevari poterat, trans Rhenum in Germaniam mittit ad eas civitates quas superioribus annis pacaverat; equitesque ab his arcessit, et levis armaturae pedites, qui inter eos proeliari consuerant. 5 Eorum adventu, quod minus idoneis equis utebantur, a tribunis militum reliquisque [sed et] equitibus Romanis atque evocatis equos sumit, Germanisque distribuit.
66. Interea, dum haec geruntur, hostium copiae ex Arvernis, equitesque qui toti Galliae erant imperati, conveniunt. 2 Magno horum coacto numero, cum Caesar in Sequanos per extremos Lingonum fines iter faceret, quo facilius subsidium Provinciae ferri posset, circiter 5 milia passuum decem ab Romanis trinis castris Vercingetorix consedit; convocatisque ad consilium praefectis equitum, venisse tempus victoriae demonstrat: 3 'fugere in Provinciam Romanos, Galliaque excedere; id sibi ad praesentem obtinendam libertatem satis esse; ad reliqui temporis pacem atque otium parum profici; majoribus enim coactis copiis reversuros, neque finem bellandi facturos. 4 Proinde in agmine impeditos adorirentur. Si pedites suis auxilium ferant, atque in eo morentur, iter facere non posse; si, id quod magis futurum confidat, 15 relictis impedimentis, suae saluti consulant, et usu rerum necessariarum et dignitate spoliatum iri. 5 Nam de equitibus hostium, quin nemo eorum progradi modo extra agmen audeat, et ipsos quidem non debere dubitare; et quo majore faciant animo, copias se omnes pro castris habiturum, et terrori hostibus futurum.' 6 Conclamant equites, 'Sanctissimo jurejurando confirmari oportere, ne tecto recipiat, ne ad liberos, ne ad parentes, ad uxorrem aditum habeat, qui non bis per agmen hostium perequitasset.' 7

67. Probata re, atque omnibus jurejurando adactis, postero die in tres partes distributo equitatu, duae se acies ab duobus lateribus ostendunt, una primo agmine iter impedire coepit. 2 Qua re nuntiata, Caesar suum quoque equitatum, tripartito divisum, contra hostem ire jubet. Pugnatur una omnibus in partibus. 3 Consistit agmen; impedimentum intra legiones recipuntur. Si qua in parte nostri laborare aut gravius premi videbantur, eo signa inferri Caesar aciemque constituiri jubebat: quae res et hostes ad insequendum tardabat, et nostros spe auxilii confirmabat. 4 Tandem Germani ab dextro latere, summum jugum nancti, hostes loco depellunt: fugientes usque ad flumen, ubi Vercingetorix cum pedestribus copiis consederat, persequuntur, compluresque interficiunt. Qua re animadversa, reliqui, ne circumirentur veriti, se fugae mandant. Omnibus locis fit caedes. Tres nobilissimi Haedui capti ad Caesarem perducantur: Cotus, praefectus equitum, qui controversiam cum Convictolitavi proximis comitiis habuerat; et Cavarillus, qui post defectionem Litavici pedestribus copiis praefuerat; et Eporedorix, quo duce ante adventum Caesaris Haedui cum Sequanis bello contenderant.

68. Fugato omni equitatu, Vercingetorix copias, ut pro castris collocaverat, reduxit, protinusque Alesiam, quod est oppidum Mandubiorum, iter facere coepit; celeriterque impedimenta ex castris educi et se subsequi jussit. Caesar, impedimentis in proximum collem deductis, duabus legionibus praesidio reliquit, secutus, quantum diei tempus est passum, circiter tribus milibus hostium ex novissimo agmine interfectis, altero die ad Alesiam castra fecit. Perspecto urbis situ, perterritisque hostibus, quod equitatu (qua maxime parte exercitus confidebant) erant pulsi, adhortatus ad laborem milites, circumvallare instiuit.

69. Ipsum erat oppidum Alesia in colle summo, admodum edito loco, ut nisi obsidione expugnari non posse videretur. Cujus collis radices duo duabus ex partibus flumina sublevabant. Ante id oppidum planitiecirciter tribus milia passuum tria in longitudinem patebat; reliquis ex omnibus partibus colles, mediocri interj ecto spatio, pari altitudinis fastigio, oppidum e ingebant. Sub muro, quae pars collis ad orientem so lem spectabant, hunc omnem locum copiae Gallorum compleverant, fossamque, et maceriam sex in altitudinem pedum praeduxerant. Eius munitionis, quae ab Romanis insti tuebatur, circuitus xi milium passuum tenebat. Castra opportunis locis erant posita, ibique castella xxiii facta; quibus in castellis interdiu stationes ponebantur, ne qua subito eruptio fieret: haec eadem nocte excubitoribus ac firmis praesiidiis tenebantur.

70. Opere instituto, fit equestre proelium in ea planicie, quam, intermissam collibus, tria milia passuum in longitudinem patere supra demonstravimus. Summa vi ab utrisque contenditur. 2 Laborantibus nostris Caesar Germanos submittit, legionesque pro castris constituit, ne qua subito irruptio ab hostium peditatu fiat. 3 Præsidio legionum addito, nostris animus augetur: hostes, in fugam conjeci, se ipsi multitudine impediunt, atque angustioribus portis relictis coacervantur. Germani acrius usque ad munitiones sequuntur. 4 Fit magna caedes: nonnulli, reliquit equis, fossam transire, et 15 maceriam transcendere conantur. Paulum legiones Caesar, quas pro vallo constituerat, promoveri jabet. 5 Non minus qui intra munitiones erant perturbantur Galli: veniri ad se confestim existimantes, ad arma conclamant; nonnulli perterriti in oppidum irrumpunt. Vercingetorix jabet portas claudi, ne castra nudentur. Multis interfectis, compluribus equis captis, Germani sese recipiunt.

71. Vercingetorix, priusquam munitiones ab Romanis perficiantur, consilium capit, omnem ab se equitatum noctu dimittere. 2 Discendentibus mandat, ut suam quisque eorum civitatem adeat, omnesque qui per actatem arma ferre possint ad bellum cogant. 3 Sua in illos merita proponit; obtestaturque, ut suae salutis rationem habeant, neu se, optime de communi libertate meritum, in cruciatum hostibus dedant. Quod si indiligentiores fuerint, milia hominum delecta lxxx una secum interitura demonstrat. 4 Ratione inita, se exigae dierum triginta habere frumentum, sed paulo etiam longius tolerare posse pariendo. 5 His dati mandatis, qua 35 opus erat intermissum, secunda vigilia silentio equitæ-tum dimittit; frumentum omne ad se referri jubet; capitis poenam iis qui non paruerint constituit; pecus, cujus magna erat copia, ab Mandubiis compulsa, viritim distribuit; *frumentum parce et paulatim metiri instuit; copias omnes, quas pro oppido collocaverat, in oppidum recepit. His rationibus auxilia Galliae exspectare et bellum parat administrare.

72. Quibus rebus cognitis ex perfugis et captivis, Caesar haec genera munitionis instituit: fossam pedum viginti directis lateribus duxit; ut ejus fossae solum tantundem pateret, quantum summae fossae labra distarent. 2 Reliquas omnes munitiones ab ea fossa pedes quadringentos reduxit: id hoc consilio (quoniam tantum esset necessario spatium complexus, nec facile totum corpus corona militum cingeretur), ne de improviso aut noctu ad munitiones hostium multitudo advolaret, aut interdiu tela in nostros operi destinatos conicere possent. 3 Hoc intermisso spatio, duas fossas, xv pedes latas, cadem altitudine perduxit; quarum interiorum, campestribus ac demissis locis, aqua ex flumine derivata complevit. 4 Post eas aggerem ac vallum xii pedum extruxit: huic loricam pinnasque adiectit, grandibus cervis eminentibus ad commissuras pluteorum atque aggeris, qui adscensum hostium tardarent; et turres toto opere circumdedit, quae pedes lxxx inter se distarent.

73. Erat eodem tempore et materiari et frumentari et tantas munitiones fieri nesse, deminutis nostris copiis, quae longius ab castris progrediebantur; ac nonnumquam opera nostra Galli temptare, atque eruptionem ex oppido pluribus portis summa vi facere conabantur. 2 Quare ad haec rursus opera addendum Caesar putavit, quo minore numero militum munitiones defendi possent. Itaque truncis arborum admodum firmis ramis abscisis, atque horum delibratis ac praeacutis cacuminibus, petuas fossae quinos pedes altae ducabant. 3 Huc illi stipites demissi, et ab infimo revincti, ne revelli possent, ab ramis eminebant. Quini erant ordines conjuncti inter se atque implicati; quo qui intraverant, se ipsi acutissimis vallis induebant. Hos Cippos appellabant. 4 Ante quos, obliquis ordinibus in quincuncem dispositis, scrobbes tres in altitudinem pedes fodiebantur, paulatim angustiorem ad infimum fastigio. 5 Huc teretes stipites feminis crassitudine, ab summo praecuti et praest, demittebantur, ita ut non amplius digitis quattuor ex terra eminerent: simul, confirmandi et stabilendi causa, singuli ab infimo solo pedes terra exculcabantur; reliqua 10 pars scrobis ad occultandas insidias viminibus ac virgultis integebatur. 6 Hujus generis octoni ordines ducti, ternos inter se pedes distabant. Id ex similitudine floris lilium appellabant. Ante haec taleae pedem longae, ferreis hamis infixis, totae in terram infodiebantur, medicirobusque intermissis spatiis, omnibus locis disseri- 15 bantur, quos stimulos nominabant.

75. Dum haec apud Alesiam geruntur, Galli, concilio principum indicto, non omnes eos qui arma ferre possent, ut censuit Vercingetorix, convocandos statuunt, sed certum numerum cuique ex civitate imperandum; ne, tanta multitudine confusa, nec moderari nec discernere suos, nec frumentandi rationem habere possent. 2 Imperant Haeduis, atque eorum clientibus, Segusiavis, Ambluaretis, Aulercis, Brannovicibus, Brannoviis, milia xxxv; parem numerum Arvernis, adjunctis Eleutheris Cadurcis, Gabalis, Vellaviis, qui sub imperio Arverno- 35 rum esse consuerunt; Sequanis, Senonibus, Biturigibus, Santonis, Rutenis, Carnutibus duodena milia; Bellovacis x; totidem Lemovicibus; octona Pictonibus et Turonis et Parisiis et Helvetiis; Senonibus, Ambianis, Mediomatricis, Petrorcoriis, Nerviis, Morinis, Nitiobrigibus quina milia; Aulercis Cenomanis totidem; Atrebaticibus iv; Veliocassis, Lexoviis, et Aulercis Eburovicibus terna; Rauracis et Boiis. . . ; xxx universis civitatisbus quae Oceanum attingunt, quaeque eorum consuetudine Armoricae appellantur, quo sunt in numero Curiosolites, Redones, Ambibarii, Caletes, Osismi, Lemovices, Unelli. 3 Ex his Bellovaci suum numerum non compleverunt, quod se suo nomine atque arbitrio cum Romanis bellum gesturos dicebant, neque cujusquam imperio obtemperatos; rogati tamen ab Commio pro ejus hospitio, duo milia una miserunt.

76. Hujus opera Commii, ut antea demonstravimus, fidei atque utili superioribus annis erat usus in Britannia Caesar: quibus ille pro meritis civitatem ejus immunem esse jussrerat, jura legesque reddiderat, atque ipsi Morinos attribuerat. 2 Tamen tanta universae Galliae consensio fuit libertatis vindicandae, et pristinae belli laudis recuperandae, ut neque beneficiis neque amicitiae memoria moverentur, omnesque et animo et opibus in id bellum incumberent. 3 Coactis equitum viii milibus, et peditum circiter ccl, haec in Haeduorum finibus recensebantur, numerosque inibatur, praefecti constituebantur: Commio Atrebatii, Viridomaro et Eporredorigi Haeduis, Vercassivellauno Arverno, consobrino Vercingetorigis, summa imperii traditur. 4 His delecti ex civitatibus attribuuntur, quorum consilio bellum administraretur. 5 Omnes alacres et fiduciae pleni ad Alesiam proficiscuntur; neque erat omnium quisquam, qui adspectum modo tantae multitudinis sustineri posse arbitratetur, præsertim ancipiti proelio, cum ex oppido eruptione pugnaretur, foris tantae copiae equitatus pediatusque cernerentur.
77. At ii qui Alesiae obsidebantur, praeterita die qua suorum auxilia exspectaverant, consumpto omni frumento, insci quid in Haeduvis gereretur, concilio coacto, de exitu suarum fortunarum consultabant. Ac variis dictis sententiis, quarum pars deditionem, pars, dum vires suppeterent, eruptionem censebant, non praetereunda oratio Critognati videtur, propter ejus singularem ac nefariam crudelitatem. Hic, summo in Arvernis ortus loco, et magnae habitus auctoritatis: “Nihil,” inquit, “de eorum sententia dicturus sum, qui turpissimam servitutem deditionis nomine appellant; neque hos habendos civium loco, neque ad consilium adhibendos censeo. Cum his mihi res sit, qui eruptionem probant; quorum in consilio, omnium vestrum consensu, pristinae residere virtutis memoria videtur. Animi est ista mollities, non virtus, paulisper inopiam non posse. Qui se ultro morti offerant facilius reperiuntur, quam qui dolorem patienter ferant. Atque ego hanc sententiam probarem (tantum apud me dignitas potest), si nullam praeterquam vitae nostrae jacturam fieri videarem; sed, in consilio capiendo, omnem Galliam respiciamus, quam ad nostrum auxilium concitavimus. Quid, hominum milibus LXXX uno loco interfectis, propinquis consanguineisque nostris animi fore existimatis, si paene in ipsis cadaveribus proelio decertare cogentur? No-lite hos vestro auxilio exspoliare, qui vestrae salutis causa suum periculum neglexerunt; nec stultitia ac temeritate vestra, aut animi imbecillitate, omnem Galliam prosternere et perpetuae servitutie subicere. An, quod ad diem non venerunt, de eorum fide constanter tiaque dubitatis? Quid ergo? Romanos in illis ulterioribus munitionibus animine causa cotidie exerceriputatis? Si illorum nuntiis confirmari non potestis, omni aditu praesepto, his utimini testibus, appropinquare eorum adventum; cujus rei timore exterriti, diem noc- temque in opere versantur. Quid ergo mei consilii Arrival of the Relief.

1. Cesar est? Facere, quod nostri maiores nequaquam pari bello Cimbrorum Teutonumque fecerunt; qui, in oppida compulsis, ac simili inopia subacti, eorum corporibus, qui actate ad bellum inutiles videbantur, vitam toleraverunt, neque se hostibus tradiderunt. 11 Cujus rei si exemplum non haberemus, tamen libertatis causa institui, et posteris prodi, pulcherrimum judicarem. Nam quid illi simile bello fuit? Depopulata Gallia, Cimbri, magnaque illata calamitate, finibus quidem nostris aliquando exesserunt, atque alias terras petierunt; jura, leges, agros, libertatem nobis reliquerunt. 12 Romani vero quid petunt aliud, aut quid volunt, nisi invidia adducti, quos fama nobiles potentesque bello cognoverunt, horum in agris civitatibusque considere, atque his aeternam in-jungere servitutem? Neque enim ulla alia condicione bella gesserunt. 13 Quod si ea quae in longinquis nationibus geruntur ignoratis, respicite finitimam Galliam, quae, in provinciam redacta, jure et legibus commutatis, securibus subjecta, perpetua premitur servitute!

78. Sententiis dictis, constituant ut ii qui valetudine aut aetate inutiles sunt bello, oppido excedant, atque omnia prius experiantur, quam ad Critognati sententiam descendant: illo tamen potius utendum consilio, si res cogat atque auxilia morentur, quam aut deditio aut pacis subeundam condicionem. 2 Mandubii, qui eos oppido receperant, cum liberis atque uxoribus exire coguntur. Il, cum ad munitiones Romanorum accessissent, flentes, omnibus precibus orabant ut se, in servitutem receptos, cibo juvarent. At Caesar, dispositis in vallo custodiis, recipi prohibebat.

79. Interea Commius reliquique duces, quibus summa imperii permissa erat, cum omnibus copiis ad Alesiam perveniunt; et, colle exteriore occupato, non longo mille passibus ab nostris munitionibus considunt. 2 Poster die, equitatu ex castris educto, omnem eam planitiem, quam in longitudinem tria milia passuum patere demonstravimus, complent; pedestresque copias, paulum ab eo loco abditas, in locis superioribus constituunt. 3 Erat ex oppido Alesia despectus in campum. Concurrunt his auxiliis visis; fit gratulatio inter eos, atque omnium animi ad laetitiam excitantur. 4 Itaque, productis copiis, ante oppidum considunt, et proximam fossam cratibus integunt atque aggere explent, seque ad eruptionem atque omnes casus comparant.

80. Caesar, omni exercitu ad utramque partem munitionum disposito, ut si usus veniat, suum quisque locum teneat et noverit, equitatum ex castris educi et proelium committi jubet. 2 Erat ex omnibus castris, quae summum undique jugum tenebant, despectus; atque omnes milites intenti pugnae proventum exspectabant. 3 Galli inter equites raros sagittarios expeditosque levis armaturae interjecerant, qui suis cedentibus auxilio succurrerent, et nostrorum equitum impetus sustinerent. 4 Ab his complures, de improviso vulnerati, proelio excedebant. Cum suos pugna superiores esse Galli confiderent, et nostros multitudine premi viderent, ex omnibus partibus, et ii qui munitionibus continebantur, et hi qui ad auxilium convenerant, clamore et ululatu suorum animos confirmabat. 5 Quod in conspectu omnium res gerebatur, neque recte ac turpiter factum celari poterat; utrosque et laudis cupiditas et timor ignominiae ad virtutem excitabat. 6 Cum a meridie prope ad solis occasum dubia victoria pugnaretur, Germani una in parte confertis turmis in hostes impetum fecerunt, eosque propulerunt. 7 Quibus in fugam conjectis, sagittarii circumventi interfectique sunt. Item ex reliquis partibus nostri, cedentes usque ad castra insecuti, sui colligendi facultatem non dederunt. At ii qui ab Alesia processerant, maesti, prope victoria desperata, se in oppidum receperunt.

81. Uno die intermisso, Galli, atque hoc spatio magno cratium scalarum harpagonum numero effecto, media nocte silentio ex castris egressi, ad campestres munitiones accedunt. 2 Subito clamore sublato, qua significacione qui in oppido obsidebantur de suo adventu cognoscere possent, crates proicere, fundis, sagittis, lapidibus, nostros de vallo proturbare, reliquaque quae ad oppugnationem pertinent parant administrare. 3 Eodem tempore, clamore exaudito, dat tuba signum suis Vercingetorix, atque ex oppido educit. 4 Nostri, ut superioribus diebus, ut cuique erat locus attributus, ad munitiones accedunt; fundis, librilibus, sudibusque quas in opere disposuerant, ac glandibus Gallos proterrent. 5 Prospectu tenebris adempto, multa utrimque vulnera accipiuntur; complura tormentis tela coniciuntur. 6 At M. Antonius et C. Trebonius legati, qui bus hae partes ad defendendum obvenerant, qua ex parte nostros premi intelleixerant, his auxilio ex ulterioribus castellis deductos submittebant.

82. Dum longius ab munitione aberant Galli, plus multitudine telorum proficiebant; posteaquam propius successerunt, aut se stimulus inopinantes induebant, aut in scrobos delati transfodiebantur, aut ex vallo ac turribus trajecti pilis muralibus interibant. 2 Multis undique vulneribus acceptis, nulla munitione perrupta, cum lux appeteret, veriti ne ab latere aperto ex superioribus castris eruptione circumvenirentur, se ad suos receperunt. 3 At interiores, dum ea quae a Vercingetorige ad eruptionem praeparata erant proferunt, priores fossas explent; diutius in his rebus administrandis morati, prius suos discessisse cognoverunt, quam munitionibus approinquarent. Ita, re infecta, in oppidum reverterunt.

83. Bis magno cum detrimento repulsi, Galli quid agant consulunt. Locorum peritos adhibent; ex his superiorum castrorum situs munitionesque cognoscunt. 2 Erat a septentrionibus collis, quem, propter magnitudinem circuitus, opere circumplecti non potuerant nostri; necessario paene iniquo loco et leniter declivi

85. Caesar, idoneum locum nactus, quid quaque ex parte geratur cognoscit; laborantibus submittit. Utrisque ad animum occurrit, unum esse illud tempus, quo maxime contendi conveniat: Galli, nisi perfregerint munitiones, de omni salute desperant; Romani, si rem obtinuerint, finem laborum omnium exspectant. Maxime ad superiores munitiones laboratur, quo Vercassivellaunum missum demonstravimus. Iniquum loci ad declivitatem fastigium magnum habet momen-

castra fecerant. Haec C. Antistius Reginus et C. Caninius Rebilus, legati, cum duabus legionibus obtinebant. Cognitis per exploratores regionibus, duces hostium LX milia ex omni numero deligunt, earum civitatum quae maximam virtutis opinionem habebant; quid, quoque pacto, agi placeat, occulte inter se constituunt; adeundi tempus definiunt, cum meridies esse videatur. His copiis Vercassivellaunum Arvernum, unum ex quattuor ducibus, propinquum Vercingetorigis, praeeficiunt. Ille, ex castris prima vigilia egressus, prope confecto sub lucem itinere, post montem se occultavit, militesque ex nocturno labore sese reficere jussit. Cum jam meridies appropinquare videretur, ad ea castra quae supra demonstravimus contendit; eodemque tempore equitatus ad campestres munitiones accedere, et reliquae copiae pro castris sese ostendere coeperunt.

84. Vercingetorix, ex arce Alesiae suos conspicatus, ex oppido egreditur: crates, longurios, musculos, falces, reliquaque quae eruptionis causa paraverat, profert. Pugnatur uno tempore omnibus locis, atque omnia temptantur: quae minime visa pars firma est, huc concurritur. Romanorum manus tantis munitionibus distinctetur, nec facile pluribus locis occurrit. Multum ad terrendos nostros valet clamor, qui post tergum pugnantibus exstitit, quod suum periculum in aliena vident salubre constare; omnia enim plerumque, quae absunt, vehementius hominum mentes perturbant.

3. Iniquum loci ad declivitatem fastigium magnum habet momen-
Caesar appears on the Field.

86. His rebus cognitis, Caesar Labienum cum cohortibus sex subsidio laborantibus mittit. Imperat, si sustinere non posset, deductis cohortibus, eruptione pugnaret; id nisi necessario ne faciat. Ipse adit reliquos; cohortatur ne labori succumbant; omnium superiorum dimicationum fructum in eo die atque hora docet consistere. Interiores, desperatis campestribus locis propter magnitudinem munitionum, loca praerupta ex ascensu temptant: huc ea quae paraverant conferunt. Multitudine telorum ex turribus propugnantes deturbant; aggere et cratibus fossas explent; falcibus val lum ac loricam rescindunt.

87. Mittit primo Brutum adulescentem cum cohortibus Caesar, post cum aliis C. Fabium legatum; postremo ipse, cum vehementius pugnaretur, integros subsidio adducit. Restituto proelio ac repulsis hostibus, eo quo Labienum miserat contendit; cohortes quattuor ex proximo castello deducit, equitum partem sequi, partem circumire exteriores munitiones et ab tergo hostes adoriri jubet. Labienus, postquam neque aggeres neque fossae vim hostium sustinere poterant, caoctis una quadraginta cohortibus, quas, ex proximis praesidiis deductas, fors obtulit, Caesarem per nuntios facit certiorum quid faciendum existimet. Accelerat Caesar, ut proelio intersit.

88. Ejus adventu ex colore vestitus cognito, quo insigni in proeliis uti consuerat, turmisque equitum et cohortibus visis quas se sequi jussaret, ut de locis superioribus haec declivia et devexa cernebantur, hostes proelium committunt. Utrimque clamore sublato, excipit rursus ex vallo atque omnibus munitionibus clamor.
Vercingetorix surrenders.

Nostri, omissis pilis, gladiis rem gerunt. Repente post tergum equitatus cernitur; cohortes aliae appropinquant: hostes terga vertunt; fugientibus equites occurrunt; fit magna caedes. 3 Sedulius, dux et princeps Lemovicum, occiditur; Vercassivellaunus Arvernus vivus in fuga comprehenditur; signa militaria lxxiv ad Caesarem referuntur; pauci ex tanto numero se incolumes in castra recipiunt. 4 Conspicati ex oppido caedem et fugam suorum, desperata salute, copias a munitionibus reducunt. 5 Fit protinus, hac re audita, ex castris Gallorum fuga. Quod nisi crebris subsidiis ac totius diei labore milites essent defessi, omnes hostium copiae deleri potuissent. 6 De media nocte missus equitatus novissimum agmen consequitur: magnus numeros capitur atque interficitur; reliqui ex fuga in civitates discedunt.

89. Postero die Vercingetorix, concilio convocato, id bellum se suscepisse non suarum necessitatum sed communis libertatis causa demonstrat; et, quoniam sit fortunae cedendum, ad utramque rem se illis offerre, seu morte sua Romanis satisfacere, seu vivum tradere velint. 2 Mittuntur de his rebus ad Caesarem legati. Jubet arma tradi, principes produci. Ipse in munitione pro castris consedit: eo duces producuntur. Vercingetorix deditur; arma proiciuntur. 3 Reservatis Haeduis atque Arvernis, si per eos civitates recuperare posset, ex reliquis captivis toto exercitu capita singula praedae nomine distribuit.

90. His rebus confectis, in Haeduos proficiscitur; civitatem recipit. Eo legati ab Arvernis missi quae imperaret se facturos pollicentur. Imperat magnum numerum obsidium. Legiones in hiberna mittit; captivorum circiter xx milia Haeduis Arvernisque reddit. 2 T. Labienum duabus cum legionibus et equitatu in Sequanos proficisci jubet; huic M. Sempronium Rutilum attribuit. C. Fabium legatum et L. Minucium Basilum cum legionibus duabus in Remis collocat, ne quam ab finitimis Bellovacis calamitatem accipient. 3 C. Antistium Reginum in Ambilaretos, T. Sextium in Bituriges, C. Caninium Rebilum in Rutenos, cum singulis legionibus mittit. Q. Tullium Ciceronem et P. Sulpi cium Cabilloni et Matiscone in Haeduis ad Ararim rei frumentariae causa collocat. Ipse Bibracte hiemare constituit. His litteris cognitis, Romae dierum viginti supplicatio redditur.

ARGUMENT OF BOOK VIII.

NOTE. — This Book is understood, by general consent, to have been written as a continuation by Aulus Hirtius, an officer of Cæsar, who also wrote the history of the campaigns in Africa and Spain. Hirtius was killed near Mutina (Modena), in battle against Mark Antony, in the year following Cæsar’s death, B.C. 43.

FINAL CONQUEST AND PACIFICATION OF GAUL. — Scattered uprisings quelled (1-5). War of the Bellovaci, who at length submit (6-22). After a series of scattered and petty actions (23-35), Uxellodunum is besieged by Cæsar (37, 38). Its defenders, being prevented from access to water, are compelled by distress to surrender: Cæsar orders the hands to be cut off of all who have borne arms (39-44). Aquitania is recovered, the Treveri are subdued, and the last resistance is overcome by the defeat of Com-nius (45-48). Cæsar deals generously with the vanquished, and proceeds to Italy, where he is magnificently welcomed (49-51).
Outbreak of the jealousies at Rome which led to the Civil War (52-55).
The Legionary.
THE LEGIONARY.

The core of the Roman army was the legionary infantry. This was composed entirely of Roman citizens; while the auxiliary infantry, the archers and slingers, and the cavalry, were of various barbarian nationalities. These other troops were used for subordinate purposes only. It was intended that the weight of the battle should be borne by the legions.

The recruit must be over 17 and under 46 years of age, of sound bodily health and of suitable size. What the limits of height were in the Roman army, we do not know.* From the fact that the legionary fought with sword and spear, and not with the breech-loading rifle of modern wars, we may infer that he must have been more muscular and agile than is now necessary; but we cannot infer that he was of unusual size. On the contrary, there is little doubt that the soldiers who conquered the world for Cæsar were, as a rule, rather under-sized. The historians always emphasized the bigness of the Germans, and Cæsar expressly mentions the small stature of his troops.† The Romans had learned the lesson of civilization,—that victories in war are gained, not by huge bones and big bodies, but by the trained skill of scientific organization and tactics. Any one of the German giants might perhaps have been more than a match for any individual of his puny Italian enemies. But the barbarian mob of Ario-vistus was shattered when hurled against the spears of the legions.

All the legionaries were clothed, armed and equipped alike. Next the skin was worn a sleeveless woollen shirt (tunica). Over this was a leathern coat strengthened by bands of metal across breast and back and on the shoulders (lorica). The troops in Trajan's column are represented with tight-fitting trowsers (braccae) extending below the knee. It seems likely, however, that these did not come into use among the Romans until after Cæsar's time.‡ Possibly strips of cloth were worn wound around the thighs (feminalia) and around the shins (cruralia). The feet were protected by sandals (calcei), or by strong shoes not unlike those worn at the present time. Then, in cold or wet weather, the person was covered by the military cloak (sagum), a sort of woollen blanket. Of course, this was laid aside in battle.

The defensive armor consisted of helmet, greaves and shield. The helmet was either of iron (cassis), or of leather or cork strengthened with brass (galea). That of the officer was distinguished by a plume of red or black feathers (crista). The greaves (ocreae) were of bronze. They were used to protect the leg below the knee, and were held in place sometimes by straps, sometimes by their own stiffness. Usually but one was worn, on the right leg, as this was the one advanced in the fight. (The greaves may be seen in the picture of the centurion, Fig. 4.) The shield (scutum) was of wood, covered with leather or with iron plates. In the centre was a boss (umbo), which was merely a knob designed to strengthen and bind all together. The shield was about 4 ft. long and 2 ft. wide. Often it was curved, so as partially to encircle the body. On the outside was painted the badge of the cohort,—a wreath, or a winged thunderbolt, for instance. On the inside was the name of the soldier, with the number of the cohort and maniple; perhaps also the number of the legion.

* In our infantry, no one is received whose height is less than 5 ft. 4 in., or more than 5 ft. 10 in.

The offensive weapons were the sword and spear. The sword (gladius Hispanicus) had a blade about 2 ft. long and several inches wide. It was two-edged and pointed, being thus adapted either for cutting or thrusting. The latter, however, was its customary use. It hung seldom from a body-belt, generally from a shoulder-belt (baltus) passing over the left shoulder. Thus the sword was on the right side, this being more convenient since the shield was carried in the left hand. As the higher officers had no shields, they wore their swords on the left side. The spear (pilum) was the characteristic weapon of the legionary. Its entire length was between 6 and 7 ft. The shaft was of wood, round or square, and was upwards of 4 ft. long. Into this was fitted the slender iron shank (ferrum) of the spear, which terminated in a steel head. When the pilum was hurled into some object of attack, the soft iron of the shank bent under the impetus of the blow, and the weapon was thus unfitted to be drawn out and cast back by the enemy. At the bottom of the shaft was an iron shoe, so that in camp, or during a rest on the march, the spear might be set up in the ground. The weight of the entire weapon must have been about 9 pounds. In early times the legionary had two pilæ. In the army of Cæsar, however, we have reason to believe that each soldier had but one.

Cæsar fixed the pay of his legionsaries at 225 denarii a year (about $45). A day laborer in Rome at that time earned ¾ of a denarius a day; or, in a year of 300 working days, just as much as a legionary. Thus the soldier was better off than the laborer merely by his shelter and by certainty of employment. For food and equipments, so far as they were provided by the state, a deduction from the pay was made. As provision, each man was allowed per month 4 measures (the measure, modius, = 8.67 litres, or a little over a peck) of wheat. The measure may be estimated to be worth at the highest ¾ of a denarius. Thus the amount deducted for food cannot have exceeded 36 denarii a year. However, in the provinces, the food, if not given outright, was reckoned at a very low price; and the same must have been true of clothing and equipments. Moreover, the soldier in active service always expected an increase to his income from booty and from the gifts of his general.
TO THE STUDENT.

As Cæsar, though in many respects a book for advanced students, is often the first Latin classic put into the learner's hands, it may be well to give a few hints as to the method of study.

1. Before beginning to read, the learner should be familiar with the forms of Inflection, the simpler rules of Agreement and Construction of Cases (Grammar, p. 381 ff.; see, especially, Rules 1-7, 13, 14, 21, 38, 54), and the Definitions contained in §§ 171-180.

2. Notice at once the inflectional terminations, so that the number, case, tense, person, &c.,—i.e. the relations of the idea conveyed to the rest of the connected ideas,—may be present to your mind. If the form of the word gives several possibilities, hold them all in your mind, so far as may be, till something occurs to settle the doubt.

3. Always try to take in the ideas in that order in which the Latin presents them. Read every word as if it were the last on a page and you had to turn over without being able to turn back. The mind soon becomes accustomed to the order of any language; as we see by the constant and almost unnoticed inversions of common speech and poetry. The greatest difficulty to a beginner is his inability to remember the first parts of a complex idea. This difficulty can often be lessened by jotting down, in a kind of English, the words as they come in the Latin. In this way it is often easy to see what a string of words must mean, though we should never say anything like it in English.

4. Don't try to translate (except as suggested in 3) until you have got a complete idea of some integral part of the sentence. It makes nonsense to render words mechanically, without thinking the corresponding ideas.

5. When you get on far enough, notice that the emphatic position of words plays a most important part in Latin writing, and try to feel the emphasis of position as you read. (See Appendix, p. 120, and A. & G. Latin Grammar, Revised ed., Chap. VI.)
Helvetian War. — Early in the year 58 B.C., the whole population of Helvetia (northern Switzerland), amounting to about 360,000, attempted to pass by an armed emigration through the heart of Gaul, in order to settle somewhere near the shore of the Bay of Biscay, possibly with the hope of being masters of the whole country. They were hemmed in by the great natural barriers of the Alps, the Lake of Geneva, and the Jura Mountains on the south and west; and pressed on the north by great hordes of Germans, who kept up a continual border war. Their fields were scant, their harvests insufficient, their people hardy and fearless. Their ambitious chief, Orgetorix, had prepared them so well for this enterprise, that his flight and death — when he was charged with guilty conspiracy, and put on trial for his life — caused no delay. The attempt was held in check by Cæsar, during a fortnight's parley, till sufficient earthworks had been thrown up along the Rhone to withstand their advance; the advance was then made in force along the narrow pass between that river and the Jura. But the Helvetians did not succeed in getting more than fifty miles beyond the frontier, when they were overtaken by Cæsar; who, by a few light skirmishes and two bloody battles, forced them back to their own territories, with the loss of more than 200,000 lives. This brief campaign, lasting only from March to June, is called the Helvetian War.

1. Celtea, probably of the Gaelic branch, represented by the Irish and the Highland Scotch.

alia: alteram would be more usual, as meaning the second in the list. — tertiam qui ... appellantur, the third [those inhabit] who are called, &c. It would read in full, tertiam [partem ii inco- lunt] qui, &c. (§ 200. c; G. 621; H. 445. 6). — ipsorum linguā, in their own tongue. — nostrā, sc.* linguā.

linguā (abl. of specification, § 253 (R. 26); G. 398; H. 424) . . . differunt [Et. 344],† differ in language, customs, and laws. The language of the Aquitani was Basque; of the Gauls proper, Celtic; of the Belgians, probably Celtic mixed with German. (Observe that when three words, as lingua, &c., are used together, by Latin use there should be no conjunction at all, as here; or both conjunctions should be expressed; or that between the first two words may be omitted, and que annexed to the last.)

inter se = from one another: the preposition inter may be used to show any reciprocal relation, see § 196. f; G. 212; H. 448. N.

dividit: the verb is singular, because the two rivers make one boundary (§ 205. b; G. 202. R.¹; H. 463. ii. 3); as we should say, is divided by the line of the Seine and Marne.

2. horum, part. gen. with fortissimi, § 216. a (R. 10); G. 370; H. 397. 3.— propterea quod, because; lit. because of this, that, &c. These adverbial phrases, which are numerous in Latin, should always be carefully analyzed, though generally rendered by a single word in English. (Beginners constantly confound propterea, for that reason, with praeterea, besides.)

cultu, civilization, as shown by outward signs; humanitate, refinement, of mind or feeling. The two, taken together, make a kind of hendiadys (see Glossary, Gr. p. 298; G. 695; H. 636. iii. 2): the refined mode of life.

provinciae: the province of Gallia Narbonensis, organized about B.C. 120. Its chief cities were Massilia (Marseilles), an old Greek free city, and the capital, Narbo (Narbonne), a Roman colony. The name Provincia has come down in the modern Provence.

minime saepe commeant, least often penetrate. The verb

† The abbreviation “Et.” refers to Halsey’s “Etymology of Latin and Greek” (Ginn, Heath, & Co.).
commeo means, especially, to go back and forth in the way of traffic. The main line of trade lay across the country, by the river Loire. — mercatores: these were traders or peddlers, mostly from the seaport of Massilia; they travelled with pack-horses, mules, and wagons. A very common article of traffic (as with our Indian traders) was intoxicating drinks, — wines from the southern coast; which, especially, as Cæsar says, “tend to debauch the character.” These people, it is said, would give the traders a boy for a jar of wine.

ea, object of important.— effeminatingos, § 300; G. 428; H. 544. — Germanis, dat. of nearness, &c. (§ 234. a; G. 356; H. 391. 1).

trans Rhenum: the Rhine was, in general, the boundary between Gauls and Germans; though, as we shall see, a few German tribes had settled on the hither side.

continenter (adverb from the participle of contineo, hold together), incessantly; strictly, without any interruption.

quoque: i.e. just as the Belgians.— reliquos, rest of: § 193; G. 287. r.; H. 440.

3. qua de causa, and for this reason (§ 180. f; G. 612; H. 453): explained by quod . . . contendunt.

Helvetii, here, it will be noticed, reckoned as Gauls. — praecedunt, excel; lit. walk before.

proeliis, abl. of means; finibus, abl. of separation.— cum prohibent, while they keep them off (pro-habeo). Observe that this conjunction is not properly spelled quum, on account of the old rule forbidding u to follow u or v in the same syllable (§§ 7, 156; G. 7; H. p. 15, foot-note 1); but cum or quom.— ipsi (emphatic), themselves, the Helvetians; eos and eorum refer to the Germans. — bellum, Et. 231.

4. eorum una pars, one division of them (the Gauls), the people being put for the country.— quam . . . dictum est, which (it has been [already] said) the Gauls hold. [Notice that in direct discourse it would be Galli obtinent: the subject-nom. is changed to acc., and the indic. to the ininf. after the verb of saying, dictum est, § 272. R.2 (R. 39); G. 527; H. 535. 1.] Here quam is the object and Gallos the subject of obtainere; while the clause is the subject of dictum est (§§ 329, 330. a2; G. 528; H. 538). — initium, Et. 493.— obtinere (ob-teneo), not obtain, but occupy:
strictly, hold against all claimants; what is called in law adverse possession. (Ob in composition almost always has the sense of opposing or coming in the way of any thing.) — continetur, is bounded.

ab Sequanis, on the side of, &c. — vergit, &c. slopes to the north; that is, the highlands (Cévennes) are along the southern boundary, and the rivers flow in their main course northerly.

septentriones (* septem triones, "the seven plough-oxen"*), i.e. the constellations of the great and little Bear. The word is used both in the singular (as a compound) and in the plural.

5. Galliae, i.e. Celtic Gaul (the country just described), not Gallia omnis. — inter occasum, &c. north-west, i.e. from the Province.

3. ad Hispaniam, next to Spain, i.e. the Bay of Biscay (§ 259.f; H. 433. i).

Chap. 2. nobilissimus (root GNO, know), of highest birth. Popular revolutions had, among the Gauls as among the Greeks and Romans, mostly dispossessed the old chiefs, or kings; and they had established an annual magistrate called Vergobret (ch. 16). But the heads of the ruling families would naturally be ambitious to recover what they could of the old class power; and Orgetorix is represented as aspiring to create a monarchy in Gaul.

Orgetorix: this name, by a probable derivation, means the slayer. Messala, &c. (Gr. p. 294): this was B.C. 61, three years before Cæsar's first campaign in Gaul. The construction of consulibus is abl. absolute (§ 255 & a (R. 35); G. 408; H. 431): not so formal as while Messala and Piso were consuls, but merely in their consulship. This was the usual way of denoting the year. — inductus, Et. 12.

conjurationem, a league, sworn to fidelity by oath (juro). — nobilitatis: from the account given in ch. 4, we see how immense was the class power still held by the nobles.

civitati persuasit, § 227 (R. 16); G. 345; H. 385. ii.: the direct object of persuasit is the clause ut . . . exirent (§ 331. a; G. 546. r. 1; H. 498); compare id, two lines below [Et. 493]. Votes were easily "persuaded" by such means as Orgetorix possessed. (For the sequence of tenses in exirent, see § 286. Rem.; G. 510; H. 495. ii.).
perfacile (predicate with esse, while its subject is the infinitive clause with potiri): that it was quite easy, since they exceeded all men in valor, to win the empire of all Gaul. — esse, indirect disc., depending on some such word as he said (§ 330 e; G. 652. R.2; H. 523. l. N.).

cum praestarent, subjunctive after cum, meaning since, §§ 325, 326; G. 587; H. 517. — imperio, § 249 (R. 31); G. 405; H. 421.
2. hoc facilius, all the easier: § 250 (R. 33); G. 400; H. 423. — id, obj. of persuasit (§ 225. c; G. 344; H. 384. 2): we should say, persuaded them of it. Usually with persuadere the dat. and acc. are both used only when the latter is a pronoun. See Madvig, 242. Obs. 1. — loci naturā, by the nature of the country. — continentur, are hemmed in.

una ex parte, on one side: as in undique, on (lit. from) all sides, hinc, on this side, &c. The effect on the senses is supposed to come from the direction referred to. — latissimo, very broad (§ 93. b; H. 444. 1). — qui refers not to flumine, but to Rheno.
3. his rebus, by these causes. — fiebat (imperf.) = it was coming about more and more (§ 277; G. 222; H. 468–9): the subject is the clause ut ... possent (see § 332. a; G. 558; H. 501. i.).

qua ex parte, on which ground: some editions have qua de causa. — homines (a sort of apposition) = being (as they were) men eager for war. — bellandi [Et. 231], § 218. a (R. 12); G. 374; H. 542. i.

afficioebantur = afficioebantur: for the rule as to assimilation of consonants, compare § 11. f3. In this edition the unchanged form of the preposition is usually preferred.
4. pro, in proportion to. — multitudo: their numbers, including some small dependent populations, were 368,000 (see ch. 29). — angustos fines = too narrow limits: those here given are about 40 miles each way larger than the present boundaries of Switzerland.

milia passuum, miles (1000 paces), the regular way of stating this measure, milia being acc. of extent of space (R. 23), and passuum partit. genitive. The passus was the stretch from heel to heel, i.e. from where the heel is raised to where it is set down again; and is reckoned at five Roman feet. A Roman mile (mille passuum) was about 400 feet less than ours; it measures the distance which a soldier would march in "a thousand paces."
patebant: throughout the latter part of this chapter notice the use of the imperfect of description or general statement, compared with the perfect of simple narrative in persuasit above, and constituerunt, &c., below.

Chap. 3. adducti: Et. 12. — permoti: this word seems to show something more than mere "persuasion" on the part of Orgetorix, cf. ch. 21. — quae pertinent, dependent clause in indir. disc., § 341. d; G. 653; H. 524.

Observe that Latin employs different moods for the two forms of quotation, one for what is called Direct and the other for Indirect Discourse. Whenever the writer or speaker takes the responsibility of the statement, it is put in the Indicative, with commands in the Imperative. These are the moods of direct discourse. When anything is told not simply as a fact, but that some one perceived, thought, or said so, the leading statement is put in the Infinitive, and all subordinate parts (including commands) in the Subjunctive. These are the moods of indirect discourse. The narrative in this chapter will require a careful attention to the above distinction. Let the learner here study attentively the introductory paragraph and Remark of § 335 (G. 651; H. 522). In Cæsar, nearly all the speeches are given in the form of narrative: that is, in Indirect Discourse.

comparare ... confirmare: these infinitives are construed as the direct object of the leading verb constituerunt, § 271. a; G. 424; H. 533, i. 1.

quam maximum, as great as possible (§ 93. b, 207; G. 317; H. 170. 2). — jumentorum, beasts of burden, properly, yoke-animals (root yu, kindred with jug in jungo, jugum); carrorum, two-wheeled carts, suited to the narrow and rough roads.

2. conficiendas (fac: Et. 256), completing: con in composition generally means together; or, as here, may be simply intensive. — lege: probably passed in a public assembly, which is what a Roman would understand by lex. — in tertium annum confirmant, fix for the third year.

3. sibi suscepit, took on himself. Observe the force of sub, as if he put his shoulders under the load. — civitates, clans, such as the Ædui, Sequani, &c., — about 60 in all, — whose territory had no local name, but was known only by that of the clan, which was sovereign and wholly independent, except for voluntary alliances (see ch. 30). The name Gallia itself — as was said of Italy a few years ago — was only "a geographical expression," implying no political sovereignty.

persuadet, prevails on: suadet would be, simply, urges. — obtinuerat, had held. — amicus, an honorary title given by the Roman Senate to friendly powers. — ut . . . occuparet, to lay hands on. This clause is the object of persuadet (§ 331. a; G. 546; H. 499. 3; for the sequence of tenses, see § 287. e; G. 511. r.¹; H. 492), which in English would be expressed by the infinitive. — regnum, here, not hereditary authority, but personal rule: what the Greeks called tyranny. — ante, here an adverb; in English we should say before him.

Dumnorigi (dat. after persuadet, p. 4), Dumnorix, a younger brother, restless, ambitious, and strongly attached to the old aristocracy of the clan: therefore a bitter enemy of the Roman supremacy. He afterwards headed a desertion of Cæsar’s cavalry, just before the second invasion of Britain, but was pursued and killed (v. 6).

4. Divitiāci: this Æduan chief was of the order of Druids; he had been in Rome, where he made the acquaintance of Cicero and other eminent Romans. He was thoroughly impressed with the power and superiority of the Romans, and was a faithful friend and ally of Cæsar.

The name is by some thought to be a Druid title. The party of Druids, represented by Divitiacus and Liscus (chap. 16), was the popular party, strong especially in the large towns: it was opposed by the old clan feeling kept up by military or tribal chiefs (principes), such as Orgetorix and Dumnorix. The former, or popular party, was headed by the Ædui; the latter, or aristocratic, by the Sequani and Arverni. The Druids were a religious or priestly order, jealous of the aristocracy (equites) of the tribe or clan, which represented what may be called the patriotic or "native-Celtic" party (see vi. 12–17). A knowledge of this division helps clear up many of the events of Cæsar’s campaigns. Divitiacus was a name well known at Rome. A later writer gives an interesting picture of the Gallic chief standing and leaning on his shield while he made his appeal before the senate, declining (as a suppliant) the seat which was in courtesy offered him.

qui, i.e. Dumnorix. — principatum, highest rank, as distinct from political power. — plebi acceptus, a favorite with the people (acceptable to the people). — ut idem conaretur, to make the same attempt (lit. attempt the same thing); i.e. put down the constitutional authority, and establish a rule of military chiefs.

4. perfacile factu (§ 303. r.; G. 437. r.1; H. 547), very easy to do: in predicate agreement with conata perficere, which is subj. of esse, depending on probat. — illis probat, undertakes to show them, i.e. to Casticus and Dumnorix (conative present, § 276. b; G. 218. r.2; H. 467. 6).

non esse dubium quin, there is no doubt (he says) that: here esse is infin. of indirect disc.; for the construction of quin, see § 319. d; G. 551; H. 501. ii. 2. — Galliae, partitive gen. with plurimum. — plurimum possent = were the strongest. — confirmat, asserts (confidently).

5. oratione, plea, or argument (abl. of means). — fidem et jus-jurandum, i.e. assurance confirmed by oath (hendiadys). — regno occupato (abl. absolute, expressing condition, see §§ 255, 310. a; G. 408. r., 670; H. 431. 2 (3)), in case they should get in their hands the royal power: = si occupaverimus. — per tres populos, i.e. Helvetii, Ædui, and Sequani; a league between these, they hope, will secure their power over all Gaul. — posse, equivalent to a future infinitive (see § 288. f; G. 240. r.3; H. 537. n. 1); Madvig, 410. Obs. 1). — Galliae, governed by potiri; see § 249. a; G. 405; H. 410. v. 3.

Chap. 4. ea res, this thing (i.e. conspiracy). The word res would often be best rendered by some more specific word in English, as action, fact, event, estate, &c., according to the passage. The Helvetians were prepared to emigrate in a body, and subdue the rest of Gaul; but not to surrender to Orgetorix the power thus acquired. His act was treason, — a conspiracy within a conspiracy.

moribus suis, according to their custom (abl. of specification). — ex vinclis (= vinculis; so hinderance for hinderance in English), out of chains, i.e. standing in chains. A Latin idiom, cf. ex equo, on horseback. — causam dicere [Et. 10], to plead his cause, a technical expression for being brought to trial.

damnatum (sc. eum, object of sequi), if condemned. (In this sentence the subject of opterebat is the clause damnatum . . . sequi; the subject of sequi is poenam; and ut . . . cremaretur is in apposition with poenam, defining the punishment: § 332. f; G.
559; H. 501. iii.) Translate, it must needs be that the penalty should overtake him, if condemned, of being burned with fire. (For the ablative in i, see § 57. b1; G. 60. 3. a; H. p. 35, foot-note 2. This form is often used by Caesar and earlier writers.) Observe that urere would mean merely to burn, while cremare is to burn to ashes.

2. die constituta, on the day appointed, § 256 (R. 34); G. 392; H. 429: for the gender of die, see § 30. a. 73; G. 70; H. 123.—causae dictionis, [Et. 10], of the pleading of the cause (it would be more usual to say dicendae); dictionis depends on die, and causae is the obj. gen. after dictionis.

ad judicium [Et. 125, 10], near the [place of] judgment.—familiam, clansmen: by Roman use this would mean slaves; but it is more probable that it here means all who bore his name or regarded him as their chief.—ad ... decem milia, to [the number of] 10,000.—clientes, retainers, volunteer or adopted followers; obaeratos, debtors, the only class of slaves that seems to have been known in Gaul, see vi. 13, 2.—conduxit; Et. 12.—per eos, by their means (§ 246. b; G. 493; H. 415. i. 1, N. 1).

3. cum ... conaretur, when the state attempted: relative time, § 323. N.1; G. 586; H. 521. ii. 2.—neque ... suspitio (the true spelling of this word), and the suspicion is not wanting. The negative neque (=and not) is often best translated by dividing in this way.

quin ... consciverit (conscisco), that he decreed death to himself (his own death), i.e. committed suicide. Observe that ipse, self, agrees in Latin rather with the subject; not, as in English, with the object. “Orgetorix (it will be noticed) was never in the power of the magistrates, he was not put in chains, nor did he die in prison.”

Chap. 5. nihilo minus (often written in one word, as in English), nevertheless.—constituerant, had resolved: observe the pluperfect, as following the historical present.—ut ... exequant, in apposition with id: as we should say, “namely, to go forth.”

ubi arbitrati sunt, when they judged: observe the regular use of the perfect indicative with ubi, postquam, &c., § 324; G. 563; H. 518.—rem, enterprise.—oppida, towns, fortified and capable of defence; vicos, villages, i.e. groups of houses about a single spot. (In a city, vicus is a street, considered as the houses occupied; via is the travelled way between them.) The villages and houses were burned, partly to cut off hope of return; partly to prevent their being occupied by their enemies, the Germans. — incendunt, set fire to.

praeterquam [id] quod, excepting what (that which): observe that in this phrase quam means than, and praeter is the comparative of prae: lit. further than what. — domum, § 258. b; G. 410; H. 380. 2, following reditionis. — comburunt burn up. — subeunda, Et. 493. — molita cibaria, ground corn (flour): every man to take his own supply for three months' use.

2. Rauracis, &c., German tribes from the banks of the Rhine. — uti, the older form for ut, common in Cæsar. — una cum iis, along with them (lit. by one way). — proficiscantur: Et. 256. — oppidis . . . exustis, having burned, &c. (See § 113. c. n.; G. 409. r.¹; H. 550. n. 4).

Boios (from whom the name Bohemia is derived): a Celtic tribe, whom the great German advance had cut off from their kins-people towards the west, and who were now wandering homeless, some of them within the limits of Gaul.

5. Noricum, &c., now eastern Bavaria and upper Austria. — receptos . . . adsciscunt: in English, in a sentence like this, we should use a separate verb instead of the participle (§ 292; G. 667; H. 549. 5). Translate, they receive the Boii into their own number (ad se), and vote them in as allies to themselves.

Chap. 6. omnino, in all, i.e. only. — itinera, itineribus [Et. 493]: observe the form of this relative sentence (common in Cæsar), which gives the antecedent noun in both clauses. It is usually omitted in one or the other (see § 200; G. 617; H. 453. 2): in English, almost always in the relative clause; in Latin, quite as often in the other. — possent, subjunctive in a relative clause of characteristic (§ 320; G. 633; H. 503. 1.).

Sequanos, i.e. the region now called Franche Comté, north of the Rhone. — inter . . . Rhodanum: the pass now guarded by the Fort l'Ecluse, about nineteen Roman (eighteen and a half English) miles below Geneva (compare note, chap. 8: 1). The Rhone at this part was the boundary of the Roman province. The choice was between crossing the river, and proceeding along its northern bank. — flumen: Et. 345. — vix qua, &c., where carts could scarcely be hauled in single file (see § 95. a; G. 95; H. 174. 2). — autem = then again.
2. multo facilius, much easier in itself; but it required them to crush the Roman legion at Geneva, and force their way through about 50 miles of territory occupied by the Roman arms. — propter quod, see note to Chap. 1°. — nuper pacati erant, had been lately subdued (reduced to peace). A rebellion of despair (B.C. 61), had been subdued by C. Pompeius.

locis, loc. abl. (§ 258. f; G. 385; H. 425. II. 2). — vado, by ford (vadendo). The bed of the Rhone has changed somewhat since Caesar's time. There is now but one ford between Geneva and the Pas-de-l'Écluse.

Genua (Genva) is nearest to the modern German name (Genf); it is also spelled Genava and Geneva.

3. sece persuasuros [esse] (notice that in the future infinitive, used in indirect discourse, esse is usually omitted; in direct disc. it would be persuadebimus), they thought they should persuade; its object is Allobrogibus. — bono animo = well disposed: five years before, their envoys in Rome had intrigued with Catiline's agents, whom they at length betrayed (see Cicero, Cat. iii. § 22).

4. a.d.v.Kal. Apr., nominally March 28 (§§ 376, 259. e; G. App.; H. 642. 3). According to the astronomer Leverrier, the true date was March 24, the day of the spring equinox; Mommsen makes it as late as April 16. The calendar was in a state of great confusion at this time, and till Cæsar's reform, 12 years later.

Chap. 7. Caesari: he was at this time at Rome, having laid down his consulship, preparing to set out for his province. Every consul was entitled to the governorship of a province for one year after his term of office, and by a special law Cæsar's government (consisting of the three provinces of Cisalpine and Transalpine Gaul and Illyricum) had been conferred for a term of five years. This news hastened his movements.

id, in appos. with eos . . . conari (the real subject of esset), that they were attempting to force a march, &c. — maturat, hastens; travelling, his biographers say, 100 miles in a day, and reaching the Rhone in a week, according to Plutarch. The subject, Cæsar, is here omitted with the leading verb, being expressed in the relative clause. — ab urbe: this word, unless some other place is indicated, always means Rome, the city. Cæsar was near, but not in the city, not being permitted to enter it while holding the military authority (imperium) of proconsul. Hence he says \textit{ab}, not \textit{ex}.

\textit{quam maximis potest itineribus} (§ 93. \textit{b}; G. 317; H. 170. 2); \textit{potest} is usual with Cæsar in this phrase, which is elliptical. In full it would be, \textit{tam magnis quam maximis}, as great as the greatest; i.e. the greatest possible (Chap. 10\textsuperscript{a}).

\textit{ulteriorem}, i.e. beyond the Alps. The northern part of modern Italy was still called \textit{Gallia Cisalpina}, and was a part of Cæsar’s province.

2. \textit{provinciae} (dat.) imperat, makes requisition on the province: i.e. Transalpine Gaul.

\textbf{The Roman Legion.} — The normal strength of the legion has been variously estimated up to 6000 men. We have reason to believe that in Cæsar’s army it did not exceed 5000 (see note on Bk. IV. Chap. 37). As to a far more important fact, the actual strength in the field, we are much better informed. It seems quite clear that the average field strength of Cæsar’s legion did not vary far from about 3600 men; and that number we will consider the basis of our estimates. This legion, or brigade, as we should perhaps call it, was divided into 10 cohorts, or small battalions, of about 360 men each. The cohort consisted of 3 maniples or companies, about 120 strong. As the cohort was the tactical unit of the legion, so the maniple was the tactical unit of the cohort. Each of these military units contained from day to day essentially the same men, under the same officers. The maniple, however, was divided, on a different principle, into two equal parts, called \textit{ordines}, or \textit{centuriae} (centuries). When the men fell in for morning roll-call, for instance, the maniple was formed according to height. The taller soldiers would thus form the first \textit{ordo}, the rest, the second. Thus some men might one day be in one \textit{ordo}, and another day in the other, as on successive days different squads might be detailed from the maniple for guard duty or other special service. The \textit{ordo} corresponded exactly to the platoon in an American company.

The officers of the legion were the tribunes (tribuni militum) and the centurions (centuriones). Of the former, each legion had six, who had charge in turn, two at a time. They did not command the legion in battle unless specially detailed for that purpose. Their duties were what is called \textit{administrative}, i.e. having to do with the levying and discharge, the equipment and supplies of the troops; and \textit{judicial}, i.e. they tried and punished offenders against military law. Of the centurions, the real leaders of the legion, there were two to each maniple. The \textit{senior} (\textit{prior}) commanded the first platoon, and the junior (posterior), the second. The cohorts and their centurions were graded in rank from the tenth up to the first. Thus the centurions of the first cohort were of the first rank (primorum ordimum). The centurions occupied a place about midway between that of a commissioned officer and that of a non-commissioned officer in a modern army. They commanded the maniples, and in battle the first centurion of the first cohort may almost be said to have commanded the legion (but see note on Chap. 52). On the other hand, their duties were much like those of a sergeant. They were chosen from the ranks for their experience and skill, and were seldom appointed to a higher position. The tribunes, together with the officers in the general staff of the army, were usually appointed from the noble families at Rome through some political influence.

3. certiores facti sunt, were informed (made more certain). — qui dicerent, who were [instructed] to say (§ 317; G. 544; H. 497. I.). — sibi . . . liceat: observe carefully the construction of the indirect discourse (§ 336. a and b; G. 653; H. 523–531): in direct discourse it would be, "Nobis est in animo sineullo maleficio iter per provinciam facere, propterea quod aliud iter habemus nullum; rogamus, ut tua voluntate id nobis facere liceat." A little attention to this in the beginning will relieve this construction, very frequent in Cæsar, of all difficulty.
The Helvetian War.

sibi, dat. of possession (§ 231; G. 349; H. 387); of esse, the subj. is the clause iter . . . facere, while the whole passage sibi . . . liceat, is the object of dicere. Render, that they had [it was to them] in mind to make, &c. — aliud . . . nullum, like the English, other passage had they none. — rogare: of this verb the subject is se, understood; and the object is the clause ut . . . liceat (§ 331. a; G. 546, and r.1; H. 498. 1); they begged it might be allowed them to do this with his consent.

4. L. Cassium . . . occisum [esse], object of memoriā tenebat, as a phrase of knowing (§ 272. r.1; G. 527; H. 371. IV. 535. 1). This defeat happened B.C. 107, in the terrible invasion of the Cimbri or Teutons, the Helvetians being their allies. "The army of Cassius was one of six swept away by these barbarians."

6. sub jugum [Et. 125] under the yoke (hence the word subjugate). The jugum was made by sticking two spears in the ground, and laying another across them above. To pass under this was equivalent to laying down arms by a modern army.

concedendum [esse], depending on putabat, impersonal: thought that no concession should be made, lit. "that it must not be yielded."

hominès, subj. of temperaturos [esse], depending on existimabat: he judged that men of hostile temper (abl. of quality, § 251; G. 402; H. 419. II.), if the opportunity were given (abl. absolute) of making a march (gerundive, §§ 297, 298; G. 429; H. 544. 1) through the province, would not (neque) refrain from wrong and mischief.

5. dum . . . convenient (§ 328; G. 574; H. 519), until the men should muster. — diem se sumpturum [esse], he would take time. si quid . . . reverterentur (subj. for imperat. § 339; G. 655; H. 523. III.): in direct discourse, if you wish anything (said he), return on the 13th of April.

Chap. 8. éa legione, with that legion (abl. of instrum.). In this sentence, observe how all the qualifying clauses come first, and the direct objects, murum, fossam, come next before the leading verb perducit (§ 343; G. 676; H. 560); while each relative belongs to the verb which comes next after it unless another relative intervenes,—a very convenient rule in analyzing a long and difficult sentence.
decem novem, nineteen, following the windings of the river (see note, Chap. 6). — murum: this rampart, or earthwork, was on the south side of the river, leaving the passage undisputed along the northern bank.

The banks of the Rhone in this part are generally rugged and steep, with sharp ravines; there are only five short reaches — a little over three miles in all — in this course of eighteen miles requiring defences. The current is in general quite rapid. Some remains of Caesar's works can still be traced, according to the French engineers who surveyed the ground under the orders of Napoleon III. According to Caesar's statement, the work was continuous (this is the meaning of perducit). This undoubtedly means that, after the five accessible points were strengthened by artificial defences, the entire left bank of the Rhone, from Geneva to Pas-de-l'Ecluse, formed a continuous barrier against the Helvetians. The construction of any one of the fortifications may be described as follows:

Along the crest of the ridge facing the river, the slope was cut so as to be vertical, or nearly so, and then a trench was hollowed. The earth dug out was partly thrown up to increase the height of the wall, and quite likely

Plan I. Fortifications on the Rhone. Bk. I. Ch. 8.

The dotted lines indicate wall and trench; the dotted squares, redoubts. In the lower corner at the right is a vertical section of murus and fossa. From Genf (Geneva, see note on Chap. 6) to Pas-de-l'Ecluse (or Pas-d'Ecluse), 18½ (English) miles by the river, is only half that distance in a straight line.

in part thrown down the hill. At all events, it seems probable that the measure of 16 feet is the distance from the bottom of the ditch to the top of the wall. Thus the work formed really little more than a trench with scarp higher than the counterscarp. Then the crest was fortified with a breastwork of palisades, behind which the soldiers were protected while hurling their missiles at the enemy. This entire series of works, with the force at Caesar's command, could not have occupied more than two or three days.

2. castella (literally "little fortifications"), redoubts. These were constructed on the same plan as the camp, but were much smaller. They were rectangular, and surrounded by wall and ditch. In them were stationed guards (praesidia). The redoubts were sufficiently numerous, so that the guard from one or another could quickly reach any point in the lines that might be threatened. — quo facilius possit, that he may the more easily: the usual construction (§ 317. b; G. 545. 2; H. 497. II. 2). — se invito (abl. abs.), against his will.

3. negat se posse, says he cannot. — si conentur, future condition in indirect discourse: direct, it would be si conabimini. — prohibiturum [se esse] ostendit, shows that he shall stop them.

4. dejecti [Et. 493], cast down: de in composition generally has the meaning down. — nonnunquam, sometimes (§ 150 and a; G. 448 and r.4; H. 553. 1). — si . . . possent, an indirect question (§ 334. f; G. 603, 462. 2; H. 529. 1. n.1), depending on conati: trying if they could break through. — conatu, abl. of separation, following destiterunt, desisted.

Chap. 9. Sequanis invitis (abl. abs. of condition), in case the Sequani should refuse. — sua sponte, by their own influence: a rare meaning of this phrase, which is generally, of their own accord. — eo deprecatore (abl. absolute denoting means), by his means as advocate. — impetrarent, they might obtain [it].

2. gratiā, personal influence; largitione, lavish gifts and hospitalities, like those of old chiefs of the clan. — duxerat: this word is used of the man who marries a wife, i.e. he leads her to his own house; of the woman it is said, nubit viro (dat.), i.e. she puts on the veil for him. This refers to the flame-colored veil (flammaeum) worn by the bride during the wedding ceremonies. — novis rebus (dat. § 227. e; G. 346. R.2; H. 384. 1.), revolution, change in the state. — studebat, eagerly favored. — habere obstrictas, to keep close bound.
3. impetrat has for obj. ut . . . patiantur; and perficit, uti . . . dent : obtains (from their good will) that they will allow the Helvetii to go, &c., and brings it about that they exchange hostages.

7. Chap. 10. renuntiatur, word is brought back, i.e. from messengers sent to ascertain: the subject is the clause Helvetis esse, &c. (see note Chap. 73). — Tolosatium, the people of Tolosa, the modern Toulouse.

The Santones give the name to the modern province of Saintonge, on the Bay of Biscay. This is so far from the borders of the Province, as to show that Cæsar was only searching for a pretext; for of course he had no authority to interfere, unasked, with a passage through the territory of the Sequani. One motive in writing the Commentaries, we must remember, was to produce political effect in Rome.

2. fieret: Et. 256. — futurum [esse] ut haberet, &c., it would be to the great peril of the province (§ 329. n.; G. 507; H. 501. 1) that it should have: the clause ut . . . haberet being subject of futurum [esse], a kind of periphrastic future (§ 288. f; G. 240; H. 537. 3) carried into the past by sequence of tenses (intellegebat). — locis (loc. abl.) patentibus, in an open country: the S. W. part of Gaul is a broad river valley, giving easy access to the province.

3. munitioni praefecit, he put in command of the fortification. Labienum: this was Cæsar's best officer, a prominent and influential politician, of strongly democratic sympathies. He served Cæsar faithfully through the Gallic wars, but when the Civil war broke out, he joined what he conceived to be the party of the republic, went over to Pompey, and was killed at Munda.

legaturn, legate, lieutenant: no English word exactly translates this. The legatus was employed by the commander as his trusted assistant in the most important duties,—to negotiate treaties, to lead independent armies, to command single legions. His place was thus entirely distinct from the what is known in modern armies as the general staff, or from the commander's aides-de-camp. There were generally three legati assigned to the commander by the Senate, his wishes being considered in the selection. Cæsar (who was

magnis itineribus, as in Chap. 7. It is also the usual phrase for forced marches of an army. The ordinary day's march of the Romans was about 15 miles; a magnum iter was from 20 to 25 miles.

Each legionary carried, besides his arms and armor, a portion of the entrenching tools (spades, saws, baskets, etc.), spare clothing, material for repairing dress or equipments, his blanket (sagum), hand-mills, cooking utensils, and rations. On a long march, these last would be carried by the

Pack animals. As Cæsar was making a forced march in pursuit of the Helvetians, however, it seems likely in the present case that his men had to carry a good share of their food. Additional supplies followed the army in boats on the Saône (see Chap. 16). The ration for one day was about 2 pounds, and consisted of coarse flour, or unground grain which the soldier must grind for himself. The various articles of baggage were made up into bundles (sarcinae), and these were bound to the upper end of a pole (furca) some 5 or 6 ft. long. On the march this pole was carried on the shoulder. During a halt it could be rested on the ground, and the soldier could lean on it for support. These poles (forked at the top) were a device of the ingenious Marius, and hence were called by the soldiers "Marius's mules" (muli Marianì). The entire weight carried by each man could not have been less than 60 pounds; not very different from the load a modern soldier has on the march.

Aquileiam: an important Roman colony at the head of the Adriatic. It continued to be the chief port of trade for this region till outgrown by Venice. — educit: Et. 12.

qua proximum iter, i.e. by way of Susa and Turin, by Mt. Genèvre. Ocelum is identified with Oulx (or Houlx), a little southwest of Turin. The more direct way by Mt. Cenis began to be used under Augustus.

4. compluribus . . . pulsis, interlocked order, his agreeing with pulsis (§ 344. h). — ab Ocelo pervenit, came through from Ocelum. — trans Rhodanum, towards the west, as the Rhone, at Lyons, turns abruptly to the south. His object was to head off the Helvetians, who had advanced westwardly, north of the upper course of the river, and had now reached the territory of the Ædui. Caesar's army by this time amounted to nearly 25,000 men; the Helvetians had between 80,000 and 100,000 warriors to oppose him, with (probably) at least 8500 wagons.

Chap. 11. jam traduxerant [Et. 12], had already brought across; per angustias, i.e. through the Pas de l'Ecluse, before described. The emperor Napoleon III. enters into a calculation to show that Cæsar's absence cannot have occupied less than two months; so that the following events took place in the latter part of June. — rogatum (supine), to ask.

2. ita se, understand dicentes or some such word. In direct discourse, this will be, "Ita [nos] . . . meriti sumus, ut pæne in conspectu exercitus tui, . . . liberi nostri . . . non debuerint": We have so deserved . . . that our fields ought not to have been wasted, &c.

meritos: "Alone among the Gauls," says Tacitus, "the Ædui claim the name of brotherhood with the Roman people" (Ann. xi.
I. 10-12.] The Helvetic War. 25

There was even a later fiction of a common descent from Troy for the Arverni (Lucan, i. 427). So it was an old notion that Britain had its name from Brutus, a grandson of Ascanius.

3. Haedui Ambarri, the Ædui near the Arar (or Saône), occupying the angle between that river and the Rhone. (Some editions omit Haedui in this title; others write, eodem tempore quo Aedui, Ambarri quoque.)

necessarii, close connections (bound by necessitudo, or community of interests of any kind); consanguinei, blood-kindred.

depopulatis agris . . . prohibere, their fields were already wasted, and they were with difficulty attempting to keep off, &c. (see § 292. R.; G. 667. r.¹; H. 549. 5).

8. 4. nihil esse reliqui (part. gen.), there is nothing left to them, except the very soil of the fields.

5. non exspectandum (esse), must not wait (lit. it was not to be waited).—sociorum: the Helvetians would be sure to levy upon the allies of the Romans wherever they found them.

Chap. 12. flumen, &c., the Arar (Saône) is a river which flows through, &c.; not between, which would be expressed by dividit. The Saône joins the Rhone about 75 miles south-west of Lake Geneva.—lenitate, not so much slowness as smoothness; contrasting not only with the Rhone, but with the swiftness and turbidness of the rivers in Italy.

ratibus, rafts of logs; lintribus, canoes of hollowed logs, joined, perhaps, two and two, with a broad deck covering them. The swift streams of the south of Europe are often crossed by boats swung from moorings at some distance up-stream, and carried across either way by the force of the current.—in . . . fluat, indir. question following judicari.

2. exploratores, scouts; a detachment of cavalry always preceded the army and scoured the country in every direction to get news of the enemy.—partes, object of duxisse; flumen governed by trans in composition (§ 239. b; G. 330. r.¹; H. 376), had conveyed three fourths . . . across this river.—Ararim: for the acc. in im, see §§ 55. d, 56. a¹ (names of rivers); H. 62. III. 1.—reliquam = relictam: in fact this adjective is, from its meaning, a kind of participle.
Notes: Caesar.

de tertia vigilia: the night, from sunset to sunrise, was divided into four equal watches, the third beginning at midnight. This movement took place directly after (de) the watch began.

3. conoidit (con, caedo), cut to pieces. — mandaverunt = mandaverunt (§ 128. a; G. 1915; H. 235), abandoned (lit. gave in hand, manu, do); abdiderunt, hid (lit. put away).

pagus: this "district" (Tigurinus) is about the modern Zürich. The inhabitants of the pagus probably composed a clan, and formed a division of the force.

4. L. Cassium, see Chap. 7. — deorum: this reference to a special providence is noticeable in so stern a realist as Caesar, and was probably for political effect. Compare his curious account of the divine omens which accompanied his victory over Pompey, B.C. iii. 105.

quae pars intulerat . . . ea persolvit, render that part which, &c. (see § 200. b. n.; G. 622; H. 445. 9).

poenas persolvit, paid the penalty. Punishment was regarded among the ancients, not as suffering to be inflicted, but as of the nature of a fine or penalty to be paid; hence sumere, to inflict, and dare or solvere, to suffer.

In 1862, numerous remains were discovered buried in two trenches, probably of those slain in this battle, — "pell-mell, skeletons of men, women, and children." — Hist. of Julius Caesar.

5. injurias [Et. 125], wrongs, not simply damage, as the word came to mean afterwards. From Cæsar's point of view, an offensive war against Rome is necessarily wrong. Besides, hostility or friendship towards a foreign state might become a family tradition, and so a bounden duty. — ultus est, avenged.

soceri: L. Calpurnius Piso, father of Shakespeare's Calphurnia, and consul of the present year (see end of Chap. 6).

Chap. 13. consequi, overtake (hence the frequent meaning acquire). — pontem faciendum curat, has a bridge made (§ 294. d; G. 431; II. 544). — pontem; with the van of the army marched a body of engineers, who could rapidly bridge any ordinary river. This was very likely a bridge of boats. It must be observed, however, that the Romans always preferred a ford to a bridge, whenever practicable. They had no powder to keep dry. — in, upon, not simply over.
2. cum ... intellegent, clause of relative time (§§ 323, 325; G. 586; H. 521. II. 2). — id, object of fecisse, and in appos. with ut . . . transirent. — diebus viginti, in the course of 20 days (§ 256; G. 392; H. 429).

legatos, a participle of lego (depute), used as a noun: hence, diplomatically, envoy or ambassador, and in military affairs lieutenant. — legationis, a collective noun, and so answering (by synesis) to the plural legatos. — Divico, now an old man, since the battle in which he was commander took place 49 years before.

9. 3. si pacem, &c.: compare the form of direct discourse given to this address, Grammar (A. & G.), p. 251. — in eam partem . . . ubi, to whatever part, i.e. of Gaul. They were not, however, to be turned back from their migration. — reminisceretur (subj. for imperative): remember [said he]. — incommodi, disaster (lit. inconvenient); cf. “the late unpleasantness,” for our civil war): for the government of the genius, see § 219; G. 375; H. 406. II.

4. improviso, unexpectedly, by surprise (properly abl. abs. § 255. b; G. 438. R.²; H. 431. N.²). — suis, to their own people (§ 190. a; G. 195. R.¹; H. 441. 1). — ne tribueret (for imperative), he should not ascribe it. — dolo, craft: insidiis, ambuscade.

5. ne committeret ut, &c., i.e. let him not commit the error, &c. (§ 332. e; G. 557; H. 498. II. N.²). — ubi constissent, where they had taken their stand (notice the intensive force of con).

Chap. 14. eo (abl. of cause) minus . . . quod, . . . teneret, he had all the less hesitation because he kept in mind, &c. eo gravius . . . quo minus (§§ 106. c, 250. R.; G. 400; H. 423): he was the more incensed, in proportion as the Roman people had less deserved, &c.

2. qui si fisset, now if they (the Roman people) had been. — non fuisse (for fuit of dir. disc.), it would not have been. — eo decepsum [esse], they had been deceived by this.

quare timeret = propter quod, referring to id (understood), subject of commissum [esse], in the sense of anything that should give them fear, and follows intellegent: because they (the Roman people) did not know what they had done to be afraid of.

3. quod si (§ 240. b; G. 331. R.² 612. R.¹; H. 453. 6) . . . vellet, but if they should consent to forget, &c. — num posse = could they, &c.
injuriarum, obj. of memoriam. — eo invito = against his will. — quod . . . vexassent is a clause of fact, properly indicative, § 333; G. 525; H. 516, but subj. by indirect discourse.

4. sua, their own (the Helvetians); so se tulisse (= intulisse), that they had committed. The clause quod . . . admirarentur is subj. of pertinere: As for their boasting [because they boasted] so insolently of their victory, &c., it comes (amounts) to the same thing (lit. to the same place).

5. quos . . . his, to grant an interval of prosperity and longer impunity to those whom they wish to punish for their guilt: the relative clause, as usual, preceding the demonstrative (§ 201. c; G. 622; H. 572. II. n.). “Divico had not said anything in the way of direct boasting. This eloquent passage was perhaps an answer to his manner, or to the fact that he was the same Divico who had slain Lucius Cassius.” Observe the change to primary tenses, when the language of Cæsar expresses a general truth.

10. Chap. 15. equitatum: the cavalry was wholly made up of contingents furnished by subjects (of the provinces) or allies (as the Aedui). — coactum habebat, lit. had collected (§ 292. c; G. 230; H. 388. i. n.): more strictly held (had in hand) after being collected.

2. cupidius, too eagerly (§ 86. b, 93. a; G. 312; H. 444. 1). — novissimum agmen, the rear: agmen is the army in line of march (ago); and its newest part is that which comes along last. — alieno loco, an unfavorable ground (“another’s”); so suo would be favorable (“one’s own”).

3. sublati (tollo), elated. — equitibus, abl. of means. — subsistere, to make a stand. — novissimo agmine (loc. abl.), at their rear.

4. satis habebat, held it sufficient. — hostem . . . prohibere, in appos. with satis, as object of habebat.

5. ita, uti, in such a way that (correl.). — quinis, senis, distributives, implying that this was the constant or average distance between the two armies. The country here is very irregular and broken; so that it was impossible for Cæsar to get any advantage by a rapid march, or by an attack on the Helvétian rear.
I. 14-17. cotidie = quotidie (see § 7 ; G. 7). — Haeduos frumentum, demanded corn of the Jdouii (§ 239. e; G. 333; H. 374). — flagitâre, historical infinitive (§ 275. r.; G. 650; H. 536. 1). — flagitâre means an earnest and repeated demand accompanied with reproaches. — frigora, the cold seasons, or spells of cold: not the cold in general. The climate of Gaul in Cæsar's day was much colder than that of France now (see Parke Godwin's Hist. of France, p. 11). The change has come from clearing away the forests, and draining the marshes which then covered much of the country. — frumenta, the plural is regularly used of standing grain. — pabuli, green fodder (root in pasco). The crops of grain (frumenta) were not ripe because it was too early in the season (about the last of June); the green fodder was scarce because Cæsar was following in the path of the Helvetians, whose thousands of cattle had swept the country bare. — frumento, object of uti. — flumine, § 258. g; but G. 387 and H. 420. — navibus, § 248; G. 403; H. 414. 4. — propterea ... quod, see Chap. 1.² — ab Arare: i.e. towards the valley of the Loire, westerly.

2. ducere (histor. infin.), dragged on. — conferri, &c. [frumentum]: as English has no present passive form, translate, "said it was getting together, was coming in, was close by." — metiri, measure out: the allowance was about 30 pounds a fortnight. — Divitiaco, Lisco, abl. in appos. with principibus. — summo magistratui, praeferre, held the chief office, of which the Celtic title was guerg breth, "executor of judgment," represented in Latin by vergobretus. — in suos, over his people.

III. 3. necessario (attrib.), at so urgent a time; propinquis (not attrib., but pred.), with the enemy so near.

Chap. 17. privatim plus possint, have more power in private station: some copies read privati, as private men.

2. improba oratione, reckless talk. — ne (§ 331. e; G. 548; H. 505. II.) ... praeferre, from bringing (lest they bring) the corn which they were bound to furnish; [representing that] if they could no longer hold the chief rank in Gaul, they prefer the rule of Galls to [that of] Romans.

This sentence gives a good example of what is called a Various Reading. It must be remembered that these Commentaries were first written as rough notes, or memoranda, and were afterwards copied by hand for centuries before their form was fixed by printing. The sentence as it stands is that given in the best editions; some of which, however, have perferre, bear, for praeferre, prefer. In the above rendering, praestare has the active meaning, to furnish, and quam the meaning than, after the comparative implied in praeferre. This makes the sense clear, but is awkward and hard. To remedy it, the neatest and best conjecture is to put the pause after conferant, read debeat for the plural debeant, and perferre for praeferre, thus: "detrerrere ne frumentum conferant; quod praestare debeat, si jam principatum Galliae obtinere non possint, Gallorum quam Romanorum imperium perferre." Here quod is because, and quam follows the comparative in praestare, taken in the neuter sense of excel: and the passage reads, from bringing in the corn, since it must be better (praestare debeat) to bear, &c. But there is no manuscript authority for debeat. Some would read dicant for debeant: since, they say, it is better, &c.; but this is mere conjecture. Others, again, put satius esse after perferre, but this is only an explanatory note, written by some early editor.

neque dubitare quin, § 319. d; G. 551. 2; H. 505. I. — debeant: a word given thus in brackets is one of which the authority is doubtful; it may sometimes require to be omitted in translation. — superaverint, perf. subjunctive for fut. perf. ind. (same form) of direct disc. — Haeduis, dative, § 229; G. 346; H. 385. II. 2.

3. a se, i.e. by Liscus, as chief magistrate. — quin etiam, nay even: often written as one word. — quam diu, as long as. — necessario, unavoidably; coactus, on compulsion (being forced).

Chap. 18. pluribus praesentibus (abl. abs.), in the presence of several. — jactari, bandied about (freq. of jacio). — Liscum retinet, [but] keeps Liscus. The omission of the conjunction (asynclton) is very common in Cæsar’s rapid narrative.

2. ex solo, from him apart. — secreto (secerno), each by himself. — summa audacia, [a man] of the utmost boldness.

3. portoria, customs-dues, levied at the frontier, collected (apparently) as by the Romans through publicani, who bid for the contract at public auction. The other vectigalia, farmed out for collection in the same way, were tithes on farm produce, rent of public pastures, &c. — redempta, agreeing with vectigalia, and taken with habere, had bought in (see Chap. 151). — illo licente, when he bid.

4. ad largiendum, for gifts, to buy political support.
12. largiter posse, had extensive power. — causā, for the sake: as always when thus following a genitive. — potentiae, power, as an attribute of the person: potestas is power to do anything; facultas, opportunity; imperium, military authority. — Biturigibus, near the modern Bourges. — ex matre, on the mother's side (a half-sister). — collocasse, had contracted in marriage (nuptum).

5. favere . . . Helvetiis (dat.), he favored and wished well to the Helvetians. — adfinitatem, family alliance. — suo nomine, on his own account (a mercantile phrase applying to business debts, &c).

6. si quid accidat (a mild phrase), in case of any disaster. — imperio (abl. of time and cause), under the rule.

7. quod . . . factum, a kind of adverbial phrase = in regard to the unsuccessful cavalry skirmish fought the other day.

Chap. 19. res, facts. — accederent, were added: accedo, approach, is used as a kind of passive of addō. — inter eos, i.e. the Helvetii and Sequani. — injussu suo, &c., without his authority (see § 71. b; G. 76. B; H. 134) or that of the state: here suo is equivalent to a genitive. — inscientibus ipsis, without his own knowledge or that of the Aeduī. magistratu: Liscus was vergobret. — in eum animadvertēret; should proceed against or punish him (see vocab.).

2. quod . . . cognoverat, that he well knew, &c. (the present inceptive, cognosco, having the meaning to learn). This clause, in apposition with unum, might in English be introduced by some such word as namely. — studium, attachment as partisan; voluntatem, good will as friend. — supplicio, punishment or execution. This word is derived from the adjective supplex, down-bent, signifying on the bended knee; i.e. either as a suppliant for mercy, or (as here) to receive the blow of the executioner.

3. prius quam conaretur, before he should attempt; see § 327; G. 579; H. 520. — per connects Procillum with colloquittur. — principem, a leading man. — cui, &c.: an easier construction would be cujus fidei omnes res credebant; summam fidem, full confidence.

13. commonefacit, warns or notifies (see vocab.). — ipso, i.e. Divitiacus. — apud se, in his (Cæsar's) presence. — offensione animi, displeasure (of Divitiacus); ipse, which follows, refers to Cæsar: he hopes, in what steps he takes or orders to be taken against Dumnorix, not to incur the resentment of his brother.

Chap. 20. ne quid gravius (a common phrase), no severe measures. Notice that gravius is an adjective. What does it modify?

2. scire se, &c., "I know," said he, "that this is true, and no one can be more pained at it than I." — plus doloris: except as an adverb, this comparative is mostly used, as here, with the partitive genitive. — capere [Et. 33]. — ipse se, suam, sese, all refer to Divitiacus; ille to Dumnorix, which is also the subject of crevisset and uteretur. — opibus ac nervis = sinaews of power, obj. of uteretur. — gratiam, as well as perniciem, takes suam. — amore fraterno (§ 190. b; G. 363. r.; H. 395. n. 2), love to his brother.

3. si quid accidisset = if anything should happen (a Euphemism); plup. representing fut. perf. ind. (acciderit) by sequence of tenses: a future condition (§ 307. f; G. 659; H. 525. 2). — futurum [esse] uti . . . averterentur (periphrastic future infin., § 147. c. 288. f; G. 240; H. 537. 3), the heart of all Gaul would be turned from him.

4. rogat [ut] faciat, see § 331. f. r.; G. 546. r. 3; H. 499. 2. — tanti, of so great account (§ 252. a; G. 379; H. 405). — condonet: "Cæsar pretended to yield to the prayers of the Druid, but in fact he yielded to necessity. He was in great straits, with a warlike enemy in front and doubtful allies around him, on whom his army was dependent for food" (Long: compare Bk. v. Chap. 6).

praeterita [Et. 493], things bygone ("the past"). — Dumnorigiponit (= adponit), sets over him. — custodes, spies.

Chap. 21. qualis esset, &c., indir. question after cognoscerent. — natura, character; qualis . . . ascensus = the chance of ascending it [what kind of an ascent there was] at [various points of] its circuit. — qui cognoscerent (§ 317; G. 632; H. 497. 1): the antecedent of qui is quosdam, or some such word, as object of misit, he sent men to ascertain.

2. facilem, sc. ascensum. — pro praetore, with powers of praetor. The praetor, like the consul, held the imperium or power to command; a legatus, not possessing this in his own right, might be temporarily invested with it by his commander. Labienus, and perhaps others of Cæsar’s lieutenants, had the imperium in their own right, by special grant.

14. ducibus (pred.), as guides. — qui . . . cognoverant, i.e. of the party of reconnaissance — consilii, part. gen. limiting quid. — de quarta vigilia, about 2 A.M., the sun at this season rising here about 4 o’clock. — contendit, pushed on.

3. Sullae, Crassi: Sulla (the dictator) had conducted the war against Mithridates about 30 years before (B.C. 88–84), and Crassus that against Spartacus some years later (B.C. 71). — captivos: Et.

Chap. 22. aut Labieni, or Labienus’s: this predicate use of the genitive is rare in Latin. — equo admissō = at full speed (with reins thrown loose).

2. insignibus, i.e. devices on shields and helmets, — stags’ horns, eagles’ plumes, &c., — the origin of modern heraldry. The inference from this report would be that Labienus had been cut to pieces, and Cæsar must expect an attack at once. This accounts for his next movement, which was to fall back and wait in line of battle, while Labienus was vainly expecting him.

3. ut, as. — ne . . . committeret . . . essent, subject of erat praeceptum. — ut . . . fieret, so that the attack might be made on all sides at once. — monte occupato, &c., having seized the height, continued to look out for our men.

4. multō die (loc. abl.), late in the day. — quod non vidisset, what he had not seen, sc. id, obj. of renuntiasse. — pro viso, as if seen (viso is used here as a noun). — quo, sc. eodem, at the same interval as usual; mīlia (acc.), § 257. b; G. 335; H. 379.

Chap. 23. diei, § 214. g; G. 371. r.; H. 398. 5. — omnino, in all (only). — supererat: Et. 459. — cum = within which. — Bibracte, the modern Mont Beuvray, a considerable hill, about 10 miles west of Autun (Augustodunum). — rei frumentariae (dat.), the supply of corn.

2. fugitivos, runaways. The regular word would be transfugas: the term which generally means fugitive slaves is here applied, contemptuously, to deserters from the cavalry of the Gallic allies.

decurionis: the auxiliary cavalry (the entire cavalry force) was divided into alae, or battalions, consisting each of 10 turmae, or troops, and these again into three decuriae, of probably 10 men, each originally commanded by a decurio. In Cæsar's time, however, the decurio commanded the turna. AEmilius was the senior officer.

3 eo magis (abl. of difference), all the more.

—locis, &c., though holding higher ground.—occupatis: Et.

15. eo quod . . . confiderent (abl. of cause), for this reason because they felt sure that they (the Romans) could be cut off from their supplies.

itinere converso: the fatal step which led to their complete destruction.

The Helvetians were now well in advance of Cæsar, and might probably have continued their march unmolested to the coast, had not their vain confidence turned them back. Cæsar's army was at this time not far from 60,000 men, including about 20,000 auxiliaries, mostly "Gaulish mountaineers"; so that he was a full match, in a fair field, for the Helvetians, who had now about 70,000 fighting men.

Chap. 24. animum advertit (=vertit animum ad: usually written as one word, animadvertit): to turn the mind upon any thing is to notice it; hence this phrase takes a direct object (id) like a single transitive verb. — qui sustineret = to sustain (§ 317. r.; G. 544; H. 497. 1).

2. in colle medio, half way up the hill.—triplicem aciem (Et. 2), &c.—four veteran legions in triple line. — in summo jugo, i.e.
on the level top of the hill. — ac = and thus. — sarcinas, packs (personal baggage). — eum, this [place]. — his qui, &c., those who stood (had taken their stand) in the upper (i.e. rear) ranks: these were the two new legions, opposed to veteranarum, above.

The Order of Battle. — The favorite position of the Romans, the locus superior, was a hillside, not too steep, with the enemy below. The line of battle was formed across the slope, and here the Romans awaited the attack. If at the foot of the hill there was a morass, a stream, or other obstacle likely to confuse the hostile ranks, it was so much the better.

In the triple order of battle, the first line contained four cohorts, and each of the others contained three (see Fig. 28). Between each cohort and the next one in the same line was left an interval equal in extent to the front of a cohort. Behind these intervals in the first and second lines were placed the cohorts of the second and third lines respectively. The distance from the rear of either line to the front of the one behind it was also equal to the front of a cohort. We may consider the front of a cohort in battle array to have been (on an average) about 120 ft. in extent, and the depth to have been 40 ft. Then 1 legion extended 840 ft. in front and 600 ft. in depth; and the entire front of Caesar's line of battle of 4 legions, including the intervals between the legions, was 3720 ft., or about \( \frac{3}{4} \) of a mile.

As the 3 maniples of a cohort were placed side by side, the front of each would occupy 40 ft. Allowing 4 ft. for the interval between the maniples, in which interval stood the centurions, and 3 ft. room for each man, the maniple would consist of 12 files. The distance from breast to breast in the files was quite likely 4 ft. Thus the file would contain 10 men, and the maniple would form a square of 40 ft. on a side. The first 5 ranks formed the first ordo (or century), and the remainder were the second. The first centurion stood at the right of the front rank of the first ordo, and the second centurion had a like station in the second.

When the enemy had reached the right distance, the bugle sounded the charge, and the legions rushed down hill to meet them, sword in sheath, and the first two ranks with spears uplifted (pilis infestis) ready to hurl.
Plan II. Battle with the Helvetians. Bk. I. Ch. 24-26.

1. The new legions and auxiliaries.
2. Caesar's camp.
3. The Helvetians' baggage, parked.
4. The Boii and Tulingi.

The heavy lines show the first position of the two armies. The mountain to which the Helvetians fled lies immediately west of the modern village of Las. Just south of that village, the light dotted lines show the position of the Helvetians at their second attack, and, facing them, the second position of the first two lines of the Romans. The third line has wheeled to the right, to meet the flank attack of the Boii and Tulingi.
When within 25 to 50 ft. of the opposing phalanx, the two ranks hurled their heavy spears in a shower, and immediately drew their short swords and charged fiercely upon the disordered mass of the foe. The odd numbers of the front rank sprang forward to gain room (3 ft. would answer for marching or for using the spears, but at least 6 ft. would be required to give space enough for the swords). The even numbers and the entire second rank followed as a support.

Along the front of the cohort exists now a series of single combats. The third, fourth, and fifth ranks press close up, to aid their comrades and to take the place of any that fall, and meanwhile throw their spears over the heads of the combatants among the throng of the enemy behind. The remaining five ranks of the cohort follow slowly, as a reserve.

In the meantime the second line is advancing, and, if the enemy do not at once give way, the first line is withdrawn, and the cohorts of the second rush through the intervals and attack with spear and sword. The wearied first line is now occupied in re-forming and getting breath for a new onset, which is made after a lapse of from ten to fifteen minutes.

We see that we must imagine the legion in battle as in almost constant motion. The two lines are hurled successively against the enemy, giving the latter no rest, and wearing them out by the incessant blows of the cohorts. The third line, however, is held in reserve, and is only brought into action in case the other two prove insufficient to cause the enemy to break.

The cavalry are drawn up in the rear or on the flanks of the army, ready, should the hostile array be broken and routed, to plunge into the flying mass and cut them to pieces.

The Gallic Array and Arms.—The Macedonian phalanx had a front of about 500 men and a depth of 16. That of the Gaus and Germans was doubtless of similar form, but of varying numbers. The men stood close together, forming a compact mass. The shields of the front rank formed a vertical wall, and those of the rest were held overhead, lapping over one another like the shingles on a roof, only in the reverse order. It will be seen that the phalanx depended for its success on the momentum of its mass. However, only those on its outer edges could use their weapons, while the rest were practically imprisoned in the crowd. Here the Romans had a great advantage; for, from their open and pliable order of battle, nearly every man sooner or later was in action. Hence, although they might be greatly inferior in number, they could bring into use more swords and spears at a given point than could their enemies.
The Gallic sword was very long, two-edged, and sheathed in an iron scabbard that was suspended at the right side by an iron or bronze chain. This sword had no point, and hence was adapted rather for cutting than thrusting. The spear had a blade at least 2 ft. long and 6 to 8 in. wide, sometimes of an undulated form. As missile weapons, light javelins, bows and slings were used. The helmet was of metal, adorned with the horns of animals, having a crest representing a bird or savage beast, and surmounted by a high and bushy plume of feathers. The shield was of plank, at least 5 ft. long, and very narrow. The body was guarded besides by an iron or bronze breastplate, or by a coat of mail. This last was a Gallic invention.

Chap. 25. suo [equo], having sent back his own and all the others' horses. This was often done before an engagement (cf. Sall. Cat. 59). He is reported to have said to his men, "I will mount again when the enemy run."

2. impedimento, dat. of service, § 233; G. 350; H. 390.—pluribus, several. For the whole of this description, compare what is said above of the form of this javelin and the close order of the phalanx.—evellere, pull them out.—sinistra impedita (parenthesis), since the left hand was shackled.—multi ut, many [to such a degree] that.—nudo, unprotected.

3. pedem referre, fall back: not retreat, which would be terga vertere.—mille, acc. of distance, the idea of distance being implied in suberat.

4. agmen claudebant, brought up their rear. The Boii or Tulingi, with about 15,000 men, had been in front of the Helvetian line of march, and were consequently in the rear when they faced round to attack Cæsar. They now struck at his exposed right flank (latere aperto) as they came on the field from the road (ex itinere).

16. conversa signa intulerunt, faced about (lit. "bore their reversed ensigns upon" the enemy), and charged in two divisions. The divisions stood not back to back, but at an angle, facing outward; the two front lines facing forward, while the third met the flank attack of the new-comers (venientes). The phrase conversa signa refers only to the movement of the third line, while intulerunt denotes the action of the entire army.
The Military Standards. — The term signa (signa militaria), in a general sense, applied to all the standards of the army. That of the legion was an eagle (aquila), usually of silver, about the size of a dove, and carried on the top of a wooden staff. The staff was shod with iron so that it might be thrust into the ground. Often it was adorned with a vexillum, a little flag, or banner, suspended from a cross-bar at the top. The vexillum was red or white, and was inscribed with the number or name of the legion. The eagle was intrusted to the first cohort, and especially to the care of its oldest centurion. Its bearer (aquilifer) was a soldier selected for his courage and fidelity.

The standard of the cohort was the signum, in the narrower sense of that word. It was usually the figure of an animal—a wolf or sheep, for instance—on a staff. Its bearer was the signifer. Vexilla were also carried on the flanks of the maniples to mark the alignment, performing the same office as "guidons" in a modern battalion. Thus there must have been at least four vexilla in a cohort,—perhaps eight, if each century required them for its alignment.

The cavalry and light troops and all separate detachments (see Bk. VI. Chap. 36) carried only the vexillum. Its bearer was called vexillarius. There was another standard called vexillum, the flag of the general. This was a large banner, white, with an inscription in red letters giving the general's name, that of his army, &c. It was placed near the headquarters tent in the camp, and when displayed was the signal for march or battle (see Bk. II. Chap. 20).

Chap. 26. ancipiti, two-headed, thus facing two ways at once. — alteri, the Helvetians; alteri, the Boii, &c.

2. ab hora septima, i.e. from a little past 1 P.M.; sunset was about eight, so that each of the twelve daylight hours was about an hour and a quarter of our time. — aversum hostem = an enemy’s back. — ad multam noctem, till late in the night. — pro vallo, as a barricade. — e loco superiore, from vantage-ground, i.e. the height of the carts, &c. — coniciebant, subiciebant, hurled (from above), thrust (from below). For the form of these words, see § 10. d; H. 36. 4 [Et. 493]. The semi-vowel j is lost before i: therefore in most dictionaries look for conjicio, subjicio. — mataras, heavy Gallic pikes, thrown from the hand; tragulas, light javelins, used by Gauls and Spaniards.

4. Lingōnum, i.e. the southern part of Champagne, towards the north. — propter, &c., gives the reason of morati.

5. Lingonas, Greek form of the accusative (§ 63. f, & 64; G. 73; H. 68), common in these names of tribes. — qui si juvisserent = for if they should, &c. — eodem loco habiturum, would hold on the same footing. — sequi: Et. 497.

In the year 1860, numerous burial mounds near the place of this battle (in which considerably more than 100,000 human beings must have perished) were opened, and found to contain skeletons buried face downward, with knives, bracelets, rings, and hair-pins of bronze, very similar to the Campaign against Ariovistus.

I. 26–28. Campaign against Ariovistus. It has been conjectured that these lake-dwellings were among those destroyed at the time of the Helvetian migration (see De Saulcy, Campaigns of Cæsar in Gaul).

Chap. 27. qui . . . paruerunt; observe the change of subject in this sentence, from legati to Cæsar, as well as the change of mood with the same subject, convenissent, paruerunt. The syntax will present no difficulty. — projecissent; Et. 493.

2. qui perfugissent, fugitive slaves from the Province. — conquiruntur, conferuntur: to express the passive in English, it is often better to use the active form, while they are hunting these up and bringing them together. — nocte intermissa, when the night was past: i.e. it was then ascertained what had happened early in the evening. — Verbigenus, from the parts between Berne and Lucerne.

17. occultari, be hid from Cæsar; ignorari, unknown to anybody. — contenderunt ad, made (rapidly) for.

Chap. 28. quorum: the antecedent is his (dat.) following imperavit, the direct object of which is uti . . . reducerent. — sibi (dat. of reference), in his eyes — reductos . . . habuit, when brought back, he treated them as enemies, i.e. massacred them all: the phrase is regularly used in this signification.

in deditionem accepit: by this act they became formally the subjects of the Republic, and were entitled to its protection, as well as required to obey its requisitions and pay tribute.

2. reverti, turn back (from a march or journey; redire, go back, from a place of rest). — fructibus = frugibus (which is found in some copies), grain and other field produce. — tolerarent: Et. 195. — copiam facerent, provide a supply. — ipsos, the Helvetians.

3. ea ratione, with this view. — Allobrogibus: these were within the Province.

4. petentibus Haeduīs, to the Ædui, at their request: dat. after concessit, of which the object is, ut Boios collocarent. (Boios is put first in the sentence for emphasis.) — parem atque ipsi erant = equal with themselves (§ 156. a²; G. 646; H. 451. 5). — juris: Et. 125. — condicionem: for the form of this word, see § 12. a.
Chap. 29. tabulae, tablets, of the shape of a folding slate, with wax spread inside, written on with a pointed instrument called stilus. litteris Graecis; not in the Greek language, but in Greek letters. These were probably learned from colonists at Marseilles, as the Gauls had no alphabet of their own. Specimens of Gallic names on coins are in the names DUBNOREX, AIVICIACOS, VERCINGETORIXS.

—relatae: Et. 195.—ratio, an estimate, followed by the indir. question qui . . . exisset.—confectae, made out.

2. caputum [Et. 52], "souls."—ad milia xcii., about 92,000.

3. summa, the sum: fuerunt agreeing with the plural predicate. Deducting the Boii, who were adopted by the Aedui, this reckoning would show an actual loss, in slain or captives (slaves), in this short campaign, of about 250,000, including probably about 150,000 women and children, or other non-combatants.

German Campaign.—The latter half of this Book is taken up with the expulsion of a military settlement of Germans, which had been made a few years before, under Ariovistus, a chief of the Suevi.

The occasion of this new campaign was the following. The Aedui, jealous of the Sequani, who lived a little to the north, had laid excessive tolls on their trade, which consisted chiefly in the export of salted meats for the southern market.* This led to a war, in which the Sequani had invited the aid of the Germans under Ariovistus, about three years before the campaign of Caesar. The Germans, once in Gaul, had exacted a large share of territory, and proved to be grasping and oppressive masters. Meanwhile the Helvetian war began to threaten. The Roman Senate, to make safe, passed the decrees before mentioned, promising favor and friendship to the Aedui (Chap. 11); and at the same time sent messengers to Ariovistus, saluting him as king and friend (Chap. 35), recognizing his claims on Gaul, and (it was said) inviting him to Rome. This was the year before, in Cæsar's consulship. Now, however, that the fear of the Helvetians was passed, Cæsar found himself obliged to take sides in the old quarrel.

18. Chap. 30. principes: Et. 33; intellegere: id. 440.—populi Romani, against, &c. (obj. gen. after injuriis).—ab his repetisset, had inflicted on them (see Chap. 124).—ex usu, to the advantage.

* "From this region," says Strabo, "the best of pickled pork is sent to Rome" (iv. p. 192).
2. co consilio, with this design, explained by the purpose-clause uti...haberent. — florentissimis rebus, i.e. with no plea of necessity. — domicilio, for habitation. — ex magna copia = from a wide choice, implied in quem...judicassent. — stipendiarias, tributary: stipendium is the tax paid by a subject community.

3. uti sibi liceret, that it might be allowed them. — concilium totius Galliae: of course Caesar had no authority to allow or prohibit a congress of independent Gaul. But, considering his power and ambition, they thought it best to secure his countenance (voluntate, not auctoritate) beforehand. They also had business that specially concerned him. — petere: Et. 173.

4. jure jurando sanxerunt, ordained under oath [of secrecy]: the object is ne quis, &c. — enuntiare, inform of the proceedings. — nisi quibus, &c., except [to those] to whom some commission should be assigned (pluperf. for fut. perf.).

Chap. 31. eo concilio dimisso, i.e. when this assembly had been held and dissolved, after providing for the business now described. — idem ([idem], nom. plural. — secreto, apart; in occulto, in a secret place.

2. Caesari, dat. of reference (see § 235. a; G. 343. R.²; H. 384. 4. N.³) = at Caesar's feet. — id (in apposition with ne...enuntiarentur) contendere, &c., they no less urgently desired their account to be kept secret than to obtain the thing they sought (ind. disc. dixissent, for fut. perf. of direct).

3. factiones duas, see note, Chap. 3³. — principatum, leadership. — Arvernos: these inhabited the mountainous country southwest of the Ædui, the modern Auvergne. — factum esse uti, it came to pass that, &c. — Sequanis: these were the rivals of the Ædui on the north.

4. feri ac barbari: as to the condition of the Germans, see introduction. — adamassent (= adamavissent, § 128. a; G. 191⁸; H. 235), had become attached. — horum (emph.), of the latter. — copias (= opes, resources. — plures, notice the emphasis, also in nunc.

19. 5. clientes, the subject states of the Ambarri, Segusiavi, &c. — omnem...equitatum, of course an exaggeration: Divitia-Ccesar.

6. qui ... potuisserat, [they] who had once, &c., were compelled. — repetituros, demand back. — quo minus, following a verb of refusing (§ 317. b; G. 547; H. 497. II. 2), seems originally to have been a phrase of courtesy, implying a less point-blank refusal than ne or quin. — dicione, i.e. to do their bidding.

7. potuerit, in direct discourse potuit, the perfect having a tendency to remain in the perfect (subjunctive), contrary to the rule.

juraret: Et. 125. — Romam venisse, see note, Chap. 3. His application was not successful. See Bk. VI. Chap. 12.

8. pejus accidisse, a worse thing had befallen. Observe that a misfortune is usually said accidere, as if it fell on one, while a good thing is said evenire. — Ariovistus, supposed to be the German word Herfurstä, "prince of the host."

tertiam partem, i.e. upper Alsace, a part of the German conquest of 1870. This was the same proportion of conquered land taken by the German invaders (Burgundians) in this very territory in the fifth century of the Christian era. It seems to have been the ancient common law of conquest (Liv. ii. 41). — optimus: this district (Franche Comté) is one of the most beautiful in France, and the "best wooded." The chief export was dried meat and hams. — nunc ... juberet: so too the Burgundians. — juberet, in direct disc., jubet, he bids. — quibus ... pararentur = to be provided with a place for habitation (subj. of purpose). — venissent: Et. 509.

9. futurum esse uti (periphrastic future), the result would be. — neque enim introduces an explanation admitting no doubt. — hanc = nostram (§ 102. a; G. 290; H. 450), said with some feeling of superiority or contempt.

10. autem, again, a slight antithesis between the king and the things mentioned before. — ut ... vicerit, indir. disc. for ut vicit (§ 324; G. 563; H. 471. 4), once conquered. — Magetobriam, a little west of Vesontio (Besançon). — in eos ... edere, gave forth (i.e. wreaked) all sorts of torments on them (observe the hendiadys).

11. barbarum, &c., rude, passionate, and hasty. — nisi si (see § 315. a; G. 592; H. 507. 3. n.3), &c., unless they find some aid.
20. idem, in appos. with ut . . . experiantur. — ut emigrent, that is, to forsake their home.

12. haec, notice the emphasis. — quin sumat, that he will inflict upon (§ 332. g. R.; G. 551. 2; H. 501. II. 2); lit. take a penalty of. — Rhenum, acc. after trans in traducatur (§ 239. b; G. 330. R.¹; H. 372).

Chap. 32. oratione: Et. 459. — habita, having been spoken (the usual word). — magno: Et. 387. — unos, alone. This whole scene is “most illustrative of the Gallic character.”

2. quae esset, indir. question after miratus. — respondere, historical infinitive.

3. hoc, in this respect. — soli, they alone. — ne . . . quidem, not even secretly. — absenitis (pred.), even when absent. — crudelitatem, obj. of horrerent (§ 177. c; G. 329. R.¹; H. 371. III. n.¹). — tamen, after all, whatever they might have to suffer. — Sequanis, dat. of agent with perferendi (§ 232; G. 353; H. 388), the Sequani must endure (changing the voice).

Chap. 33. sibi curae (dat. of service, § 233; G. 350; H. 390), a care to him. — et . . . et, construe after adductum, induced by both . . . and.

2. secundum, in accordance with: lit. following (§ 153; G. 417; H. 433). — quare putaret, indir. question, following hortabantur. — Haeduos, obj. of videbat and subj. of teneri (below).

21. appellatos (pred.), who had been often called. — quod: the antecedent is the preceding clause Haeduos . . . Sequanos.

3. periculosum, pred., agreeing with Germanos consuescere, &c., he saw it was dangerous to the Roman people for the Germans, little by little, to get in the way of crossing the Rhine, &c. — sibi temperaturos quin exirent, would check themselves [refrain] from going forth. — ut. as; fecissent being subjunctive as dependent on exirent, § 342 (R. 47); G. 666; H. 529. II. n. 1. 1; Cimbri Teutonique: these German tribes had been crushed by Marius (B.C. 102, 101), after having been for several years a terror upon the Italian frontier.

4. Rhodanus = only the Rhone. — rebus, dat. following occurrendum [sibi], § 228 (R. 18); G. 346; H. 386: which things he thought must be met at once.—tantos spiritus, such temper.—non ferendus, unendurable.

Chap. 34. ab eo, of him (§ 239. c. R.; G. 333. R.²; H. 374. N.³). —medium utriusque, between the two. —conloquo (dat.), for a conference. —de republica agere, to treat on public business [Et. 104].

2. si quid, &c., if he needed anything from Cæsar. —opus: § 243. c. R.; G. 390; H. 414. iv. N.⁴; ipsi, dat. of poss. (§ 231; G. 390; H. 387). Observe in this sentence that the reflexives ipse and se refer to Ariovistus (§ 195. k; G. 521. R.²; H. 452. 5), and the demonstratives is, ille, to Cæsar. —se velit, wants of him: the secondary accus. is in analogy with that after verbs of asking. The acc. of neuter pronouns is often used with intransitive verbs or as a second object.

4. mirum quid . . . esset, a sort of indir. question: it seemed strange to him what business, &c.—in sua Gallia, in his [part of] Gaul.—negotii, part. gen. with quid (§ 216. a⁵; G. 371; H. 397. 3).

Chap. 35. tanto . . . adfectus, distinguished by so great favor, &c. (see note before Chap. 30): beneficio is explained by cum . . . esset, and gratiam referret by ut . . . putaret; the first sibi refers to Cæsar and the second to Ariovistus. In this sentence the causal clause is quoniam . . . putaret, and the leading verb is esse: Since, though so greatly favored by the Romans, he made such an [ill] return (hanc gratiam referret) as to grudge coming to a conference when invited, and did not consider that he ought to speak or hear about the common business, [therefore] these were the demands he made (the things he required) of him, &c. Observe that in Latin the significant word is the verb; in English the noun. "Ariovistus knew as well as any one how much gratitude he owed to Rome for these beneficia."

22. 2. ne quam, not any. —voluntate, consent. —ejus refers to Ariovistus, and illis to the Sequani.

3. si non impetraret, if he (Cæsar) should not get [this pledge]. —Messala, &c., i.e. B.C. 61. M. Messala, &c., simply in the consulship, &c., only to indicate the year. —obtineret, should hold (as governor). —censuisset, had voted. —quod = so far as. —
I. 33-37. Campaign against Ariovistus.

 commodo (abl. of specif.) reipublicae, to the advantage of the state. — defenderet: see the reasons, in the note referred to above. — se, a repetition of sese above, to bring it nearer to its verb. — neglecturum: Et. 440.

Chap. 36. jus, a right. — vicissent for vicerint (fut. perf.), following ut. — iis, obj. of imperarent: that those who conquer shall rule those they conquer as (quem ad modum) they will. The verbs are in the past by sequence of tenses (§§ 285, 287. d; G. 518; H. 495. iv.). — item, in like manner. — victis, obj. of imperare. — alterius, any one's else. — arbitrium: Et. 509; praescriberet: id. 122.

3. sibi stipendiarios, tributary to himself. — qui faceret = in making (§ 320. e; G. 636; H. 517).

4. non . . . neque: [on the one hand] he would not restore, &c., but [on the other] he would not wrongfully (injuriā), &c. — convenisset = had been agreed. — longe . . . afuturum, the name of brothers would be a great way off from them, i.e. too far to help them.

5. quod, &c., the whole clause is construed as an adverbial accusative: as to Caesar's threat, &c. — secum, sua, observe that these refer one to Ariovistus, the other to his antagonist. — congrederetur (for imperat.), he might come on when he would; he would know, &c. — inter refers to something coming between two extremes. Hence, when applied to time, it means the entire interval between the beginning and the end of a given period, and may be rendered during. — quid possent, what their strength was.

Chap. 37. eodem tempore, et = at the same time [when] this message, &c.

23. Treveris, from the region of Trèves in the valley of the Moselle. — questum, to complain (supine). — qui . . . essent, who (they said) had just come over (§ 341. a; G. 509; H. 524).

2. ne . . . datis, not even by giving hostages. — pagos (see note, Chap. 12*): these divisions were those known as hundreds, meaning not only the people, but the district they occupied (see Bk. iv. Chap. 1).

3. maturandum sibi, that he must hasten. — minus facile, not very easy: i.e. would be impossible; but this would be a word of ill omen.

resisti (impers., § 230; G. 208; H. 384. 5) posset, they could not be so easily resisted. — ad, towards. — contendit: Et. 186.

Chap. 38. viam, § 257; G. 335; H. 379. — Vesontionem, the modern Besançon, about ninety miles E. N. E. of the former battle-ground. — quod relates to Vesontionem, but agrees in gender with oppidum: § 199; G. 616. 3. II.; H. 445. 4. — profecisse, had advanced.

2. ne, following praecavendum (§ 331. e; G. 548; H. 497. II.). — facultas = facility for obtaining, hence, supply (see note, Chap. 31). — daret: Et. 225. — Dubis, the modern Doux. This name is said to mean "black river"; or, in the form Alduasdubis, "river of black rocks." — ut, as it were.

3. spatium, obj. of continent. — pedum, pred. gen. after est; for construction with amplius, see § 247. c; G. 311. R. 1; H. 417. N. 2. — qua, where. — ripace, nom., subj. of contingent. The real distance is 1600 feet. — hunc [montem]: this an encompassing wall makes into a fortress. Some remains of this wall are yet to be seen.

24. saepenumero, oftentimes. Adverbs are frequently thus strengthened by a qualifying word, usually a genitive: as hic loci, &c. — congressos, having met them. — occupavit, seized.

2. hie, i.e. timor. — ortus: Et. 414. — reliquis, i.e. aids or attachés (contubernales, comites), who attended the governor or commander of a province for the sake of military practice. All these were often appointed from mere personal or political motives, and were of small use in the service, as it proved here. This staff was sometimes called, irregularly, the praetorian cohort. — amicitiae causa: Cæsar’s earlier career had been that of a political adventurer. He was deeply in debt, and probably could not afford to refuse positions to the "poor relations" of his creditors, trusting the valor of his veterans to cover their short-comings. It will be observed that the politic proconsul represents these worthies as having come out of friendship for himself. — _alis aliā causā_, on various pretexts (§ 203. c; G. 306; H. 459. c). — _quam diceret_, which, they said (§ 341. d. r.; G. 539. r.; H. 503. 1).

3. _vultum fingere_, put on a brave face (_vultum_ refers to the expression of the face). — _abditi_, hiding. — _testamenta obsignabant_, indicating utter despair. The word refers to a will, sealed and witnessed in due form, — not the mere informal declaration permitted to soldiers on the eve of battle (_in procinctu_).

4. _in castris_ = _in military life_. — _rem frumentarium . . . timere_ (accus. of anticipation: § 334. c; G. 470; Madvig, 439. Obs. 1), feared [for] the supply of corn, lest it might not be conveniently brought in (§ 331. f; G. 552; H. 498. III.).

5. _cum jussisset_, for _cum jusseris_ (fut. perf.) of direct disc. — _castra moveri_, to break camp. — _dicto audientes_, obedient to the word of command. — _signa laturos_, would carry the standards, i.e. advance. This is the technical term, as the standards were planted in the ground during a halt.

Chap. 40. convocato: _Et. 496._ — _omnium ordinarum_, of all classes. See below. — _incusavit_: _Et. 60._ — _sibi quaeendum . . . putarent_, thought they had a right to inquire (it ought to be inquired) or have any idea (it ought to be thought), in agreement with the interrog. clause _quam . . . ducerentur_.

Relative Rank of the Centurions.

There were ten classes (_ordines_) of centurions in the legion, those of each cohort composing one class, and ranking in the order of the cohorts. The six centurions of the first cohort, then, were the _centuriones primorum ordinum_; those of the second cohort, _secundorum ordinum_, &c.* Usually, only those of the first class were summoned to the council of war. But this was a full council of all the officers, as Caesar desired to make as wide an impression as possible through the army.

Göler thinks that the first class comprised the first centurions from all the cohorts, &c.; thus making six classes of ten in each class. But Caesar mentions an _eighth_ class (B. C. III., 53). So Göler is obliged to assume that the subcenturions (_optiones_) were considered centurions, thus making six more classes.

* Rüstow, Heerwesen und Kriegführung C. Julius Cäsars, pp. 7–12.
We may observe, on this point, that it seemed the uniform policy of the Romans that the cohorts, as well as the officers, should differ in rank, in order that the most experienced and skillful men might form the first line, and those of less experience the last. For the same reason, the best centurions would be needed in the first line, i.e. in the first four cohorts. The passage in Vegetius,* II. 21, we interpret as follows:

As vacancies occurred in the ranks of any cohort, they were filled by detailing the best men from the next lower cohort. Thus recruits would always fall to the tenth cohort, and the first cohort would contain the very flower of the legion. Hence, under ordinary circumstances, when it became necessary to appoint a centurion, selection would be made from the privates of the first cohort (presumably from its first maniple), and he would be assigned as a centurion of the tenth cohort. Then he would pass successively through the grades of that cohort, then through the grades of the ninth, and so on, until he became first centurion of the first cohort (primipilus). Thus the circle (orbem) of service would be complete.

As to the optiones, each centurion seems to have selected his own, as the word implies, and as is expressly stated by Varro, Festus, and Paulus Diaconus. This choice would be impossible if they were graded as Göler supposes.

2. se consulce (direct, me consule), in his consulship. — cur quisquam judicaret, why should any one think? For the form of question, see § 338. R.; G. 654. R.²; H. 523. II. n.; (direct, judicet, dubi. subj.) for the use of quisquam, implying a negative, see § 105. h; G. 304; H. 457. — tam temere discessurum, would fall away so hastily. — sibi persuaderi, for his part he was persuaded (mihi persuadetur, § 230; G. 208; H. 301. 1): the subject of persuaderi is eum . . . repudiaturum. — perspecta: Et. 99.

25. 3. quod si intulisset, but if he should, &c. (dir. disc. intulerit, fut. perf. ind.) — quid tandem, what, pray, were they afraid of? — sua, their own; ipsius, his: ipse, used in this way, to avoid the repetition of sua, is an indirect reflexive.

4. periculum (root in exerior), a trial. — Cimbris, &c., A.D. 102 and 101, a little more than forty years before. — cum . . .

* Nam quasi in orbem quendam per diversas cohortes et diversas scholas milites promoteur, ita ut ex prima cohorte ad gradum quemiam promotus vadat ad decimam cohortem; et rursus ab ea, crescentibus stipendiis, cum majore gradu per alias recurrit ad primam.
videbatur: although this clause was a part of Cæsar's speech to his officers, yet the indicative is used to emphasize to the reader the reality of the fact it asserts (§ 336. b; H. 529. N. 1 2)). It will be noticed that cum is here equivalent to et tum, and the apparent temporal clause is actually coördinate with the preceding infinitive. This is the only instance in the Commentaries of an imperfect indicative with cum.—meritus, sc. esse.—servili tumultu (abl. of time), the insurrection of the slaves (gladiators) under Spartacus, B.C. 73-71. These consisted largely of the Germans captured by Marius. A war at home, i.e. in Italy or on its borders, was called tumultus (see Cic. Phil. viii. 1).—quos (referring to servos implied in servili) . . . sublevarent (changing to passive so as to keep the emphasis), who yet were considerably helped by the training and discipline which they had got from us. —aliquid, adverbial accusative.

5. quantum boni, how much advantage (§ 189. a; G. 195. R. 2; H. 397. 3), firmness has (for the tense of haberet, see § 287. d; H. 495. v.) — inermos, i.e. the slaves of Spartacus's force. — quos . . . hos: notice the relative as usual preceding the antecedent.

6. hos esse, the Germans with Ariovistus.—quibuscum congressi, &c. (changing the relative clause), whom they had often met and beaten on their own ground (as well as, &c.). — qui, i.e. the Helvetii.—tamen, i.e. though they were strong enough to beat the Germans, after all, &c. — potuerint, see § 287. c. R.; G. 513; H. 495. VI. and foot-note 2.

7. adversum proelium, see Chap. 315.—si quos . . . commoveret, if any were alarmed by (lit. if the disastrous battle moved any). — Ariovistum, subj. of vicisse.—neque . . . fecisset, and had given them no chance at him. — adortum, agrees with Ariovistum and governs [eos] desperantes.

8. cui rationi, &c.: cui relates to hac (ratione), the noun being attracted to the relative clause, as is frequent in Latin (§ 200. c: G. 618; H. 445. 9): by a stratagem for which there had been room against unskilled barbarians, not even Ariovistus himself hoped that our armies could be taken in.

9. qui . . . conferrent, [as for those] who laid their own cowardice to the pretended difficulty about provisions, &c.—desperare, &c., to be discouraged about the commander's doing his duty.—
praescribere, sc. officium; i.e. that they were dictating to him what his duty was.

10. frumentum, grain. — subministrare, were [now] furnishing. — esse, were beginning to be. — frumenta, crops.

11. quod . . . dicantur (see § 330. b; G. 528; H. 534. i. n.1): as to its being said that they would not, &c. — nihil, noway. — quibuscumque, dat. after audiens dicto; i.e. no one has ever had a mutinous army, who has not either been unsuccessful by his own fault, so that his men had no confidence in his ability; or been convicted of avarice by some overt act, so that they had no confidence in his integrity. — suam, his own, emphatic by position; equivalent to in his case. — inocentiam: the technical word, meaning freedom from the charge of plunder and extortion.

In fact, Cæsar’s fault lay just the other way, — a lavish and reckless generosity at the expense of subjects or allies. (In this sentence, in chiastic order, inocentiam is opposed to avaritiam, and felicitatem to male re gesta; a peculiarly Latin turn.)

26. 12. quod . . . fuisset, what he had intended to defer. — repraesentaturum, he will do at once. This is a legal term, meaning to do a thing before the time. One who pays money before it is due is said solutionem repraesentare.

13. decima legione: this was the legion which had been stationed in the province of Gallia Transalpina; it was distinguished for discipline and courage. — praetoriam cohortem = body-guard, the correct use of the term: compare note, Chap. 39².

This celebrated speech of Cæsar to his men, though in what seems to us the awkward and cold form of indirect discourse, is an admirable model of military eloquence, and deserves attentive study.

Chap. 41. innata est, sprang up. — optimum judicium fecisset, had expressed the most favorable opinion (a technical phrase).

2. cum tribunis . . . egerunt, &c., urged upon the tribunes to apologize. — summa belli = the policy of the campaign. — suum . . . sed imperatoris, predicates after esse (§ 214. c; G. 365; H. 402).

upon itinere exquisito. The subject of duceret refers to itinere. Also, cf. note on rem, Chap. 39⁴. Lit., the road having been learned that it led; i.e. it having been learned that the road led. — milium [passuum] limits circuitu, by a circuit of more than fifty miles. — locis apertis, through the open country, so as to avoid a return of the panic.

4. exploratoribus, scouts. See note on Bk. II. Chap. 5, “Camp Duties.” — a nostris, from ours (i.e. forces).

Chap. 42. per se, so far as he was concerned (a common expression with licet).

2. respuit: Et. 318. — reverti, that he was beginning to return.

— petenti [Caesari], when he asked it. — veniebat, began to come.

— fore uti desisteret (periphrastic future following spem), that he would cease from his stubbornness.

27. 3. ultro citroque, hither and yon (lit. beyond and this side). — veniret for veniat (hortatory) of direct discourse. — alia ratione, on any other terms.

4. interpositā causā (abl. abs.), by putting in an excuse. (Notice that excuse has the same root as causa.) — Gallorum equitatui: he had no other; see note, Chap. 23². — Gallis equitibus, dative following detractis (§ 229; G. 346; H. 385. II. 2).

— eo, upon them (= iis, § 207. a). — si quid, &c., if there should be need of any active measures: quid is adverbial acc. (§ 240. a; G. 331. R.²; H. 378); facto (§ 243. e; G. 390; H. 414. n.³).

5. quod cum fieret, while this was going on. — ad equum rescribere, he enrolled them among the knights. The word equites means not only the cavalry service in war, but a special privileged class in Roman politics. It seems that Caesar could appreciate a pun. — rescribere: Et. 122.

Chap. 43. tumulus terrenus = a smooth (i.e. not rocky) hill. — satis grandis, pretty large. — aberat: Et. 459.

2. equis, on horseback. — passibus ducentis (abl. of distance, or degree of difference) = 320 yards. — constituit: Et. 175. — denos, ten on each side.

3. beneficia, favors. — munera: according to Livy (xxx. 15), the gifts sent to Masinissa were “a golden crown and bowl, a curule chair, an ivory staff, an embroidered toga, and a tunic with palm-leaf figures " (worn in triumphal processions). — pro . . . tribui, was usually granted only in return for special services. — doccbat, informed. — aditum, access. — ea praemia consecutum, had attained these prizes, as if he had eagerly sought them (compare introductory note to Chap. 30). The tone of Cæsar’s speech shows his intention of affronting the pride of Ariovistus.

4. necessitudinis, alliance. — ipsis (to avoid the use of sibi, which might refer to Cæsar alone), the Romans. — intercederent, existed between. — senatus consulta, properly, orders [executive] of the Senate, which had no authority to pass laws. — ut, how.

5. sui nihil, nothing of their own (dignity, &c.). — quod . . . adtulissent, what they had brought to the alliance; i.e. the independence and dignity which they had possessed. — posset, § 338. r. last part; G. 654. r.¹; H. 523. i. n.

6. postulavit eadem = he made the same demands. — in mandatis, in their instructions. — at, at least.

Chap. 44. rogatum et arcessitum = at the request and summons.

2. sibi, on him (referring to the main subject).

3. pace uti, enjoy peace. — sua voluntate, by their own consent. — oportere, impersonal: its subject is amicitiam . . . esse. — id, not eam, because it refers to the idea, ut amicus populi Romani esset.

4. per, through the action of. — si remittatur, future cond. (§§ 307, 337; G. 659; H. 507. 1, 527. 1): the pres. for imperf. for greater vividness. — subtrahantur, are got away (by underhand means). — non minus libenter, with no less pleasure.

5. quod . . . traducat, as for his bringing over (the quod clause of fact, made subj. by indir. disc.). — defenderit, had defended himself against.

29. 7. hanc Galliam, this part of Gaul. — ut . . . sic, as . . . so. — ipsi, used as an indirect reflexive. See note on Chap. 40³.

8. quod = in that. — imperitum rerum, ignorant of affairs. — soiret: Et. 45. — bello proximo, i.e. b.c. 62.
9. debere se suspiciari, &c., he had ground to suspect, that Caesar, in keeping an army in Gaul, kept it with pretence of friendship, [but really] for the sake of ruining him. — exercitum: Et. 3.

10. nobilibus gratum, a favor to the nobles. Caesar was the recognized head of the party opposed to the Senate and nobility. Many of the aristocracy would have been glad of any safe way to be rid of him. See Cic. Fam. viii. 1, for the way rumors of disaster to Caesar were spread among his enemies in Rome. — id computatum habere, had ascertained (§ 292. c; G. 230; H. 388. 1. n.).

The three relatives qui (l. 15), quod (l. 17), and quod (l. 21), illustrate the principle that the relative, serving to connect with the previous proposition, may represent various conjunctions: — if then he should not withdraw (qui = is igitur); and if he should kill him (quod, adverbial accusative, and as to this); but if he should withdraw (quod = sed, &c.).

Chap. 45. in eam sententiam quare = to this effect [to show] why. — negotio, enterprise. — desistere: Et. 175. — neque se judicare, and he did not consider.

2. bello superatos, B.C. 121, when the Allobroges were subdued, and the Province (probably) organized. — ignovisset, had pardoned: in fact, their country lay beyond the naturally strong frontier of the Cevennes.

30. Chap. 46. conloquio: Et. 77.

3. periculo legionis, danger to the legion. — committendum non ut dici possit = no ground should be given for saying (§ 332. c; G. 557; H. 501. 1). — per fidem, through [misplaced] trust.

4. elatum est, it was reported. — qua adrogantia usus, with what display of insolence. — omni Gallia (abl. of separation, with interdixisset, § 243; G. 388; H. 413), had ordered the Romans (dat. following inter-) away from all Gaul. — ut, how (indir. question).

Chap. 47. uti constitueret, following velle (§ 331. b; G. 546; H. 498. 1). — si minus, if not.

2. conloquendi: Et. 77. — retineri quin, be kept from (§ 319.

2. secundam: Et. 497. — castra munire, to fortify the camp. The Roman camp was measured with great precision by certain fixed rules (based on the science of augury), and thoroughly fortified with earth-wall, ditch and palisades. The spade was as familiar to the Roman soldier as the sword or javelin. In this case, Cæsar had one larger camp about two miles north of the Germans, and a smaller one rather more than half a mile to the west of them.

THE CAMP.

1. The Roman army in hostile or doubtful territory encamped at the close of each day's march on ground carefully selected and as carefully fortified. When possible, the site was the slope of a gentle hill, so that the front had before it still a portion of the descent, and the rear lay on the summit. Thus line of battle could be formed before the camp in the favorite Roman position (in loco superiore *). Then, too, water must be at hand, and abundant wood. Of course these conditions could not always be fulfilled, and sometimes the camp must be pitched where necessity demanded (in loco necessario).

2. The right-angled quadrilateral was in Cæsar's time probably the only form of the Roman camp (Fig. 15). It was either square, or with sides in the ratio of 3 to 2. The corners were rounded, so as to afford room for defence. The gates (portae), one on each side, were usually merely openings, probably as wide as the front of a maniple (40 ft.). They were defended by semi-circular tambours, or by a traverse (titulum) reaching to a corresponding distance (see Fig. 15). Very likely on the inside was a corresponding traverse.

3. The normal Roman fortification consisted of a wall (agger, vallum) on which the defenders placed themselves †; and before it a ditch (fossa), from which came most of the material for the wall, and which stopped the approach of the enemy at the distance of a good spear-cast. The width of the ditch at the top was always a number divisible by 3 ‡, and the depth was ⁴⁄₃ of this width, plus 1. We may notice that Cæsar usually gives but one dimension of the ditch, the other, of course, being understood. The usual width was 9 ft., and the depth was 7 ft. There were three forms: that with both scarp and counterscarp sloping (fossa fastigata); the fossa punica, with sloping scarp and vertical counterscarp; and the ditch with both scarp (latus interius) and counterscarp (latus exterior) vertical.

* Bk. I. 24, II. 5. 8. 24, III. 19. † Bk. V. 39. ‡ Bk. II. 5, VII. 27. 72. The only exception will be found in the chapter last referred to.
(directis lateribus*). The first form was the most common. In this the width at the bottom was $\frac{1}{3}$ that at the top.

4. We think of a wall mainly as a breastwork behind which soldiers are sheltered from the fire of the enemy. But it was quite different with the Romans. They had comparatively little need for shelter from missiles. What they aimed at mainly was a high position, inaccessible to the enemy, from which to hurl their spears. The section of such a wall we may consider practically a rectangle, of sufficient height and width. The width should be enough for standing firmly, and for moving backward and forwards to hurl the javelins. The height should be as great as possible. Of course this would be limited by the fact that the earth came from the ditch. Caesar often speaks of a ditch 15 ft. wide, and a wall of 10 ft. The outer slope of the wall could be made very steep, as there was no fire of cannons to withstand. But to keep the earth of the wall in place, there had to be a facing of some more tenacious material. For this purpose there were used sods cut in digging the ditch; also timber and brush. This last was put up in bundles, in the form that we call fascines. Vegetius says that the Romans cut sods $1\frac{1}{2}$ ft. long, 1 ft. wide, and $\frac{1}{2}$ ft. thick, for use in fortifications. With such sods cut from the ditch, $\frac{3}{2}$ the height of the wall could be faced, leaving the other half to be strengthened with sod cut elsewhere, or with fascines.

5. The Romans were not always content with this facing of the outer slope. When they sought to give the wall especial height, they made it firmer by embedding in it several lines of fascines parallel to the length.

6. The rampart, of course, should be easily mounted from the inside. For this purpose steps were made. These were of brush, or at least strengthened with brush.

7. It is clear, then, that a Roman camp needed much wood, and also that the section of the wall was greater than the section of the ditch. The vertical section of a wall 6 ft. in height and width, well faced, and provided with steps, contains about 56 sq. ft. The ditch (fossa fastigata) 9 ft. wide and 7 ft. deep, has a section of 42 sq. ft. But the earth would loosen itself about \( \frac{1}{2} \) in digging. That gives 49 sq. ft. section for the earthwork, leaving 7 sq. ft. for brushwork. Of this, at least 6 sq. ft. must be allotted to the steps.

* Bk. VII. 72.
Campaign against Aetolianus.

8. When the wall was wide enough, on its top was placed a breastwork (lorica, loricula) of stakes (valli*). On these a few twigs were left, which were firmly bound together. This breastwork was either of a uniform height of 4 or 5 ft., so that the soldiers could easily see over it and cast their spears; or there were pinnacles (pinnae) placed on it, 2 or 3 ft. high, between which were gaps. There were often erected on the wall, from point to point, wooden towers.† At such places both wall and ditch had to be wider.

9. It has been explained that the camp was generally a square, or a rectangle whose sides were as 3 to 2. The front was the side towards the enemy, or towards which on the following day the march would be taken up. The rear was of course opposite, and the other two sides were right and left to one facing the front.

10. The depth of the camp was divided into three nearly equal parts.

* Bk. V. 49, VII. 72.
† Bk. V. 49, VII. 72, VIII. 9.
Beginning at the front, they were the praetentura, the lateral praetorii, and the retentura. These three divisions were made by two broad streets parallel to the front, the via principalis and the via quintana.

The former ended at each side of the camp with a gate, the porta principalis dextra and the porta principalis sinistra. Very likely in large camps there were gates at the ends of the via quintana also.
11. In the middle of the front wall was the porta praetoria, and opposite, in the rear wall, was the porta decumana.

12. From the porta praetoria to the via principalis extended a street, the via praetoria. Opposite this, in the middle part of the camp, was the praetorium, a wide space in which were the headquarters tents, the altars, and the tribunal. This space occupied in length all the middle of the camp, but extended only 100 or 150 ft. each side of the middle line.

13. In the retentura was a similar place, the quaestorium. Here were the quarters of the administrative staff, here hostages and prisoners were kept and forage and booty were placed.

14. Outside of the camp, back of the porta decumana, were the booths of the sutlers (mercatores) who followed the army.

15. In the praetentura were stationed from \( \frac{1}{2} \) to \( \frac{3}{4} \) of the cohorts, equally divided between the two sides.* They occupied the tents facing the wall. Also in the praetentura, along the via principalis, was the place for the tents of the legati and tribuni militum. Again, in each half of the praetentura, in the space enclosed by the cohorts along the wall, by the tents of the legati and tribuni and by the via principalis, were encamped \( \frac{1}{4} \) of the cavalry and \( \frac{1}{2} \) of the archers and slingers. Thus in the entire praetentura were quartered \( \frac{1}{4} \) of the cavalry and all the archers and slingers, ready to march from the front gate and form the advanced guard.

16. On each flank of the mid camp, next the wall, was a line of cohorts, \( \frac{1}{10} \) of the entire number in the army. Thus \( \frac{1}{5} \) of the cohorts were here quartered. Next the praetorium, along both its longer sides, were placed the staff, except, of course, the legati and tribuni. Along the via principalis, between the cohorts along the wall and the staff, were encamped on each side \( \frac{1}{4} \) of the cavalry, or \( \frac{1}{2} \) in the whole mid-camp.

17. In the rear part of the camp, on each side of the quaestorium and equally divided by it, lay the rest of the cohorts, about \( \frac{1}{2} \) of all in the army. They faced the wall on the flanks and rear. Enclosed by the cavalry, by the quaestorium, and by the via quintana, was the place for the auxiliary infantry, excepting the archers and slingers.

18. Entirely around the camp, within the wall, extended a broad street. This would at once prevent the likelihood of hostile missiles reaching the tents, and would allow room for moving troops to defend the walls. The width of this street is variously estimated. It was probably over 100 ft.

19. In the spaces behind the tents the arms were stacked and the pack animals tethered.

* For the arrangement of the cohorts in camp, see note on Bk. II. Chap. 5.
20. In estimating the time needed for fortifying the camp, we may consider the normal measure of the ditch to be 9 ft. wide and 7 ft. deep. Some of the men were detailed to the ditch, some to the wall, and others to gather material and make fascines. Those allotted to the ditch would probably work in three reliefs, each being occupied not more than an hour. A skillful digger who works only one hour and is then relieved, can easily excavate in that time from 50 to 60 cu. ft. (Roman). But the Roman legionaries were above all things skillful at digging. Then 3 or 4 hours would suffice completely to fortify the camp. Meanwhile others would be busied in laying out the streets and setting up the tents. So if the work was begun at noon, by 4 o’clock all would be finished.

32. Chap. 50. instituto suo, according to his previous practice. — potestatem fecit, gave an opportunity.

3. inlatis et acceptis, after giving and receiving.

4. matres familiae: according to Tacitus (Ger. 8), it was not matrons only, but women as a class, or most of them, to whom this prophetic power was ascribed. — sortibus, lots of leaves or twigs marked with certain signs and drawn by chance; vaticinationibus, omens interpreted from the noise of waters, river-eddies, &c. — declararent: Et. 58. — ex usu, expedient. — utrum . . . necne, § 211; G. 460; H. 353. — non esse fas, it was not the divine will. — novam lunam (cf. Tac. G. 11): so the Spartans refused to advance to Marathon before the full moon.

Chap. 51. reliquit: Et. 500. — alarios: the auxiliaries as distinguished from the legionary (Roman) troops. They were usually stationed on the wings of the line of battle; hence their name, from ala, a wing. — quod minus valebat, because he was weak in comparison with the enemy. — ad speciem, to make a show, as if the two legions were still there, while in fact they had joined the other force at the greater camp. — acie, of legionaries alone.

2. generatim, by tribes or clans. — Marcomannos, “men of the Mark,” or frontier. It became a very formidable name about 200 years later, in the region of Bohemia and Bavaria.

3. eo, thereon, i.e. among the carts and wagons. — proficiscentes, [the men] as they advanced (obj. of implorabant). — traderent: Et. 225.
33. Chap. 52. singulos legatos, a legatus in command of each legion. This was the beginning of a very important reform in the military organization. Caesar felt so keenly the evil of the command being divided among six tribunes, that he detailed one of his legati nominally to assist the tribunes. After this time, we find the legatus as the regular commander of a legion, with the six tribunes under him. On this occasion he appointed his quartermaster (quaestor) to that one of the six legions which was intended to be under his own special command. — praefecit: Et. 256.

2. ita ... ut, so ... that. — spatium, room, i.e. time. — rejectis, throwing aside.

3. impetus: Et. 173. — in phalangas (acc. plur. § 63. f. 64; H. 68, 98. n. 2), upon the phalanxes. These were compact bodies of 300 to 400 men each with shields close locked in front and above (see note on Chap. 24). — revellerent, &c., i.e. they leaped upon the roof of shields, pulled them up, and so thrust their swords down from above (desuper).

4. a sinistro cornu, on their left wing.

5. P. Crassus, son of Marcus Crassus the triumvir. — adulescens, to distinguish him from his father. — expeditior, more disengaged. — versabantur, were engaged.

Chap. 53. restitutum est, contrasted with laborantibus, above. — Rhenum: the nearest point was a little below Bâle, somewhat more than five miles distant. Some texts have quinque instead of quinquaginta. The latter seems to be the correct reading, however. The Germans fled down the valley of the III (see dotted line in Plan III.), reaching the Rhine near Rheinau, some 50 miles from the battle-field. — fugere: Et. 142. — pervenerant: Et. 509.

2. tranare contenderunt = by great effort swam across. — reliquos omnes, said to be 80,000.

3. duae uxores: only chiefs among the Germans, says Tacitus (G. 18), had more than one wife; and this was for the sake of honor and alliances. — Sueva, see Bk. iv. Chap. 1. — utraeque perierunt: for Caesar's massacres of women and children, compare Bk. IV. Chap. 14, Bk. VII. Chap. 28.

34. 5. neque . . . deinuerat, nor had Fortune, by any harm to him, &c.
6. se praesente, in his own presence. — ter: it was the regular usage of the Germans to consult the lot thrice (Tac. G. 10). This has come down to the present day in sundry games, &c.

CHAP. 54. Ubii (some older editions have ubi): these lived near the modern Cologne, and were deadly enemies of the Suevi, and therefore generally in alliance with the Romans (Bk. IV. Chap. 3).

14. maturius, earlier; the decisive battle with Ariovistus was fought about the 10th of September.

16. in citeriorem Galliam, south of the Alps. — conventus: the proconsular Courts held for the administration of justice.

The Legions. — When Cæsar came to Geneva, in the spring of the year 58 B.C., he found only one legion stationed in the farther province (Chap. 7). This was the 10th (Legio X), afterwards so distinguished for fidelity and courage. As soon as the Helvetians set out through the territory of the Sequani, Cæsar hastened to Hither Gaul, enrolled two new legions (XI and XII), and called from their winter quarters the three (VII, VIII, and IX) that were stationed in that province (see Chap. 10). It was these six legions, together with auxiliaries (both horse and foot), that composed the army with which the Helvetians and the Germans were conquered.

Book Second. — B.C. 57.

The Belgian Confederacy. — The people of Northern Gaul, including Flanders and the Netherlands, were far remote from any country hitherto occupied by the Roman arms. They lived amid forests and swamps hard to penetrate; they claimed kindred with the German tribes rather than with the more fickle and effeminate Celts; and they had a fierce and resolute spirit of independence, like that which the Dutch exhibited long after in the same regions, against the armies of Spain.* The Belgian tribes, and particularly the Nervii, appear in this confederation to have offered to Cæsar a more formidable and desperate resistance than any he met elsewhere, until the great rising of B.C. 52; and when their spirit was once broken, the conquest of Gaul was simply a question of time.

Note. — Learners who begin the study of Cæsar with the Second Book are especially referred, in the preceding Notes, to the general directions (p. 5) and the military notes; viz.: on the Roman Soldier (p. 3), the Legion (p. 17), the March (p. 23), the Order of Battle (p. 35), and the Standard (p. 39). They should also study in the Synopsis the outline of the Helvetian and German campaigns, so as to understand the military situation at the opening of this second year. The attention of teachers is called to the Appendix, pp. 120, 121.

* A very striking account of the country and its inhabitants will be found in the introduction to Motley's Dutch Republic.
35. Chap. 1. cum esset, while C. was: subj. with cum temporal (§ 325; G. 586; H. 521. II. 2). The verb comes in this emphatic place on account of the close connection of these words with the preceding book (see Appendix). — cit. Gallia, Northern Italy; see "Life of Cæsar," p. xv. — in hibernis (an expression rarely used except of an army): Cæsar was not with any army, and the phrase is probably interpolated. — ita uti (= ut, as), correl. (§ 107; G. 556. r.5; H. 305). — adferebantur, certior fiebat (observe the imperf. of repeated action, § 227; G. 222; H. 49) = kept coming in; was informed from time to time. — litteris, by despatches: abl. of means, § 248 (compare § 246. b): G. 403; H. 420. — Belgas ... conjurare ... dare, that the Belgians, &c.: ind. disc., accus. and infin. following the verbal phrase certior fiebat (§ 272; G. 527; H. 535). Direct: Belgae conjurant. — quam agrees with partem (§ 199; G. 616. r.3 II.; H. 4454), though the logical antecedent is Belgas. — esse: indir. disc. (with subj. acc. quam), obj. of dixeramus. — dixeramus is in the indic., because, though a rel. clause, it is parenthetical merely, and not a part of the report of Labienus (§ 336. b; G. 630. r. 1; H. 524. 2. 1). — demonstravimus, dixeramus: the perfect here implies an act done before the time of writing (see end of Bk. I.); the pluperfect, what took place before the time of demonstravimus. The Romans were very precise in indicating the relation of actions to one another in point of time. An act completed or to be completed before another begins, is almost invariably expressed by a tense of completed action. In this respect the English is less exact. — conjurare: "any war against Rome is a 'conspiracy'; a nation enslaved by Rome is 'pacified.'" — inter se, to one another: § 196. f; G. 212; H. 448. n.

2. conjurandi, gerund (§ 298; G. 429; H. 542. I.). — has esse causas: the report of Labienus, continued (indir. disc.). — quod vererentur, sollicitarentur: subjunct. because subord. clause in indir. disc. (§ 336; G. 541; H. 524). — Galliá, i.e. Celtic Gaul (§ 310. a; G. 670; H. 549. 2), within which the previous campaigns had been conducted. — exercitus nostro, i.e. to hold them as a conquered province. — ne ... adduceretur: subst. clause, obj. of vererentur (§ 331. f; G. 552; H. 498. III.). — ab nonnullis Gallis: § 246; G. 403; H. 415. I. — partim qui, &c., is an explanatory remark added by Cæsar; hence the indic. The Gauls, by whom the Belgians were instigated (sollicitarentur) are here divided into three classes: (1) qui . . . ferebant, those now jealous of the Roman power, as they had been of the German; (2) qui . . . studebant, the restless, who soon tired of any settled rule; (3) those who held (or hoped to get) despotic authority. — ut . . . ita, correls. (§ 107; G. 556. r.5; H. 305). — Germanos . . . versari: obj. of nolle- rant (§§ 271. a, 330. 3; G. 532; H. 535. II.). — exercitum hier- mare, &c., they took it hard (moleste ferebant) that an army of the Roman people was wintering and getting a foothold (invetera- scere, lit. grow old) in Gaul. The infinitives, with their subj. accus. exercitum, are in indir. disc. after moleste ferebant (§ 333. b; G. 653; H. 523).

3. mobilitate [Et. 379]: § 245; G. 406; H. 416.— novis im- periis (dat. § 227. c; G. 345; H. 385) studebant = were eager for a change of government (lit. new powers). Notice that novis is emphatic (see Appendix). — ab nonnullis, by some also: these were petty chiefs of clans.

36. quod (causal) . . . occupabantur, because royal power was (constantly) usurped (by coups d'état on a small scale). Notice the indic.: Cæsar explains the statement of Labienus (quod solli- citarentur) by facts from his own knowledge (§ 321; G. 540; H. 516). A causal clause with the subjunc. (occuparentur) would indicate that the reason assigned formed part of the letter of Labienus. — potentioribus, the more powerful (§ 93. a). — ad . . . facultates, the means to take men into their pay. — conducendos, gerundive (§ 300; G. 433; H. 544). — imperio nostro (strictly a loc. abl., implying time, place, or condition: § 254; G. 393; H. 425), under our dominion. — consequi, complementary (§ 271 and n.; G. 424; H. 533. I. 2).

Chap. 2. nuntiis, abl. of cause (§ 245; G. 406; H. 416). — duas legiones . . . misit: these were numbered XIII and XIV, making with the others eight in all, amounting (with auxiliaries) to perhaps 60,000 men. The proconsul seems to have had absolute authority to raise these levies. — initâ aestate (abl. abs. expressing time when: § 255; G. 408; H. 431) = in early spring: aestas is the period from the spring equinox to that of autumn. — qui deduceret
(the antecedent is Q. Pedium), relative clause of purpose (§ 317; G. 545; H. 445).

2. cum primum, &c.: as soon as there began to be plenty of fodder (i.e. when grass and young grain began to be abundant, so that the cavalry and baggage animals could move). — inciperet: § 325; G. 586; H. 521. II. 2. — dat negotium, gives [it in] charge.

— Senonibus: these were north of the Aedui, on the upper course of the Seine; their name is preserved in Sens. — reliquis Gallis, the rest of the Gauls (§ 193; H. 440. N. 2). — Belgis, dat. with finitimi (§ 234. a; G. 356; H. 391. I.). — uti . . . cognoscant, to find out. This is a subst. clause of purpose in appos. with negotium: § 331. a; G. 546; H. 498. — gerantur, subj. as depending on cognoscant (§ 342; G. 631; H. 529. II.). (Observe that ea is the anteced. of quae, which is therefore not an interrog. but a rel. pron.; hence the clause is plainly not an indir. question.) — seque . . . faciant, and inform him (Caesar) (§ 196. a; G. 521; H. 449).

3. constanter, consistently (with one another): their accounts all agreed. — manus (acc. pl., subj. of cogi), small bands or companies. — cogi, were gathering (for the voice, see § III. N. 1; G. 209; H. 465). — exercitum conducit, a large force was being got together.

4. tum: observe the emphatic position. — non dubitandum [esse] quin, he must no longer hesitate. The infin. of the Second Periphrastic Conjugation (§ 113. d. N; G. 243; H. 466. N.), here used in indir. disc. as obj. of existimavit. — dubitandum is impersonal (§ 146. d; G. 199. R. 1; H. 195. II. 1). — quin can only follow a negative expression, as here non existimavit, etc. — re comparata; translate the abl. abs. freely, often by an active construction, having got, etc., or when he had, etc. — quin . . . proficienceretur, to set out (lit. but that he should, &c.): rel. clause of result, depending on dubitandum [esse] (§ 319. d; G. 551; H. 504). — castra movet, breaks up camp. — diebus, abl. of time within which (§ 256; G. 392; H. 429).

Chap. 3. eo, thither. — de improviso (adverbial phrase), unexpectedly. — omni opinione, than any one could think (following the comparative celerius) (§ 247. b; G. 399. R. 1; H. 417. I. N. 5). — Remi: these occupied the territory near Rheims, in Champagne.
They were friendly to the Romans, who by their victory over Ariovistus (see Bk. I.) had made them the second power in Gaul: compare Bk. VI. Chap. 12. — proximi Galliae, nearest to Gaul: for the dat., see § 234. a; G. 356; H. 391. I. — ex Belgis (following proximi), of the Belgae (for partit. gen. Belgarum: § 216. c; G. 371. r.5; H. 397. 3. n.3) — legatos, as ambassadors. — qui dicerent: § 317; G. 545; H. 497. I.

2. The rest of the chapter consists of the speech of the ambassadors, as reported by Cæsar in indir. disc. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 3 (p. 11, above). Notice that the principal clauses are in the infinit. with subj. acc., and all dependent clauses in the subjunctive (§ 336. ff.; G. 653; H. 522–524). In the dir. disc. this speech would read as follows: —

Nos nostraque omnia in fidem atque in potestatem populi Romani permittimus, neque [nos] cum Belgis reliquis consensimus, neque contra populum Romanum conjuravimus, paratique sumus et obsides dare et imperata facere et oppidis recipere et frumento ceterisque rebus juvare; reliqui omnes Belgae in armis sunt, Germanique, qui trans Rhenum incolunt, sese cum his conjuxerunt, tantusque est eorum omnium furor, ut ne Suessiones quidem, fratres consanguineosque nostros, qui eodem jure et idem legibus utantur, unum imperium unumque magistratum nobiscum habeant, determinerimus quin cum his consentiant.

se in fidem permittere = put themselves under the protection ("good faith"), &c. — se suaque omnia, themselves and all their [possessions] ("their all"): obj. of permittere. The subj. acc. is regularly expressed in the indir. disc.; but here it is omitted, to prevent the awkward repetition, — se (subj.) se (obj.). In the next clause se is expressed. — permittere ... consensisse ... conjurasse ... esse, main clauses. — neque, and [had] not (§ 156. a; G. 482; H. 554. I. 2). — cum Belgis: § 248. a; G. 391; H. 419. I. — paratos (participial adj.), ready. — dare, facere, &c., infinit. following paratos (§ 273. b; G. 424; H. 5338). — oppidis recipere, receive [the Romans] into their strongholds: oppidis is abl. of place without in (§ 258. f; G. 387; H. 425. 1. 1). The English idiom would lead us to expect in oppida, but see § 260. a; G. 384. r.1; H. 380. n. — frumento, abl. of means (§ 248; G. 403; H. 420). — ceterisque rebus, everything else [necessary] (lit. the other things: see Vocab.).
3. qui . . . incolant: in dir. disc. incolunt. — tantum . . .
ut, correls. (see § 319. r.; G. 556; H. 500. II.). — furorem, madness (blind and unreasoning passion). — ut . . . potuerint, that they [the Remi] could not dissuade: result clause (§ 319; G. 554; H. 500. II.); for tense, see § 287. c. r.; G. 513; H. 495. VI. — ne . . . quidem: § 151. e; G. 444; H. 553.2 — Suessiones (obj. of deterrire): they occupied territory west of the Remi, about the modern Soissons. — qui . . . utantur, although they enjoy the same rights and laws; relative clause of concession (§ 320. e; G. 637; H. 515. III.). It would be subjunct. in dir. disc. also. — unum imperium, &c.: their close confederacy did not prevent the Suessiones from (quin) leaguing with the other party. — cum ipsis, with themselves (the Remi): in the indir. disc. se is regularly used to refer to the speaker but the oblique cases of ipse are occasionally used instead. Here ipse is used apparently for emphasis (§ 195. k; G. 298; H. 448). — quin . . . consentirent, from leaguing with these (the "conspirators"): rel. clause of result (§ 319. d; G. 551; H. 504) depending on deterrire. Notice that deterrire is negativated by ne . . . quidem, above, which belongs to the whole clause, but is attached to the emphatic word.

Chap. 4. ab his, of (from) these (the envoys) (§ 239. c. r.). — quae . . . essent, indir. question (§ 334; G. 462; H. 529). — quid . . . possent, what strength they had in war: quid is adv. acc. (§ 240. a; G. 331. r.3; H. 378. 2). — sic, as follows. — reperiebat, found (by repeated inquiry, as the tense shows). Observe that the rest of the chapter is in indir. disc., except the words Remi dicebant (in § 3).

2. plerosque, most of (§ 193; H. 440. n. 2): see the end of the chapter, and compare, regarding the Nervii, Tacitus, Germ. 28. The Belgians were, no doubt, chiefly of Celtic blood; but possibly they considered the German a more proud and heroic descent. — ab Germanis, abl. of source (§ 244. a; G. 395; H. 415. II. n.).

solos ... esse qui ... prohibuerint, were the only ones who kept off: rel. clause of characteristic, with solos (§ 320. b; G. 634; H. 503. II. 1.).—memoria, abl. of time (§ 256; G. 392; H. 429).—ingredi, from entering (§ 271. a; G. 532. r.1; H. 5054).—qua extr, in consequence of which (fact): abl. of cause (§ 245. N.; G. 406; H. 416. I.).—fieri uti ... sumerent = it was coming to be the case that they took upon themselves (i.e. they were beginning, &c.): uti sumerent (result) is the subj. of fieri (§ 332. a; G. 558; H. 501. I.4).—spiritus, see Vocab. —memoria, abl. of cause. —sibi: § 235; G. 343; H. 384. I. 2.

3. The rest of the chapter depends on Remi dicebant. —se habere explorata, had found out all about (de), &c.: habere explorata differs but little in sense from explorasse (§ 292. c; G. 230; H. 388. 1. N.); in construction explorata agrees with omnia, which is obj. of habere. (See note on compertum habere, Bk. I. Chap. 44.) —propertea quod, because. —propinquitatibus, ties of blood.—adfinitatibus, alliances by marriage.—quantum quisque ... pollicitus sit, how large a force each had promised: indir. question, obj. of cognoverint.—ad id bellum, for this war.—cognoverint: the primary tense violates the sequence of tenses, to make the statement more vivid by putting it in the same tense that was used by the speakers (Repraesentatio). They said, cognovimus, we know (lit. have found out).

4. Bellovacos, near Beauvais.—plurimum ... valere, had most power.—et virtute, &c., abl. of specification or abl. of cause. —posse conficere ... centum, could muster a hundred thousand men in arms: milia is the noun with which the adj. armata agrees (§ 94. e; G. 308; H. 178).—pollicitos [esse], and had pledged.—ex eo numero: § 216. c; G. 371. r.5; H. 397. 3. n.3—electa choice troops.—sibi, dat. of reference (§ 235; G. 343; H. 384. I. 2). —suos, their own (i.e. of the Remi): notice that the reflexive refers back to the speaker. See note on cum ipsis, Chap. 3, above.

5. eos, i.e. the Suessiones.—fuisse ... esse: notice the difference of time; fuisse (in the dir. disc. fuit) refers to time past, esse (dir. est), to time present, with respect to the verb of saying (dicebant, line 8).—totius Galliae, partitive gen. (§ 216. a. 2; G. 370; H. 397. 3).—regem: showing that royal power had not yet been overthrown among the Belgians (see note to Bk. I. Chap.
Belgian Confederacy.

2). — _cum . . . tum, not only . . . but also_ (partis is obj. gen. after _imperium:_ § 217; G. 361. 2; H. 396. III.). — _Britanniae:_ first mention of Britain by a Roman author. — _obtinuerit, had held_; in the dir., _obtinuit, held_ (subjunc. because subord. clause in indir. disc.). — _ad hunc . . . deferri, on him was conferred the chief command_ (summam, subj. of deferri) _of the whole war._ — _propter:_ § 245. b; G. 407. R. 1; H. 416. I. 2. — _voluntate, abl. of manner (modified by omnium)_ (§ 248. R.; G. 401; H. 419. III.).

6. _habere:_ the subj. must be supplied from _Suessiones_, above. — _numero, abl. of specification_ (§ 253; G. 398; H. 424). — _Nervios, &c._ (see Map): the names of several of these tribes are found in the modern towns _Arras, Amiens, Calais, Vermandois, Condroz_; the name _Germani_ seems to belong especially to the four last-named (Condrusi, Eburones, &c.). — _feri:_ pred. after _habeantur, are regarded._ — _qui . . . appellantur:_ the indic. shows that this is an explanatory note added by Cæsar, and not a part of the ind. disc.; _qui . . . habeantur_ above, however, is a remark made by the Remi, as is shown by the subjunc. — _Condrusos, &c._: obj. of _arbitrari._ — _arbitrari_ (deponent), infin. of ind. disc., with subj. _se_ understood, referring to the Remi, _that they estimated._ — _ad, at about._

Chap. 5. _cohortatus, prosecutus_ (for the tense of these participles, cf. § 290. b; G. 278. R.; H. 550. n. 1) = _addressing them cheerily, and making liberal promises._ — _convenire . . . adduci:_ infin. with subj. acc., regularly used as obj. of _jussit_ (§§ 330. 2, 331. a; G. 546. R. 1; H. 535. II.). — _obsides_ (pred. appos.), _as hostages_: if the chiefs should break their faith, these boys would probably be sold as slaves. — _ad diem, by the [appointed] day._

38. 2. _quanto opere_ (often written _quantopere_) . . . _intersit_ [Et. 459], _how greatly it concerns both the republic_ (Rome) _and their common safety._ (For the genitives, see § 222; G. 381; H. 406. III.) — _intersit:_ indir. question (§ 334; G. 462; H. 529. I.). — _manūs_ (acc. pl.) . . . _distineri:_ infin. clause, subj. of _intersit._ — _ne conflagendum sit, lest they should have to contend:_ final clause (§ 317; G. 545. 3; H. 497. II.), depending on _distineri._ (For the use of _conflagendum sit_, see §§ 146. c, 129; G. 199. R. 1, 243. R. 2; H. 301. 2, 234):
3. Id . . . coeperint: indir. disc., depending on docet. — id refers to manus distineri, above. — fieri . . . populari, complem. inf. (§ 271; G. 424; H. 533). — Bellovacorum: these lay farthest west and most remote from Cæsar's field of operations; so that the manoeuvre indicated would divide the enemy (cf. Chap. 104). — introduxerint . . . coeperint: fut. condition; in the dir. disc. these would be fut. perf. (§ 307. c; G. 598; H. 508). — suas (reflexive) refers to Haedu: eorum (demonstr.), to Bellovacorum.

4. Postquam . . . vidit (§ 324; G. 563; H. 518), as soon as he saw. — copias : subj. of venire. — coactas: part. with copias. — ad se venire, were coming straight toward him (indir. disc.). — neque: que connects vidit and cognovit; ne- with jam = no longer. — abesse: depending on cognovit. — ab iis: construed with cognovit. — flumen . . . exercitum . . . traducere, to lead his army across the river: exercitum is dir. obj. of traducere; flumen is secondary obj., depending on trans (trā-duco = trans-duco) (§ 239. b; G. 330. r. 1; H. 376). — Axonam (apposition), the Aisne: here flowing nearly due west, and joining the Seine below Paris, through the Oise. — quod: § 198; G. 616; H. 445. — in extremis finibus, in the remotest part of the territory of the Remi (§ 193; H. 440. 2, notes 1 and 2): the phrase is used in a general sense merely; for Bibrax, a town of the Remi, lay eight miles beyond. — castra: traces of Cæsar's works at this place were discovered in 1862, on a low hill called Mauchamp (see Plan IV.).

5. quaes res, which movement (or manoeuvre), i.e. his having crossed the river, and then pitched his camp where he did. Cæsar's camp was protected in the rear by the Axona, and in front by a small marshy stream. — ripis, abl. of means (§ 248; G. 403; H. 420). — post eum quae essent (§ 320; G. 633; H. 503. 1), the rear of his army (those things which were behind him). — tuta, pred. acc. (§ 239. a; G. 334; H. 373. n. 2): the dir. obj. is ea, the omitted antecedent of quaes. — ut . . . posset: subst. clause of result, obj. of efficiebat (§ 332; G. 557; H. 501. II. 1). — commenatus, subj. of posset. — efficiebat: the subj. is still quaes res; observe the imperfect tenses.

6. in altera parte, on the other side (i.e. on the left bank of the Aisne, towards the Remi): Cæsar had crossed the stream, and encamped on the side next the Suessiones. — in altitudinem, connected with the measure following.—pedum XII., gen. of measure, with vallo (§ 215. b; G. 364. R.; H. 396. V.).—vallo fossaque, abl. of means. — duodeviginti pedum, of 18 feet (in width), i.e. the moat: see note on Bk. I. Chap. 49, “The Camp.” —munire: see note on convenire, second line of this chapter.

ARRANGEMENT OF THE COHORTS IN CAMP.—We interpret from Hyginus the following arrangement of a cohort of six centuries.

The cohort encamped in a space of 120 ft. front and 180 ft. depth. This was divided, on lines parallel to the front, into 6 portions of 120 ft. by 30 ft. Each portion was for one century. From the length of the front, 12 ft. are to be deducted for the street dividing the cohort from the adjacent one. That leaves 108 ft. for the tents. Each century had 8 tents: 6 for the soldiers, one for the centurion, and one for the servants. As each tent was 10 ft. square, the length actually covered by tents would be 80 ft. This leaves 28 feet for the 7 intervals between the tents, or 4 feet for each interval. The three first centuries of the three maniples had their tents facing the wall, and the three second had theirs facing from the wall. Thus the two centuries of one maniple would be stationed back to back. The second of one maniple would face the first of the next, divided from it by a street 12 ft. wide, parallel to the wall.

From the 30 ft. depth of the space allotted to the century, 6 ft. must be allowed for their half of the street, 10 ft. for the tents, 5 ft. behind the latter for stacking the weapons, and, finally, 9 ft. for the pack animals.

The several cohorts of a legion, according to the room, could be placed side by side in a line, or in several lines.

CAMP DUTIES.—When the van reached the camping-ground selected, it was immediately formed with front towards the enemy to cover the work of fortifying. Strong details of cavalry reconnoitred in all directions, while the engineers immediately set to work at measuring and staking out the camp. As the legions arrived, they proceeded each to its allotted place, and laid aside baggage and arms (excepting swords) in the space behind the site for the tents (arma in contubernio deposita). The cohorts assigned to guard duty of course retained their arms, and proceeded at once to their posts. Baggage and arms being laid aside, the legions marched to the street next the wall and were there told off, some for work within the camp, some for fortifying. The latter work, having already been measured (opere dimenso ) was begun at once (castra ponuntur, muniuntur †). When the baggage train arrived, the animals were tethered, each in its proper place, and were then unloaded by the servants (calones). The tents, as a rule, were only pitched when the fortifications were completed. When not near the enemy, however, and especially in stormy weather, the tents would be pitched (tabernacula constituere, statuere) immediately on arrival. As soon as the fortifications were finished, the bulk of the cavalry was withdrawn into the camp. A few squadrons were left on picket without (equites in statione), and these sent scouts (exploratores†) in all directions. Any special duty of gaining information was performed by spies (speculatores‡).

At each gate was usually placed a cohort on guard, the four coming each from a different legion (cohors in statione ad portam§). In the daytime few sentries were posted. But during the night doubtless each cohort of the guard lined the redan before the gate, and its side of the wall, thickly with sentinels. Of course, in special cases the guard was strengthened. Besides the guards at the gates, one cohort at least was detailed for duty in the camp, and was stationed in the praetorium and quaestorium.

As soon as the fortification was completed, the supper was prepared and eaten. For this meal the staff assembled in the praetorium, and remained there until nightfall. During this time the general could conveniently issue his orders for the night and for the next day. At nightfall, also, the musicians of the army assembled to sound the tattoo. This was the signal for setting the night watch. The cavalry pickets were drawn into the camp, except a very few single horsemen as outlying sentries (speculatores). The guard cohorts were probably changed at the tattoo, the new guard going on duty now to serve 24 hours. The night sentries (vigiles) were at once posted on the tambours (titula) and wall. The night from sunset to sunrise was divided into four equal watches (vigiliae). Each cohort on guard was divided accordingly into four reliefs, one of which should be on duty during each watch. The other three reliefs could rest. Of course, they lay on their arms, ready for duty at a moment's notice. If the cohort contained only about 300 men, it will readily be seen that 70 men could compose one relief. This number, for a length of wall of 2100 ft. (one side of the camp), would give one sentinel for each 30 ft. The different reliefs were signalled by the trumpeters (buccinatores).

At daybreak the musicians sounded the reveille. If the march was not to be resumed, the guard cohorts drew in their night sentries, and posted the less numerous sentinels for the day. The cavalry pickets took their posts (stationes), and sent out their scouts (exploratores). At noon this cavalry guard was relieved.

During the night the rounds of the sentries were probably made by the centurions of the guard. Occasionally, also, the tribunes on duty, and the general himself, would inspect the guards, to make sure of the vigilance with which the camp was watched.

If camp should be made in the presence of an enemy in force, the usual vanguard would not be enough to cover the operation. One or two legions would then be deployed in triple line of battle. The first two lines would keep off the enemy, and the third would do the work of fortifying.*

The army might leave the camp either to attack a near enemy, or to continue the march.

In the first case the tents were left standing, the baggage remained in its place, and a guard was left in charge. This guard might consist of a detail from each legion, or of entire legions. The latter would be likely to occur when legions of raw recruits were present. These would naturally be left within the walls.†

In case of continuing the march, the camp was abandoned. At the first signal of the bugles (signum profectionis), the tents were struck; at the second (vasa conclamantur), they and the rest of the baggage were packed on the beasts; at the third the march began. To conceal the departure from the enemy, the signals might be omitted. Still it was deemed a point of military honor to sound them.

Chap. 6. nome abl. of specification (§ 253; G. 398; H. 424). — milia passuum octo, eight miles (8000 [of] paces): acc. of extent of space (§ 257; G. 335; H. 379). For milia, see § 94. e; G. 308; H. 178. — passuum is partit. gen. N. 3). — legati, as ambassadors. — nisi . . . posse: indir. disc. depending on the idea of reporting contained in nuntium mittit. The subj. is sese; the main verb, posse. — sibi: the dat. is used with subsidium submittatur (§ 227; G. 345; H. 381. I.) instead of ad se, because the idea of helping is more prominent than that of motion. — submittatur: subjunc., because subord. clause in indir. disc.; in the dir. disc. this would be fut. ind. (§ 307. a; G. 597; H. 508. 2). — sustinere, hold out. (In the dir. disc. the message of Iccius was: nisi subsidium mihi submittetur, me diutius sustinere non potero.)

Chap. 7. eo, thither, to that place. — isdem ducibus usus, employing the same men [as] guides: for the abl., see § 249; G. 405; H. 421. I. Observe that ducibus is a second obj. after usus.

39. nuntii, as messengers. — Numidias et Cretas, Numidians (from Algiers) and Cretans: both nations (especially the Cretans) were famous bowmen. — sagittarios, apposition. — Baleares (adj.): the inhabitants of the Balearic Islands, east of Spain, were famous slingers. — subsidio oppidanis (§ 233; G. 350; H. 390), as aid (reinforcements) to the townspeople: dat. of service with dat. of person affected. — et . . . et, both . . . and. — studium . . . accessit, eagerness for making sallies was roused in the Remi (lit. was added to the Remi, dat.). — hostibus, from the enemy (dat., § 229; G. 344. R.²; H. 385. 2). — potiundi oppidi: § 296. R.; G. 428. R.³; H. 421. N.⁴

2. morati . . . depopulati . . . vicis incensis: observe the change of construction. The Latin can use a perf. part. with active meaning only (as here) of deponent verbs. The corresponding construction with other verbs is the abl. absolute with the perf. part. pass.; as here, vicis [Et. 85] incensis, which is to be translated having set fire to the villages. — quos takes the gender of vicis (collected habitations), as more important than aedificiis (scattered buildings); this agreement is analagous to that of pred. adj. (§ 187. b; G. 616. R. 5, 282; H. 445. 3. N.¹, 439. 2). — omnibus copiis (abl. of accompaniment), with all their troops: for the omission of cum, see § 248. a; G. 391. R.¹; H. 419. 1. — ab milibus passuum minus duobus, less than two miles off: ab is used adverbially (§ 261. d; G. 416. R.; H. 379. 2. n.). — milibus is abl. of degree of difference (§ 250; G. 400; H. 423); minus does not affect the construction (§ 247. c; G. 311. R.⁴; H. 417. 1. N.²). — amplius is acc. of extent of space (§ 257; G. 335; H. 379), and milibus abl. after the compar. (§ 247; G. 399; H. 417).

CHAP. 8. eximiam opinionem virtutis, their high reputation for valor (obj. gen., § 217; G. 361. 2; H. 396. III.). — proelio supersedere, to defer the engagement: for the abl., see § 243. a; G. 388; H. 414. supersedere is used as the complement of statuit (§ 271. a; G. 424; H. 533. I. 1). — quid . . . posset . . . quid auderent, indir. questions. — virtute, what the enemy amounted to in point of valor. — periclitabatur, experimented (cf. periculum, the original meaning of which is trial, then risk).

2. esse, indir. disc. — loco . . . idoneo, the ground being by nature proper and well adapted for, &c. (abl. absolute); or (locative abl.) in a place, &c. (§§ 254. 258. f; G. 387; H. 425. 2). — ad . . . instruendum: § 300; G. 433; H. 544. 1. — editus, elevated, rising. — tantum, &c., spread over as much (tantum) ground as (quantum) a line, &c. — loci, partitive gen. with quantum, but more conveniently translated with the correl. tantum. — adversus, right in front. — in latitudinem, in breadth (i.e. from the camp towards the confluence of the Miette with the Aisne). — ex utraque parte, on both sides. — lateris dejectus (acc. pl.), lateral slopes (lit. slopes of the sides). — in frontem, &c., falling with an easy slope in front (i.e. to the west), sank down gently to the plain (see Plan IV.).

this clause is parenthetical, and hence is not (like instruxisset) attracted into the subjunct. — ab lateribus, on the flanks (§ 260. b; H. 434. 1.): modifying circumvenire. — pugnantes, acc. pl. — suos, his (Caesar’s) men.

TORMENTA. — The artillery of the Romans consisted of various machines for hurling huge arrows, stones and the like. They were of three kinds, — catapultae, ballistae and scorpiones. Their probable construction may be seen in the annexed cuts. Usually the catapults shot arrows, and the ballistae great stones. The scorpions were really light catapults, and so were sometimes used as a sort of field artillery. The others were generally employed only in the attack or defence of fortified positions, being too clumsy to be of service in the field. These machines were repaired and kept in order by the fabri, a body of whom were always attached to the army. It may here be remarked that the fabri also cared for the weapons and armor, and constructed bridges as well. It is obvious that after each successful battle the pila could easily be gathered and repaired.

The word tormenta (from torqueo, twist) refers to the principle on which it will be seen from the cuts that all these machines must have been constructed.

4. si . . . eset, if there should be need of anything. — quo: § 243. e; G. 390; H. 414. The subj. of esse is the infin. clause quemque reverti (§ 330; H. 539. i.), they decided that the best thing was for each man to return to his own home. Thus the confederacy dissolves into a mere defensive alliance, and the Nervii, &c., are cut to pieces in detail.—domum: § 258; G. 410; H. 380. 2. R. 1; H. 301. 1). — priores (supply et), and those in advance. — quod . . . viderentur, because they seemed (i.e. they thought themselves). viderentur is subjunc., as being part of the subjunc. clause cum . . . ponenter. — exaudito clamore, perturbatis ordinibus (abls. absolute, the first defining the time of the second), breaking ranks on hearing the outcry (of those engaged in the rear). — omnes ponenter, all sought safety in flight (lit. placed safety for themselves (sibi, § 235; G. 344; H. 384. 4) in flight): ponenter, same construction as consisterent and sustinerent.

5. tantam . . . spatium, killed as great a number of them as the time (before night) allowed ("as the day was long"): notice the correls. tantam . . . quantum (§ 106; G. 645. 1; H. 191). — sub occasum solis, toward sunset (cf. sub vesperum, Chap. 331).

Chap. 12. postridie ejus diei, next day (lit. on the day after that day): for the gen., see § 214. g; H. 398. 5. — priusquam . . . recuperent, before the enemy could recover themselves (§ 327; G. 579; H. 520). — Remis: § 234. a; G. 356; H. 391. i. — magno itinere, by a forced march. — Noviodunum (now Soissons) about 20 miles west of Bibrax. Soissons is derived from Suessiones.

2. ex itinere, i.e. by filling up the ditch and scaling the walls, without waiting to throw up works or form regular lines of approach. — paucis defendentibus (abl. absolute, denoting concession), though there were few defenders. — oppugnare means, to attack; expugnare, to take (by storm). Unable to take the town by storm, Cæsar was obliged to begin a regular siege.

The Siege. — This is the first mention in Cæsar of an attack on a walled town. We give for reference a full description of siege operations.

1. The principal work of a regular siege was the mound (agger). This was always begun at a distance from the wall very nearly out of the reach of missiles. It was then gradually extended in the direction of the point to be attacked, and was at the same time gradually increased in height until on a level with the top of the walls, or even higher. When this mound was completed, the storming party moved on its top to the attack.

2. The height was often considerable. Before Avaricum* it was 80 ft., and as much before Massilia. The length, of course, depended on the power of the enemy's missile weapons. It seems probable that those built in assaulting the Gallic towns were not very long. The least distance from the hostile wall at which the construction could have been begun was from 400 to 500 ft. The width above must have been enough for a storming column, very likely of the usual formation. If we take this to be the front of a maniple, the least breadth would have been 50 ft. The sides might be quite steep, as we shall see later. A fabric 80 ft. high and 50 ft. wide on top, might have been 60 ft. wide on the ground. To the building of the agger, it must be remembered, everything else in the siege was subordinated.

3. By way of preparation for its construction, first of all the ground must be levelled for the foundation. This could be done by workmen protected by testudines, stout movable sheds (a, Fig. 26). Then the workmen, both those building the agger and those providing the material, must be guarded from the missiles of the enemy. The former were protected by plutei, large standing shields, which could be advanced from time to time. The others brought the material in covered galleries, composed of a series of vineae (sheds like the testudines in Fig. 26, but entirely open at each end), reaching to the point of beginning the agger. The workmen were also protected by archers, slingers, and tormenta, drawn up in a line parallel to the hostile wall. The archers and slingers were themselves protected by a line of plutei; the tormenta were placed usually in moving towers (c, Fig. 26). The towers were increased in height as they moved forward by putting up additional stories. Each floor often had an outside gallery protected by a sort of palisade. These parallels (i.e. the plutei and towers) must also have had covered approaches of long lines of vineae (r o, Fig. 25). Under shelter of these vineae, too, were posted bodies of legionaries (cohortes expeditae*) to cover the operations and resist sorties. Farther in the rear, outside the camp, bivouacked strong bodies of troops, as additional supports.

4. The strength of the various protections would of course depend on the power of the enemy’s missiles. Usually the rude walls of the vineae were only of a sort of wattled work.

5. Sometimes towers (turres ambulatoriae) were placed on the agger (Bk. VII. Chap. 17). In such cases the top of the latter was designed to be a smooth roadway; and its height had merely to be enough for the tower to have sufficient elevation. This was probably a quicker way of approach, as it saved building a considerable part of the agger; but it was not so convenient for a column of attack. The column would have to pass over a drawbridge let fall from the tower upon the enemy’s wall. As a rule, the tower accompanied the construction of the agger at its side (tt, Fig. 25), and served as a battery to clear the enemy from the wall, and as a redoubt in the line of approaches.

Construction of the Agger.

6. Fig. 24 gives a longitudinal vertical section of the agger. ab is the city wall to be attacked. The section of the agger when complete is represented by a b c e f h n a. Of this only a little part, as c e f h n d, can be built regularly. The portion next to the wall, a b e d, must then be filled pell mell at the last moment.

7. To begin the regular structure, a line of vineae (g l, Fig. 25) was first advanced from the depot of material to the point of beginning. About 30 ft. in advance of this point, and at right angles to the line of huts, was placed a line of plutei, to protect the workmen. Through the gallery formed by the huts the workmen now carried the material. This was, first of all, logs 20 to 30 ft. long and from a foot to a foot and a half thick. These were piled in layers alternating in direction, "cob house" fashion (Fig. 23). In the middle was left a passage some 10 or 12 ft. wide. The interstices were filled with stones, sods, brush, &c. When the work had reached a height of about 7 ft., a layer of timbers was placed entirely across it, thus at the same time covering over the passage and making a floor for a second story. Thus the first story was completed to a length of 30 ft. The plutei were now moved 30 ft. ahead, and, in like manner as before, a second section of the agger was built. The covered passage through the first section served the same purpose as the line of vineae, for the protection of those carrying the material. At the point of beginning, steps were made so as to reach the top of the first story.

8. When the work had been advanced in this way some 100 ft., a second line of plutei (k, Fig. 24) was placed on top of the first story and across it; and under their protection a second story was begun, just like the first. At the beginning of this, room was left for a platform (fg) by which to approach the covered gallery (u) of the second story. In this manner the work was steadily advanced, until the entire structure had reached the required height. Each additional story had its covered gallery running throughout its length, its steps, and platform.

9. When the regular structure had been brought as near the hostile wall as is safe, then through the various galleries a great mass of material, stones, fascines, sods, &c., was carried, and thrown out into the remaining space, until it is quite filled. The sides of the regular structure were protected from fire by being covered with fresh hides. When the agger was brought quite to the wall, the time for assault had arrived. Archers, slingers and tormenta swept the wall with missiles, while the column of attack mounted

Both clauses are here in the subjunc., because both are subord. clauses in indir. disc.; the protasis (si inciderint) is of course subord., and the apodosis (consueverint) is also subord. in this case because introduced by a relative (quorum). In the dir. disc., the sentence would run: si qua . . . inciderunt, . . . consuevimus, if any (= whatever) wars befall, we are accustomed. For the tense of inciderunt, see § 279. b; G. 569; H. 471. 5.

2. *demonstrā[ve]runt, made known. — inter singulas legiones, between each two legions. — impedimentorum magnum numerum, a great number of baggage [-animals] (i.e. a very long baggage-train).
The Baggage-Train. — The heavy baggage (impedimenta) of the legion was carried by pack animals (jumenta), horses or mules. Wagons or carts, while occasionally used by the army, were more generally found only with the sutlers (mercatores), who followed the legions. The light baggage (sarcinae) was carried by the soldiers.

We may reckon the load of one pack animal at 200 pounds. First of all were the tents. These were described by Hyginus as square, 10 ft. on a side, with a wedge roof. Ten men could use such a tent. Hyginus estimates 8 men in a tent, but yet allows 1 to every 10, as ⅓ of each contubernium should always be on guard duty. It seems safe to consider that the contubernium, or number messing together in a tent, in Cæsar's army, was also 10. Then each centurion had one tent. So a maniple would need 14 tents for the centurions and a strength of 120 men. Allowing 2 for the servants, the entire number would be 16. That would make 48 for a cohort, and 480 for a legion. To this number must be added those needed by the six tribunes and their servants, or perhaps 12 more. If tents were allowed also for subcenturions, perhaps we should estimate 30 or 60 more.

The tents were of leather (pelles). The weight of one, including two upright poles, one ridge-pole, and a supply of pegs, must have been at least 40 pounds. One horse, then, could carry 5 such tents. It seems more likely, however, that we should estimate one pack animal to each tent; i.e. to each centurion and to each contubernium. In this way could be carried provisions for a week, with hand-mills, blankets, &c.

For pitching camp there must have been needed a full supply of stakes, tools, &c. As these were for general use, they could not have been divided among the pack animals of the cohorts. So we may add one animal to each cohort for this service. Thus the cohort would have at least 49 beasts. To each beast should be allowed one servant (calo), who could attend each to a centurion or contubernium.

The higher officers had, besides at least two riding horses each, a still greater number of pack animals. We shall not be far astray if we assign to each tribune three pack animals and five servants.

Thus the number of pack horses or mules in the baggage-train of a legion reaches at least 520.

intercedere, intervened. In the direct discourse: magnus numerus intercedit. — neque . . . negotii, and that it was [a matter] of no difficulty (lit. and that it was nothing of difficulty). — negotii: partitive (§ 216. a. 1; G. 371; H. 397. 1). — cum . . . venissent
... abessent: subjunctive, because subordinate clauses in the indirect discourse; the verbs refer to future time, and represent respectively the future perfect and the future indicative of the direct discourse.—hanc, i.e. the first legion.—adoriri: subject of esse (l. 32), quicumque being in the predicate.—qua pulsā... direptis (ablative absolute = protasis of a future condition), if this should be routed, &c.—futurum [esse], apodosis of the condition.—ut... non auderent, substantive clause of result, subject of futurum [esse] (§ 332. a; G. 558; H. 501. 1. 1).—futurum... auderent, the result would be that, &c., is little more than a roundabout way of expressing the future infinitive (see § 147. c. 2; G. 240. 2; H. 537. 3).

3. adjuvabat: the subj. is quod Nervii... effecerant, the advice of those who reported the matter was reinforced by the fact that the Nervii, &c. Notice the emphatic position of adjuvabant (see Appendix, pp. 120, 121).

The following description of the march of a Roman army illustrates the plan of the Nervii, and will serve for reference hereafter:

THE MARCH.

I. THE COHORT.—The cohort marched either in column of maniples or in column of centuries.

1. The column of maniples (manipulatim) was formed from order of battle merely by facing to the right (or left). (Figs. 27, 29.) Thus the maniples were in column, and the two centuries of each maniple were side by side. As the depth of the cohort in line of battle was 40 ft., of course the column of maniples was 40 ft. wide. But this was a loose order. Allowing each man 3 ft., the column could easily have been made only 30 ft. wide. Again, this wide column could have been reduced to half the width by the right (or left) century of each maniple moving straight on, and the other falling in its rear. Thus the maniple, instead of 12 ranks of 10 men, would have had 24 ranks of 5 men each. This last formation was really a column of centuries by the flank.

2. The column of centuries proper (centuriatim, ordinatim) was formed from the order of battle by having the maniple on the right (or left) wing of the cohort march straight forward, and the others successively followed (Figs. 27, 30, 31). Thus the centuries would form a column, the width of which would be the same as the front of a maniple, 40 ft. (or 36 ft., not including the centurion on the flank).
3. The column of centuries would naturally be adopted when a cohort marched directly forward. If the road was less than 40 ft. wide, as must often have happened in Gaul,* the width of the column could easily be reduced from 40 ft. to 20 ft. The right (or left) half of each century would move straight on, and the other half would fall in its rear. The century would then consist of 10 ranks of 6 men each, instead of 5 ranks of 12 men. This was probably the usual formation in a march forward over the rough Gallic roads.

4. In column of march, in any formation, we should estimate 4 ft. as the distance from breast to breast. Then a cohort of 360 men would reach to the following length:

   - In column of centuries, 120 or 240 ft.;
   - In column of maniples, 144 or 288 ft.

II. THE LEGION.—The legion, or a still greater number of cohorts, marched in one of three orders: in column (agmen pilatum), in order of battle (acies instructa), in square (agmen quadratum).

1. When the legion is in column, the cohorts march according to their number. If the march is from the right (i.e. from the right of the line of battle, Fig. 28), the first cohort has the lead, then follows the second, and so on. If the march is from the left, the 10th cohort leads, followed by the 9th, &c. Each cohort is in column of centuries. Between each two cohorts there must have been a small interval. Suppose this to have been 20 ft. Then the length of the legion would have been 1400 or 2600 ft.

* The Roman road was usually only 15 ft. wide.
2. For the baggage-train of a legion, we estimate 520 pack animals as the normal strength. In a road 40 ft. wide, 8 animals can easily find room abreast. Then the train would have had 65 ranks. Allowing each rank 10 ft. depth, the train would extend 650 ft. In a road only 20 ft. wide, the pack animals would march 4 abreast, and would extend 1300 ft. Then a legion with its baggage in column of march would extend 2050 or 3900 ft.

3. The march in order of battle is of two kinds: (a) by lines, and (b) by divisions.

   a. If the legion marches by lines, there are as many columns as there are lines in the formation. In Caesar's array there would usually be three columns. In the first column are cohorts 1-4; in the second, cohorts 5-7; in the third, cohorts 8-10 (Fig. 32). Each cohort is in column of maniples. So by simply facing to the left (or right) the legion is again in order of battle. It will be seen that in this formation the legion moves by the flank.

   b. A legion marching to the front by divisions in triple line of battle, forms three columns (Fig. 33). In the first are the cohorts of the right wing, 1, 5 and 8. In the second are the cohorts of the centre, 2, 6 and 9. In the third are the cohorts of the left, 4, 3, 7 and 10. The columns must be as far apart as the distance between their leading cohorts when in line of battle. Each cohort is in column of centuries.*

4. The march in square (Fig. 34) was used when the army was surrounded by the enemy. One division of troops, in column of centuries, leads. Then follows the baggage-train, and then a second division of troops in column of centuries. On either wing marches a body in column of maniples. Then by a simple facing of the wings to right and left, and deploying of the van and rear, the square is ready to meet the enemy.*

* Bk. I. 49*, Bk. IV. 14*.

III. The Army.—The three general directions of the march are, forward, to the rear, and to either flank.

1. When the column is marching forward, we must distinguish three parts of the army: the van (primum agmen †), the main body (exercitus, omnes copiae, agmen legionum ‡), and the rear guard (agmen novissimum, agmen extremum §).

2. The van may have had one of three objects. The first was to engage the rear of the enemy, so as to delay his march and give time for the main body to deploy, and for the commander to form his plans. For this purpose, a body of cavalry was sent forward, sometimes with the addition of light infantry (see Chap. 19³).

3. The second object was to reconnoitre the country (loci naturam perspicere, iter cognoscere), and to bring news of the enemy. To accomplish this, there were sent forward special detachments of cavalry (exploratores), who scoured the country far in front and on both flanks. To these detachments were often assigned trusty staff-officers, accompanied by spies (speculatores ||).

4. The third object was to select and make ready the place for the camp. This duty was entrusted to a detail of centurions from the legions, accompanied by a few men, and usually under a tribune or other officer of the general staff.

5. At a fixed distance after the van marched the main body, and close after it the rear guard. This last, during a march to the front, had only police duty to perform; i.e., to pick up stragglers, and the like.

6. The main body marched in one of three forms: a. In column, each legion accompanied by its baggage. b. In column, all the baggage of the army together. c. In line of battle.

a. This order of march was only adopted in a friendly country, or at least when there appeared no immediate danger of an encounter with the enemy. The legions were in single column and the cohorts in column of centuries. Each legion was followed immediately by its baggage, which thus divided it from the legion next following. The last legion probably detached a few cohorts to follow the baggage. This detachment would thus form the rear guard of the whole army.

A column of five legions in this order, with a breadth of 40 ft., requires 10,250 ft. in length. A sixth legion would need 40 minutes to reach the head of this column so as to engage in battle.

It is clear that if the enemy could make a vigorous attack in force on the head of the column, they would have a good chance to throw it into confusion, and prevent it from properly deploying (see Chap. 17).

b. When near the enemy, if it was not desirable to march in order of battle, the column was formed as in a, but the baggage-train of all the army was assembled. The greater part of the legions, usually three-fourths of the entire number, composed the head of the column. Then followed the baggage. The remaining legions brought up the rear (claudunt agmen). In this order the legions could be deployed much more rapidly, and were properly called expeditae (see Chap. 19).

If a legion marching expedita is attacked on the march (in agmine, sub sarcinis, in itinere), before being able to meet the enemy, the legionaries must pile their personal baggage (sarcinae in acervum comportantur, sarcinae conferuntur*), draw their shields from their coverings (tegimenta scutis detrahuntur†), put on their field badges (insignia accommodantur†), put on helmets (galeae induuntur, galeantur‡), and get their weapons ready (arma expedituntur, legio armatur‡). Of course time was needed for all this; and this time must be won by the vanguard.

c. The advance in order of battle (acie instructa) could be made only for short distances. It was used only when in the immediate presence of the enemy, and when the ground was suitable. The order of march of each legion has already been described (see Bk. IV. Chap. 14).

7. The march in retreat was usually in one of two forms: a. The retreat in column, with baggage massed. b. The retreat in square.

a. The baggage was sent out of camp as soon as possible, under escort of a detachment of infantry. This body formed the vanguard, and with them went a detail of centurions and privates to stake out the new camp. Then followed the main body, the cohorts in column of centuries. Finally, at a suitable distance, moved the rear guard (agmen novissimum).

* Bk. I. 24.  † Bk. II. 23.  ‡ Bk. VII. 18.
It was the duty of these last to delay the enemy, thus giving the army time to push on, or to deploy, if the attack should be made in force. The rear guard was usually composed of cavalry, with archers and slingers.*

b. The retreat in square was chosen when the enemy were on all sides; for instance, on a march through a rebellious country, and also when the hostile cavalry were numerous. A single square could be formed from all the legions, with all the baggage of the army in the centre; or each legion could form a square by itself, with its baggage enclosed. The cavalry, supported by the archers and slingers, remained without as skirmishers.†

8. Flank marches were made only for a short distance, and always in order of battle. The legions marched in column of lines, so that there were two or three parallel columns, according to the formation. The baggage-train would either march on the side remote from the enemy, or between the legions, each being followed by its own pack animals. The latter mode might be used when the army was divided from the enemy by some considerable obstacle, like a river; or when the side remote from the enemy was difficult to traverse; for instance, when the army was marching in the valley of a stream, so that the water was on the flank towards the enemy, and hills and woods on the other flank.‡ In such case as last mentioned, no guard of light troops would be necessary between the army and the enemy. But in open ground, such a detachment would have to be made, and would cover the march as skirmishers. To form line of battle from a column of march by the flank, was a simple matter unless the baggage was between the legions. It was done by facing to the right or left, as the case might be. In every march of a large body of troops, the order of march was changed daily, and the legions took turns in leading, so that each in turn might come first to camp.

Tactics of the Cavalry. — The small tactical unit* of the Roman cavalry, or of that formed on the Roman plan, was the turma of 32 horses in rank and file. This was probably arranged in 4 ranks of 8 horses each. Allowing 5 ft. front room to each horse, the turma would have a front of 40 ft., equal to that of the maniple. Taking 10 feet depth for each rank, the depth of the turma would also be 40 ft., again equal to that of the maniple. The order of march could easily be formed from this order of battle.

A regiment (ala) of 400 horses consisted of 12 turmae. The battle array of the cavalry would very likely resemble that of the infantry. It would then consist of several lines, two or three, with intervals between the turmae. A regiment of 12 turmae in two lines would have 6 in each line; and the front, including intervals, would be 440 ft. Of course, if it should be desired to overwhelm the enemy with the momentum of the mass of horse, the intervals would be closed up.

If the number of cavalry should be considerable, a larger tactical unit would be desirable. Three turmae, arrayed side by side, would amount to about 100 horses, with a front of 120 ft., equal to that of a cohort. A regiment (ala) of 400 horses would contain 4 such divisions.

In attacks in mass doubtless columns were formed of entire alae, perhaps 3 turmae front and 4 turmae (i.e. 16 ranks) deep. After the success was won, the turmae in the rear could be brought to the front (turmatim) to pursue the scattered foe.

Of course, the tactics of the cavalry would depend largely upon their arms as well as upon their numbers. If provided with missiles, they would doubtless be arrayed in turmae only, and would never form columns for attack.

The usual order of march of the ala of 400 men was probably in columns of turmae. If there was room for a column 40 ft. wide, the normal order of battle might be kept by each turma. The ala, not including the train, would then extend 480 feet. The train must have been considerable, and would have added at least a half to the length of the line. A column of 10 alae, or 4000 men, which Caesar sometimes had, would have extended 7200 feet.

* By a tactical unit is meant a body of troops which act together, and on which the evolutions of a larger body are based. Thus, in the American army, the company is the tactical unit of the regiment; the regiment of the brigade, &c.

c. B. Castra Belgica.

If the road allowed the column a breadth of only 20 ft., as must generally have been the case in Gaul, the turma would march with a front of 4 horses and a depth of 8. The ala would then need 960 ft., without baggage, and with it 1440 ft. A column of 10 alae would require 14,400 ft.

In camp there would suffice for each turma a space of 120 ft. by 30 ft., the same as for a century of infantry. Then one ala of cavalry would take the same room and be arranged in the same way as two cohorts of infantry. Of course, in particulars the arrangement must have been varied to adapt it to the convenience of that arm of the service.

4. cum, while. — recipierent . . . facerent, kept retiring, &c. (strengthened by identidem). — quem ad finem: the antecedent attracted into the rel. clause. Translate as if it were ad finem ad quam, farther than to the limit up to which the open ground extended. — [eos] cedentes, them in their retreat: cedentes agrees with eos, the understood obj. of insequi. — opere dimenso, having staked out the works.

45. 5. ubi . . . visa sunt: § 324; G. 563; H. 518. — quod tempus, the moment which. — committendi proelii: depending on tempus. — convenerat (impersonal), had been agreed upon: cf. English conventional. — ut . . . confirmaverant, just as they had formed their line and had encouraged one another, they dashed forward (provolverunt), i.e. in the same order and with the same resolute courage.

6. ut, so that (result). — in manibus nostri, lit. in our hands (i.e. within reach of our weapons). — adverso colle, &c., pushed straight up the hill (§ 258. g; G. 387; H. 431, according to Professor Harkness). — eos: after ad. — occupati, still at work on the fortifications (in opere): occupatus is always used as an adj.

Chap. 20. Caesari, dat. of agent (§ 232; G. 352; H. 388). Notice the emphatic position of omnia. Caesar had to do everything at one time. — erant agenda, had to be done. — vexillum: see note on Bk. I. Chap. 25. — proponendum . . . dandum, &c.: second periphrastic, like erant agenda. — concurri, impersonal passive (§ 146. c; G. 199. r. 1; H. 195. II. 1).

The Martial Music. — The musical instruments used in the Roman army were four in number: 1. The buccina, or bugle, a winding-horn of brass. 2. The cornu, or horn, the horn of an ox, with a silver mouthpiece. It was also sometimes made of brass. 3. The tuba, or trumpet, straight and otherwise like the modern trumpet. 4. The lituus, or cavalry trumpet, bent at the mouth, and distinguished by its shrill tone.

The only musicians expressly mentioned by Cesar were the buccinatores and tubicines. The former seem to have used both bugle and horn; the latter, only the trumpet. The various evolutions of the legion and its component parts were regulated by horn and trumpet,—the orders of the commander being first signalled on the former, and then passed along the line by the hoarse blast of the trumpet. It seems likely that there was a horn for each cohort, and a trumpet in each maniple. The classicum, sounded by all the musical instruments at once, was the general's call for the army to assemble when he wished to address them; or it was the signal for the onset to begin. In the latter case the commander's standard (vexillum) was first displayed. This was immediately followed by the simultaneous blast of horn and trumpet. At this the soldiers raised the war shout (clamor) and rushed to the charge. They had previously been advancing at a slow step.

The various divisions of the day, reveillé, noon and tattoo, were sounded by the bugle (buccina); each signal being followed, quite likely, by a martial air played by the assembled musicians of the army.

paulo longius, to a considerable distance: for this use of the compar., see § 93. a; G. 312; H. 444. 1. paulo is abl. of degree of difference (by a little), used as an adv. — aggeris petendī causā, for the purpose of gathering material for the rampart (wood, sods, &c.). — qui relates to subj. of arcessendi [erant]. — cohortandi (passive), had to be encouraged (§ 135. d; G. 243; H. p. 114. footnote at end). — signum dandum, i.e. the signal for the onset: the previous signal (signum tuba dandum) was for the soldiers to fall in, — to form their ranks. — successus, close approach.

2. difficultatibus . . . subsidio: § 233; G. 350; H. 390. I. — usus, experience. — quid . . . oporteret: indir. question, obj. of praescribere. — quid fieri: infinitive clause, subj. of oporteret. — quam connects similar constructions (§ 208. a). — quod, because, &c. (the second of the two things mentioned). — singulis, &c., had forbidden the several lieutenants to leave the work and their several legions. — discedere: § 331. a; G. 532. R.¹; H. p. 310. foot-note 1. — nisi munitis castris (abl. absolute), not unless the camp had been fortified, but unless when the camp had been fortified
(i.e. not until after, &c.): the full construction would require nisi munitis castris discederent.

3. nihil iam exspectabant, no longer waited for any orders from Ccesar: nihil (adverbial acc., § 240. a; G. 331. r. 2; H. 378. 2) is stronger than non; for nihil iam, see § 151. b.— quae videbantur, what seemed best.

Chap. 21. necessariis, i.e. such as were (absolutely) necessary. — ad cohortandos milites, gerundive of purpose. — quam in partem = in eam partem in quam, to whatever division it happened (chance brought). — decumam = decimam (§ 12. c): cf. Bk. I. Chap. 41.

2. non longiore . . . quam ut, with no more words than that they should, &c. — retinerent, perturbarentur, sustinerent, purpose. — neu = neve, and not. — quam quo . . . posset, rel. clause of characteristic: § 320. c; G. 313; H. 503. II. 3.

46. 3. pugnantibus (sc. eis, § 228; G. 346; H. 386) occurrit, finds them (already) fighting. — paratus (adj.) ad dimicandum, ready for battle (lit. fighting). — ad insignia adcommodanda, for fitting on the decorations (of the helmets, &c.). Some of these indicated the rank of the wearer (see p. 3 of notes). Perhaps, too, the different legions were distinguished by the insignia of the helmets. — scutis (§ 243; G. 344. r. 2; H. 414. N. 1), &c., for taking the covers (tegimenta) off the shields: on the march helmets were slung upon the breast, shields covered with leather, and ornaments kept in some unexposed place. — defuerit, failed, was wanting (there was not time enough to, &c.): for tense, see § 287. c; G. 513; H. 495. VI.

4. quam in partem, to whatever place. — ab opere: i.e. from his position in the work of fortifying. — quae-que, &c., and whatever standards he saw first (prima, adj. with signa), by these he fell in (took his stand): the Roman soldier was so well drilled, that, to whatever part of the legion he found his way, he knew perfectly the duties belonging to it. — haec (signa): antecedent to quae, but implying also the antecedent (in hac parte) of quam above. — in quaerendis suis (§ 301; G. 434; H. 544. 2), in hunting up his own position (lit. his own standards).
Chap. 22. ut, as. — dejectus (noun), the steep decline. — quam ut . . . postulabat, than as the system and method of military science required. The military science of the ancients was adapted to level, open ground, in which the troops could be drawn up and kept in regular lines. — cum, causal. — diversis legionibus (abl. absolute), the legions being scattered (and so not supporting one another, see Plan V.). — aliae aliā in parte (§ 203. c; H. 459. 1), some in one position, some in another. — sepibus . . . interjectis, thick hedges being in the way (and so breaking up the ground). — ante:
i.e. in Chap. 17. — impediretur: connected with resisterent by
-poste in line 13. — neque: here begins the main clause, the verb of which is poterant. — certa subsidia, regular reserves. — quid . . . opus esset (§ 243. e. r.; G. 390; H. 414. IV. n.4), nor could what was needed everywhere (in each place) be foreseen [and so] provided for. — provideri, compl. infinit. with the poterat supplied from poterant. The subj. of this poterat is the indir. question (§ 334. head-note; H. 529. I.) quid . . . opus esset.— ab uno (emphatic), by one man. — administrari, be attended to.— in tanta rerum iniquitate, in such an inequality of circumstances. — fort-unaee: emphatic, set off against rerum. The circumstances were diversified; the fortune that attended them consequently had various results. — eventūs (nom. pl.), subj. of sequabantur.

Chap. 23. ut, when: the clause is nearly equivalent to an English participle, having taken up their position (cf. § 290. d). — acie, gen. (§ 74. a; G. 69. r.2; H. 120). — pilis emissis: see note on Bk. I. Chap. 24, "The Order of Battle." — cursu . . . exanim-atos, out of breath with running, &c. — exanimatos: acc. with Atrebates (obj. of compulerunt). — conantes, acc. — impeditam, embarrassed (in their attempt to cross).

2. ipsi: referring to milites, l. 20. — progressi, and having advanced upon unfavorable ground (i.e. continuing the charge up the hill on the other side of the river). — rursus resistentes hostes, acc.

3. diversae, different. — ex loco superiore: i.e. starting from,
&c. — in ripis modifies proeliabantur (continued the fight).

4. totis: emphatic position (cf. Eng. "exposed almost entirely").
— a fronte, in front (§ 260. b; G. 388. r. 2; H. 434. I.). — nudatis, being exposed (by the absence of Legions VIII, IX, X, XI). Legions
VIII and XI were a fronte; IX and X, ab sinistra parte; and VII and XII, in dextro cornu. — constitisset: causal, showing why the enemy charged in that quarter. — magno intervallo: § 250: G. 400; H. 423. — confertissimo agmine, abl. of manner.

47. quorum, partitive. — aperto latere, on the uncovered flank (the right, not protected by shields): for omission of prep., see § 258. f; G. 386; H. 425. 1. — legiones: the 12th and the 7th. — castrorum, not partitive, the highest part of the camp, but possess., the height of the camp (i.e. on which the camp stood). — petere, to make for.

Chap. 24. levis armaturae, descriptive gen.: note how it is naturally translated by a descriptive adj. (light-armed) in English (cf. Chap. 15.4 note). — una, adv. — pulsos [esse]: infin. of indir. disc., with subj. acc. quos. — adversis hostibus, &c. (§ 228; G. 346; H. 386), met the enemy face to face. — occurrebant . . . ferebantur: these descriptive imperfs. (§ 277. a; G. 223; H. 471. 6) belong to the side action interrupting the main narrative, which is resumed in the perfs. contendunt, &c., at the end of the chapter. — aliam in partem, in another direction.

2. summo: § 193; G. 287. r.; H. 440. n. 2. — nostros . . . transisse, that our men had crossed the river (indir. disc.) victoriously (as victors). — cum respexissent, on looking back. — versari, were busy (indir. disc.). — praecipites: adj. with adv. force (§ 191; G. 324. 6; H. 443), agreeing with calones.

3. alii alium: § 203. c; G. 321; H. 459. 1. — perterriti, frantic with fear, panic-stricken (thoroughly frightened): observe the force of per- (§ 170. c. and n.; H. 344. 5).

4. quorum (possess.) virtutis (objec.) opinio, whose reputation for valor (§ 217. b). — ab civitate, abl. of agent: the state being thought of as a voluntary agent. — multitudine: § 248. c; G. 389; H. 421. n. 1. — compleri (was filling) . . . premi . . . teneri . . . fugere: indir. disc., with vidissent. The pres. tenses indicate what they saw going on before their eyes (dir. complitur . . . premuntur . . . tententur . . . fugiunt. (The beginner should notice that difference of idiom requires a change of tense in translation.) — desperatis nostris rebus, despairing of our success. — domum:
II.23-25. § 258. b; G. 410; H. 380. 2. 1. — pulsus superatosque [esse]: indir. disc.; the subj. is Romanos. — castris: § 249; G. 405; H. 421. I. — hostes: acc., subj. of potitos [esse], had got possession of.

CHAP. 25. Caesar: subj. of processit.

Notice that the main verb of the sentence is not expressed until all the attendant circumstances, &c., have been introduced in the form of modifying phrases, dependent clauses, &c. Thus the sense and construction are suspended. Such a sentence is called a Period (§ 346; G. 685, 686. 2; H. 573). An English writer would have used several short, independent sentences, each describing a single act or circumstance.

ubi: construe with vidit, line 28. — sibi ... impedimento (§ 233; G. 350; H. 390), hindered one another in fighting (were for a hinderance themselves to themselves for the fight).

2. quartae cohortis: this stood on the left of the front line (see note on Bk. I. Chap. 24), and so bore the brunt of the attack. — omnibus centurionibus occisis, abl. absolute (so four times in the following four lines). — signo: evidently this refers to the standard of the cohort (see note on Bk. I. Chap. 25). This passage shows that the cohort had a standard, probably that of the first maniple. — in his, among these. — primipilus: the primus pilus (primipilus) was the first centurion of the first cohort, and thus stood at the extreme right of the line. As an officer of the legion he ranked next to the military tribune. (See note on Bk. I. Chap. 7).

— ut, so that: result. — iam non, no longer (§ 151. b).

3. tardiores, rather slack (discouraged) (§ 93. a; G. 312; H. 441. 1). — ab novissimis, in the rear (§ 260. b; G. 388. r. 2; H. 434. I.): so below, § 3. Of course he came up to the rear of the legion first. — deserto proelio, withdrawing from the fight (abl. absolute). — hostis, acc. pl. (see note on Chap. 19): subj. of intermittere. — neque (correl. to et, p. 48, line 1), that the enemy did not cease coming up, but (et) were pressing on (instare).

48. in angusto, in a strait. — vidit: repeated from line 4 of this chapter, on account of the length of the sentence. — posset, rel. clause of characteristic (§ 320; G. 633; H. 503. I.).
4. militi: dat., after detracto (§ 229; G. 344; H. 385. 2). — signa ... laxare, to charge (bear on the standards), [and thus] open out the maniples. In this manoeuvre the odd numbers of the front rank sprang forward against the enemy, and thus gained twice the room they had in the crowded ranks for the use of the sword. (See note, Bk. I. Chap. 24, p. 37 of Notes.) — quo ... possent: § 317. b; G. 545. 2; H. 497. II. Each soldier appears to have needed a space of about three feet square.

5. militibus, dat., with inlata. — etiam ... rebus, even in his own extreme peril. — operam navare: § 331. b; G. 532; H. 535. II. and foot-note. (The beginner should beware of confounding opera with opus or with ops. See Vocabulary.)

Chap. 26. constiterat (from consisto), not had stood, but had taken up a position, had formed: see Vocabulary. — urgeri, hard-pressed. — ut conjungerent ... inferrent: subst. clause, secondary obj. of monuit (§ 331; G. 546; H. 498. II.). — conversa, &c., should charge the enemy in opposite directions (lit. bear turned standards against). The two united, facing different ways, thus forming a circle (orbis) or a hollow square (see note, Bk. IV. Chap. 37\textsuperscript{2}). This movement made it necessary to face about.

2. alii: dat., after a verbal phrase of helping (§ 227; G. 346; H. 385. I.). — neque timerent, and no longer feared. — ne ... circumvenirentur: § 331. f; G. 552; H. 498. III. — versi, in the rear (while their backs were turned). — ab hoste, by the enemy (collectively, in which sense the pl. is more common).

3. praesidio impedimentis, dat. for which and dat. to which. — cursu incitato, setting out on a run.

4. gererentur: § 334; G. 462; H. 529. I.

5. esset, indir. question. — nihil ... reliqui (partitive gen.) fecerunt, left nothing undone in the way of speed (i.e. hastened as fast as they could).

Chap. 27. etiam qui, even [those of them] who. — procubuisse, subj. of characteristic (§ 320; G. 633; H. 503. I.) or of integral part (§ 342; G. 666; H. 529. II.). — scutis, locative abl. (§ 254. b; G. 403. r. 3; H. 425. 1. 1. n.). — inermes armatis, [though] unarmed, threw themselves upon the armed [enemy]. — occurrerent; result, like redintegrarent above and praeferrent
II. 25–28.] Belgian Confederacy. 113

below.—ut delerent, pure purpose clause, dependent on praeferrent.—pugnant quo: probably spurious; to be disregarded in translation.—se . . . praeferrent, showed themselves superior to.

2. tantam virtutem praestiterunt. On this clause depend the following subjuncs. (of result): insisterent, pugnarent, conicerent, remitterent.

49. primi, foremost.—jacentibus (sc. eis, abl. after insisterent), trod upon them as they lay fallen (lit. them lying).

3. his dejectis, &c. (abl. absolute), and that, when these too were struck down, and corpses were piled in heaps, those who survived still hurled weapons against our men as if (ut) from a mound.—qui superessent, characteristic clause.—ut . . . deberet, so that it must be judged that not without good hope of success (nequiquam) did men, &c. ut . . . deberet is a result clause, dependent on the whole of the preceding sentence. The subj. of deberet is the infin. clause homines (acc.) ausos esse. judicari is complem. infin. with deberet. The other infins., transire, ascendere, subire, are complementary to ausos esse.—facilia, pred. accusative.

Chap. 28. prope ad internecionem: the Nervii were not by any means exterminated. Three years later they revolted again (Bk. V. Chap. 39), and two years after that they sent a force of 5000 men to Alesia to relieve Vercingetorix (Bk. VII. Chap. 75).—aestuaria: the country lying to the north (the modern Zealand) is low and marshy, cut up with bays and tidewater inlets.—conjectos: sc. esse.—hac pugnā nuntiātā, when the news of this battle reached them.—cum, causal.—impeditum, &c., there was no obstacle in the way of (lit. nothing hindered to) the conquerors, and no safety (lit. nothing safe) for the conquered.

2. in . . . calamitate, in reporting the loss.—qui . . . possent: § 320; G. 633; H. 503. I.

3. usus [esse], personal construction: § 330. b; G. 528; H. 524. i. n. i.—misericordiā (abl.), mercy: it has been observed that Cæsar’s dealings with the Gauls were comparatively merciful at first; at least, after an enormous massacre, the remnant had something to hope for. But after he had been twice repulsed from Britain, when Gaul made another effort for independence, his “gentleness” was shown by such acts as cutting off the hands of all who had borne arms (Bk. VIII. Chap. 44), and in the treatment of Vercingetorix, — kept for years in chains, and then killed in cold blood at his conqueror's triumph. — ut . . . videretur, that he might be seen (not seem) to have used mercy. — ut . . . prohiberent: subst. clause of purpose, obj. of imperavit (§ 331. a; G. 546; H. 498. I.). (Compare this construction with that of uti jussit in line 22.)

Chap. 29. cum . . . venirent, while on the way. — omnibus copiis: § 248. a; G. 391. R. I.; H. 419. 1. 1.— auxilio (dat. of purpose) Nervii (dat. of person): § 233; G. 350; H. 390. — oppidum: probably opposite Namur, at the confluence of the Meuse (or Maas) and Sambre. (For a striking description of the locality, see Motley's Dutch Republic, III. 224.) Others place it at Falhize, opposite Huy, on the Meuse below Namur.

2. cum, while. — ex . . . partibus, all round (lit. from all sides in its circumference). — despectūs, acc. pl. — pedum: § 215. b; G. 364. r.; H. 396. V. — collocabant: notice the change of tense. — sassa . . . trabes: to throw down on the besiegers.

3. ex Cimbris Teutonisisque: abl. of source (§ 244. a. Rem.; G. 395; H. 415. II. n.). (See note on Bk. I. Chap. 74.)

50. impedimentis (abl. absolute) refers to cattle as well as articles of baggage; hence the two verbs, agere (to drive) and portare (to carry). Compare ferre et agere (to plunder). — custodiam, a guard, whose duty it was to keep an eye on the baggage, &c.; præsidium, a garrison, who were to hold the place. — sex milia: this Teutonic military colony was probably merely adopted into the Celtic tribe of the Aduatuci, thus giving rise to the story that the whole tribe were of Teutonic descent. — unā (adv.), along with (the baggage and cattle, — the impedimenta).

4. Hi: i.e. the six thousand. — eorum: i.e. the Cimbri and Teutons. — obitum: destruction: the Teutons were totally defeated by Gaius Marius at Aquæ Sextiæ (Aix les Bains), B.C. 102; the Cimbri, by Marius and Catulus, next year, at Vercellæ. — alias (adv.) . . . alias, now . . . now. — inferrent, made: the regular word for offensive war. — inlatum [sibi] defenderent, defended themselves when attacked (lit. warded it [sc. bellum] off [de-fendo] when made against them). — consensu eorum omnium, by mutual agreement (by a compact with them all, i.e. the finitimi). — sibi domicilio: § 233; G. 350: H. 390. — hunc locum: the land between the Meuse and the Scheldt.

Chap. 30. adventu: abl. of time. — faciebant: notice the tense. — parvulis: for the formation of the word, see § 164. a;

Plan VI. Siege of Aduatuea. Bk. II. Chap. 29-33.

G. 786. 9. b; H. 332. — pedum XII: i.e. in height. — XV milium: fifteen miles (sc. passuum) would be preposterous for so small a hill; hence Napoleon III understands pedum instead of passuum. But this would be nearly three miles; and the works, on his plan, measure hardly more than one. — oppido: in is not used, because the idea of means is present to the writer's mind.

2. For the siege operations, see note, "The Siege," pp. 85–90, and illustration, p. 92. — constitui: indir. disc., dependent on viderunt. — iniridere, historical infin.: § 275; G. 650; H. 536. 1.
—ab tanto spatio, so far off (lit. away by so great a space): abl. of degree of difference. Ab is an adv. here.

3. quibusnam, &c.: the enclitic nam gives a sarcastic emphasis to this jeering question of the barbarians, by what hands, pray, or what strength? — prae, in comparison with. — contemptui: § 233. n. 1; G. 350; H. 390. — conlocare, indir. disc.: we should have expected the future (conlocatus [esse]). Apparently the Gauls thought the Romans meant to lift the tower and set it up on the wall (in muro); and such an idea, of course, seemed very funny. But when the tower began to increase in height and to roll forward (see note on Chap. 12, “The Siege,” 3), the joke lost its point.

Chap. 31. moveri, that it was actually moving (lit. in pass.): for the omission of the subj. acc. turrim, see § 336. a; H. p. 296, foot-note 2. — locuti (participle), speaking.

2. existimare (sc. se), that they thought: depending on locuti. — tanta celeritate: § 248. R.; G. 401; H. 419. III. — possent, causal: § 320. e; G. 636; H. 517. — se (obj.) . . . permettere, that they surrendered themselves, &c.: depending on dixerunt.

3. The indir. disc. is continued. — unum: notice the emphatic position. — deprecari, besought (i.e. to be spared: de-precor, to beg off). — pro sua, &c., in accordance with his usual (or well-known), &c. — quam . . . audirent, which they were [all the time] hearing of: repeated action. — statuisset: for the fut. perf. (statur-eris) of the dir. disc. (§ 307. e; G. 597; H. 473. 2). — conservandos: § 331. d. — ne . . . despoliaret: subst. clause of purpose, in apposition with unum.

4. inimicos: i.e. their neighbors (cf. line 5, above), regarded them as interlopers. — virtuti: § 227; G. 346; H. 385. II. — traditis armis (= si arma tradita essent): abl. absolute, equivalent to a protasis (§ 310. a; G. 594. 2; H. 431. 2). [In the dir. disc.: si arma tradita erunt, non poterimus.]

5. sibi praestare, that it was better for them (impersonal; dir., nobis praestat). — si . . . deducentur (fut. condition), if they should be reduced to such an extremity. — quamvis fortunam, any fortune whatsoever (quam-vis, what you will). — consuëssent: for the form, see § 128. a; G. 151. 1; H. 235.
51. Chap. 32. consuetudine . . . merito, abl. of cause: § 245; G. 406; H. 416. — attigisset . . . dedissent stand for attigerit (§327.a; G. 576; H. 520) . . . dedideritis (fut. perf.) of the direct. —aries: a long beam with an iron head (like a ram’s), suspended from a framework, and swung with great force against a wall, crumbling the strongest masonry (see Fig. 26). — condicionem, terms. — nisi armis traditis, abl. absolute: i.e. he would make no terms unless they had first given up their arms. Notice the time of the participle (cf. nisi munitis castris, Chap. 20).

2. in Nerviis, in the case of the Nervii. — facturum: i.e. in case they came to terms. (Dir. disc.: id quod feci, faciam.) — finitumisque imperaturum explains facturum. -que in this use is called the explanatory or “epexegetical” -que. finitumis = finitimis. — ne quam injuriam inferrent, to do no wrong to, &c. (quam = any, 105. d; G. 302; H. 455. 1). — re nuntiata ad suos, the message being carried to their people: the idea of motion causes the use of ad suos; suis (dat.) would refer simply to the utterance of the message, not to its being carried (§225. b; G. 344. r. 1; H. 384. 3). — imperarentur: the subjunc. shows that this subord. clause is a part of the indir. disc. (§336; G. 653; H. 524). — facere (supply se as subj. acc.): we should expect facturos [esse]. The present gives the idea of eagerness and promptness (§276. c; G. 219; H. 467. 5). — dixerunt: i.e. the ambassadors.

3. prope . . . aadaequarent (result clause), almost came up to the very top of the wall and the mound (Cæsar’s earthwork, see long note on Chap. 12), filling up the space between them. — et tamen, but still. — ut, as. — eo die: the day is thought of as fixing the time, not as marking its duration; hence the abl. (§256; G. 392; H. 429).

Chap. 33. sub vesperum, towards evening. — ex oppido exire: for the repetition of ex, see §243. b; G. 388; H. 413. n. 3. — ne quam: §105. d; G. 302; H. 455. 1. — ante inito consilio, in accordance with a plan previously agreed upon. — quod crediderant: §321; G. 539; H. 516. 1. — praessidia: i.e. those stationed in the castella. — aut denique, or at any rate. — servaturos [esse], would keep (guard).
2. partim . . . partim, some of them . . . some of them (lit. partly . . . partly). — ex cortice, abl. of material: § 244. c; G. 396; H. 415. III. — viminibus intestis, abl. absolute. (Possibly, however, intestis agrees with scutis, and viminibus is abl. of material.) — quae: the antecedent is scutis. — ut, as. — pellibus (abl.) induxerant, they had covered with hide (§ 225. d; G. 348; H. 384. II. 2): the commoner construction would be with the dat., quibus pelles (acc.) induxerunt. — qua, where: an abl. or instrumental form, used adverbially; parte is not to be supplied.

3. Celeriter: note the emphatic position. Cæsar had ordered them to give the signal, in case of any disturbance, and to do it instantly. — eo, thither. — concursum . . . pugnatum: impersonal use of passive (§ 146. c; G. 199. r. 1; H. 301. i). — ita . . . ut, they fought as fiercely as brave men ought to have fought: for the force of the pres. infin. pugnari with the perf. debuit, see § 288. a; H. 537. i. — in extrema spe, for their last chance (lit. in the last hope). — iniquo loco: § 258. f; H. 425. 2. — eos qui, men who. — qui . . . jacerent, subj. of characteristic. — in una virtute, in valor alone. — cum . . . consisteret, at a time when: a clause of characteristic; used to define the occasion (the kind of time), not to fix the date. (See note on Bk. III. Chap. 9, "The Conjunction cum," II. a. 2.)

4. ad, about. — jam . . . nemo, no one any longer. — sectionem vendidit, sold the booty at auction. — universam, in one lot, in the lump.

52. relatus est, was reported.

Chap. 34. Venetos, &c.: the name of the Veneti survives in the modern Vannes; that of the Redones, in Rennes. — maritumae civitates: inhabiting the modern Brittany; they are spoken of at length in Book III.

Chap. 35. pacata, subdued. — perlata: notice the force of per; the news travelled from tribe to tribe. — incoherent: § 342; G. 666; H. 529. II. — qui . . . pollicerentur, purpose. — se . . . daturas: "not daturos; they were representatives sent to report what the states promised."
2. Illyricum: this province, east of the Adriatic, formed part of Cæsar’s government. — properabat, was in a hurry to start.

3. Carnūtes: their country lay between the Seine and the Loire, comprising the modern Orleans; their name is preserved in the modern Chartres. — Andes (whence Anjou): near the lower Loire; Turōnes: preserved in Tours.

4. ex litteris, abl. of cause: § 245; G. 406; H. 416. The facts, as reported by Cæsar in his official letter to the Senate, were the ground of the supplicatio. — quindecim dies, acc. of duration of time: construe with supplicatio. — supplicatio, a public thanksgiving: ten days was the longest time that had ever been granted before, except to Pompey, who was honored with twelve for his victory over Mithridates. But Cæsar’s party was now all-powerful at Rome. — quod: for id quod; see § 200. e; G. 616. r. 2; H. 445. 7.

The Legions. — In the campaign of 57 B.C., Cæsar had eight legions: the six used in the previous year, and the two newly levied (Chap. 21).
APPENDIX.

The order of the words is so important for the right understanding of Latin that we append a translation of the first chapter of Book II. with especial reference to the emphasis indicated by the order. The teacher must use his discretion as to how much can profitably be communicated to beginners under his particular method of instruction. Furthermore, as the translation is made expressly to bring out explicitly the force of order, it should not be taken as a model of desirable translation. Such a translation as is here given forces the emphasis on the attention more than is perhaps natural in English. The force is all present in the Latin, but in English it may often be left to be brought out by the context or by some kindred emphasis which the English substitutes. For a like translation of Bk. I. Chap. 1, see A. & G. Latin Grammar, Revised ed., pp. 387-388.

And BEING¹ thus in Hither² Gaul, as I have shown above, Caesar³ had frequent⁴ rumors brought to him,⁵ and despatches⁶ also from Labienus⁷ continued to inform him that all⁸ the Belgæ,⁹ who constituted a third part¹⁰ of [the whole of] Gaul, as I had [previously] stated, were conspiring [for an attack] against the Roman government¹¹ and exchanging hostages. That for this

² Opposed to Farther Gaul, where the troops were.
³ The main subject of discourse.
⁴ The repetition of the stories is the significant fact, "he kept hearing," but at the same time the rumors are opposed to Labienus' despatches.
⁵ An emphasis continued in Latin from Caesar, the main person (see A. & G. § 344. 1), but lost in English.
⁶, ⁷ Opposed to the rumors.
⁸, ⁹ Both words together the subject of discourse, but the adjective most prominent, "the entire body of the Belgæ."
¹⁰ Opposed to the whole, as one might say, "a full third of the whole."
¹¹ Here not the conspiracy itself, but the aim of it is the most important part of the idea.
Appendix.

Conspiracy the reasons were these, namely: in the first place, because they were afraid (i.e. in their own minds) that when Gaul was all subdued, our army would be brought against them; and in the second place, because some of the Gauls (i.e. from outside) were tampering with them. These Gauls were partly those who were disturbed that the Roman army should pass the winter and get a footing in Gaul, just as they had been unwilling that the Germans should stay any longer there, and partly those who from mere fickleness and unsteadiness were always eager for new forms of government; [they were stimulated] by some also besides, who, inasmuch as in Gaul regal power was regularly usurped by the more powerful, and those who had means to employ soldiers could not so easily succeed in such usurpations under our imperial control.

12 The main subject of discourse, "now this conspiracy, the reports said," etc.
13 The difference between "the reasons why were these" and "these were the reasons why" is obvious. Cæsar might say either.
14 A peculiar emphasis not directly carried out. Cicero would very likely have been more rhetorical and have opposed "fear" to "being tampered with." But Cæsar changes his point of view in the course of the sentence; and, as if he had said ipsi in the first member, opposes to the motives of the Belgæ themselves, the Gauls by whom outside influence was brought to bear.
15, 16 The completion of the business now in hand is first emphasized, then the business itself.
17 Cæsar brings out the whole force of the idea by opposing "them" to "Gaul," which has not before been emphatic, but which is now made so by being contrasted with the Belgians (cf. Chiasmus, A. & G. § 344. f).
18 See note 14.
19 Opposed to the "Germans."
20 Opposed to "stay any longer."
21 The English emphasis here represents the position of the two clauses, relative and antecedent.
22 See note 19.
23 See note 20.
24 Notice that the view of the first party is a rational idea seriously thought out, to which implied state of mind the inconstancy of the second party is opposed.
25 A natural consequence of their character. For no good reason they got tired of the established order and wanted a change.
26 Opposed to countries in which the Romans were familiar with permanent government.
27, 28 The two means of attaining regal power.
29 And consequently wanted to rebel.
30 The Latin often compresses into an indefinite, and to us unemphatic, word, a whole important idea. The emphasis appears in English when a suitable word is substituted according to our way of saying things.
31 This control, of course, tended towards establishing order.
Alpine Campaign.

BOOK THIRD. — B.C. 56.

ALPINE CAMPAIGN. — The higher valleys of the Alps were inhabited by tribes who got a scanty living by working in mines, and often waylaid and plundered expeditions on the march (see Strabo, iv. 6). The two legions sent by Cesar under Q. Pedius (Bk. II. Chap. 2) had been attacked by these predatory people while passing into the valley of the Rhone above the Lake (Valais). Hence this expedition, which was intended to strike terror into the mountain tribes.

53. Nantuatis (acc.), &c. These tribes occupied the valley of the Upper Rhone, canton Valais, above the Lake of Geneva.

2. iter per Alpes: the pass of the Great St. Bernard, which reaches the Rhone valley at Martigny (the ancient Octodurus), at the great bend of the river. This was the principal route across the Alps at this period. Hannibal had crossed by the Little St. Bernard, and the pass by Mont Genève was also in use. — magno cum periculo [Et. 296] = but only with great danger. — magnis portoriis, heavy transit-duties. — volebat: Et. 525.

54. 5. hic, ejus, both referring to vicus.— flumine, the Drance.

CHAP. 2. certior: Et. 69. — montes: not the higher ranges, but the lower heights directly upon the valley.

2. id, this, in appos. with ut . . . caperent. — opprimendae, crushing, the usual meaning of this word. — neque eam plenissimam, &c., and that not entirely full, since two cohorts had been detached, &c. The twelfth legion had suffered severely in the battle on the Sambre (Bk. II. Chap. 25). In this place plenissimam does not refer to the normal number of men in a legion, but merely to the actual strength of this legion, including all detachments. — singillatim, in small parties.

3. cum ipsi . . . decurrerent, when they should charge down from the hills upon the valley. The imp. subj. of ind. disc. with cum is here equivalent to the fut. ind. of direct discourse. See note on Chap. 9, “The Conjunction cum,” II. 2. b.
4. accedebat quod = and besides (it was added that). The subject of accedebat is the clause quod ... dolebant, they were angry that their children were taken from them as hostages. — Romanos ... adjungere, obj. of habebant, and in agreement with persuasum (see note on coactum habebat, Bk. I. Chap. 15) : they had persuaded themselves that the Romans were attempting, &c.

THE WINTER CAMP. — The winter camp (castra hiberna), in its general arrangement, resembled the ordinary summer camp. There must have been the same fortifications and streets. However, the convenience and comfort of the men were more regarded than when in the field. In place of tents (tabernacula, pelles) the winter quarters afforded huts, which gave better protection against wind and weather. The arms were doubtless kept in the huts, and the pack animals in sheds. Then, too, more room could be taken than in the field. In the present case, Galba saved labor by appropriating a part of the Gallic buildings without much ceremony; but he proceeded to lay out the usual fortifications (see munitiones, Chap. 31).

Chap. 3. perfectae, referring both to opus and munitiones, but agreeing with the nearer. — satis esset provisum, sufficient provision had been made.

55. consilio, a council of officers. — celeriter: Et. 48.

2. praeter opinionem = unexpectedly. — subsidio veniri = it was impossible that any one should come to their aid: veniri is impersonal, the subject of posset implied in possent.

3. nonnullae sententiae, several opinions (or votes) given by the officers in council.

4. majori ... placuit, it was determined by the majority. — hoc ... defendere, to reserve this course for the extremity, and meanwhile, &c.

Chap. 4. gaesa, Gallic javelins, entirely of iron.

2. integris [Et. 189] viribus (abl. abs.), as long as their strength was unimpaired. — repugnare, mittere, occurrere, ferre, superari, historical infinitives, implying incessant action. — ut ... videbatur, as (= whenever) any part seemed, &c.: a relative clause, of which the antecedent is eo. — occurrere, ran to meet the danger. — alii = while others.
3. non modo . . . sed ne . . . quidem, not only not, but not even, &c.

Chap. 5. cum pugnaretur, when the fight had been [and was still] going on (§ 277. b; G. 225; H. 469. II. 2). — languidioribus nostris (abl. abs.), as our men were less active. — deficerent, began to be exhausted. — vallum . . . complere; the rampart was made for the most part of earth thrown up in digging the ditch, stakes or palisades being planted above (see note on Bk. I. Chap. 49, "The Camp," 3, 9).

56. extremum auxilium = the last resource.

3. intermitterent, hort. subj. following certiores facit in the sense of instructs. — tela . . . exciperent, gather up the spent weapons, spending no strength in throwing them back.

Chap. 6. cognoscendi facultatem, opportunity of finding out. — sui colligendi [Et. 440] = of collecting their wits: observe that sui is plural in meaning (§ 298. a; G. 429. r.; H. 542. r.; X. I. 298. a). It is, however, properly the gen. sing. of suum (§ 99. c; H. p. 71, foot-note 3).

2. circumventos interficiunt = they surround and kill. — ex milibus, for part. gen. after parte.

3. armis, abl. of separation. — exutis, stripped, agreeing with copiis: § 225. d; G. 348; H. 414. r.

4. nolebat: Et. 525. — alio consilio . . . aliis rebus, remembered that he had come with one design, and saw that he had met a different state of things.

Naval Campaign. — The peninsula of Armorica (Bretagne, Brittany, or Little Britain, so called since the emigration from Great Britain to escape the Saxon invasion) has always been the home of the hardiest, most independent, and most strongly characterized of all the Gallic populations. Its scenery is wild and secluded, this character of its coast being clearly given in Cæsar's narrative. Its language remains Celtic to this day. No one of Cæsar's campaigns shows more strikingly his boldness and fertility of resource than this.

Chap. 7. pacatam: Et. 285. — Germanis, i.e. Ariovistus. It will be noticed that the geographical order, and not the order of events, is followed in this summary. Of the Alpine tribes the Seduni are mentioned as the most important. — inita hieme, in the beginning of winter (winter being entered on).

2. mare following proximus with the construction of prope ($\S$ 261. a; G. 356. r. 1; H. 391. 2).

57. Chap. 8. hujus civitatis, i.e. the Veneti, on the southern coast of Brittany, the modern Morbihan. — longe amplissima, very great indeed. — consuerunt, are accustomed ($\S$ 279. d. r.; G. 228. r. 1; H. 297. I. 2). — in magno . . . aperto, in the great and open violence of the sea = on a sea exposed to great and violent storms. — omnes habent vectigales, treat all as tributaries, i.e. levy tolls upon.

3. ut sunt, &c., as in fact the resolutions of the Gauls are, &c.

4. quam acceperant, indic. as a clause of fact ($\S$ 336. b; G. 630. r. 1; H. 524. 2). — quam perferre, than to endure, following the comparative contained in mallent.

5. remittat, subj. expressing a command in ind. disc., depending on the message implied in legationem mittunt. The direct discourse would be "si vis, &c., "*remitte."

Chap. 9. aberat longius, was too far off to take command at once in person.* — naves longas, galleys.

Naves Longae. — The Roman galley was a long, low vessel, armed at the prow with a sharp beam (rostrum) shod with bronze for striking and sinking the enemy, and propelled by one or two sails and a multitude of oars. The seamen (nautae) attended to the steering and managing of the sails, and were freemen. The rowers (remiges) were usually slaves. In the Mediterranean, galleys were commonly provided with two, three, or more tiers of oars, and were accordingly called biremes, triremes, etc. It seems probable, however, that the fleet Caesar had built on the Loire consisted of boats with but one bank of oars, and hence were quite low, and decked over only at the bow and stern. The steering apparatus was a couple of broad-bladed oars near the stern, one on each side. The rudder was unknown to the Romans. The fighting men on these vessels of Caesar were legionaries embarked for the purpose. In fact there was no distinct naval service, as with us. A fleet was simply an army afloat. It was commanded, as we see also on occasion of the expeditions to Britain, by military officers. On the decks were placed tormenta and turres, the latter in readiness to raise by ropes and pulleys attached to the mast.

The Gallic ships, it seems, used sails alone, without oars (see Chap. 14).

Ligere, the Loire, on the banks of which Crassus was wintering. — institui, to be organized, i.e. in gangs for the several galleys. — cum primum: the first moment when (lit. when first); compare quam primum (§ 93. b).

The Conjunction Cum.

In the seven books De Bello Gallico, Caesar uses cum as a conjunction 283 times.

I. In 62 places it is plainly causal (as, since), and in 13, concessive (although), and therefore takes the subjunctive (e.g. Bk. I. Chap. 2. 26. See § 326; G. 587–8; H. 515. III. 517).

II. In the remaining 208 places it is as clearly temporal (when, while, after).

a. 1. In 160 of these it introduces a clause the main use of which is to define the time of a past action, and it is followed by the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive. With the former tense the clause may denote either a point of time or a period, and the conjunction should be translated when or while respectively. With the pluperfect the translation may be when or after (e.g. Bk. II. Chap. 1; Bk. I. Chap. 26. See § 325; G. 586; II. 521. II. 2). The temporal clause usually expresses an event that actually happened; but the subjunctive shows that the writer’s main idea in using the clause is to indicate by it the time of the event expressed by the principal statement.

2. Occasionally the clause with cum and the subjunctive is used to characterize a period of time, some form of tempus being expressed or understood (at a time when, &c.). This construction gives us simply a subjunctive of characteristic (e.g. Bk. I. Chap. 16. See § 320; G. 582. r. 1, 634; H. 521. II. 2. 1); this was without doubt the original meaning of all subjunctives with cum.

b. As the story of the Gallic war is purely narrative, containing few direct quotations, and those the briefest, we naturally find no instances of the use of cum with the future or future perfect indicative. In 13 passages, however, it occurs in the indirect discourse with a subjunctive that takes the place of one or the other of these tenses. In such sentences the temporal clause is equivalent to a protasis (e.g. Bk. I. Chap. 39 b. See § 325. c; G. 584; H. 507. 3).

c. In 33 passages cum takes the indicative with tenses referring to present or past time, and in 2 others, Bk. II. Chap. 4, Bk. VI. Chap. 25, the subjunctive in indirect discourse equivalent to the historical perfect indicative. The mood shows that the writer’s main idea in using the temporal clause is to emphasize the reality of the event expressed by it, and that the temporal relation is of secondary importance. We distinguish several varieties of usage.

1. In 21 sentences the verb in the temporal clause denotes a repeated action. Cum here is equivalent to quotiescumque (whenever, as often as), and the clause is really the protasis of a general conditional sentence (e.g. Bk. I. 1 v. 1v. 331. III. 14 b. See §§ 322, 309. c; G. 568-9, 585; H. 471. 3 and 5; Madvig, 335, Obs. 1. 359).

2. In 8 sentences cum is used as the correlative of tum, in the sense of both . . . and. The indicative of a verb expressed or implied is used in both clauses, unless in indirect discourse (e.g. Bk. V. Chap. 43. See § 326. b; G. 589; H. 521. N.1).

3. In 3 places (Bk. VI. Chap. 71 and Chap. 81, Bk. VII. Chap. 263) the clause with cum is really the main proposition (see Madvig, 358. Obs. 1; § 325. b; G. 581. r.); this is the so-called cum inversum, by which the clause of time with the indicative (as in c above) is made the principal proposition in form. And in one other place (Bk. I. Chap. 40 k) it is really a co-ordinate clause, cum being equivalent to et tum.

4. In the remaining 2 passages (Bk. III. Chap. 9, Bk. VI. Chap. 12) the indicative is used with cum merely to emphasize the reality of a simple past action.

2. in se admisissent, had taken on themselves: admitto alone is the ordinary phrase for commit.— legatos . . . conjectos (the specific act), in appos. with facinus.

58. 3. pedestria itinera, &c., approaches by land were cut off. — inscientiam, i.e. the Romans’ lack of acquaintance. — neque . . . confidebant, and they trusted that our armies could not, &c.

4. ut . . . acciderent (concessive, § 266. c; G. 610; H. 515. III.), granting that everything should turn out contrary to their expectation. — plurimum posse, were strongest. — facultatem, supply. — longe aliam . . . atque, very different . . . from. — concluso, enclosed (like the Mediterranean).
5. Osismos, &c., the coast tribes as far as Flanders. The name Lexovii remains in Lisieux; Namnetes in Nantes; Diablintres in Jablins.

Chap. 10. injuriae retentorum equitum, the wrong done by detaining the knights (§ 292. a; G. 667. r.²; H. 549. 5. n.²). — rebellio, renewal of hostilities (not rebellion). — ne . . . arbitra-rentur: a new rising was threatened by the Belgians, while the maritime tribes, it is said, were already fearful of an attempt upon

Plan VII. Campaign against the Veneti. Bk. III. Chap. 7–16.

The dotted line shows the course of the two fleets from the Loire and the Auray respectively.

Britain. (Observe that this clause is under the same construction as the nominatives injuriae, defectio, &c.)

2. excitari: the present infin. here corresponds to the imperfect of description, excitabantur: while odisse answers to oderunt taken as a present, all men naturally hate. — homines: Et. 157.
Chap. 11. mandat adeat, gives it in charge (manui dare) to advance upon (§ 331. f. R.; G. 547. R.³; H. 499. 2).

59. arcessiti [esse] dicebantur, were reported to have been invited.

2. Aquitaniam, in S. W. Gaul (see Bk. I. Chap. 1⁵). The people were of different race and language from the other Gauls, and took little interest in their affairs, not even joining in the great revolt of Book VII. But Caesar may not have known this (Moberly). — nationes: Et. 112.

3. Unellos, &c., in Normandy.

4. Decimum Brutum, afterwards one of the conspirators against Caesar, with the more celebrated Marcus Brutus. — Pictonibus, Santonis, south of the Loire (Poitou and Saintonge).

Chap. 12. ejus modi . . . ut, of such sort that. — cum . . . incitavisset = at high tide. — aestus, tide: properly the surging movement of boiling water; hence applied both to extreme heat and to ocean-tides. — bis, apparently an error of most Mss. Some editors read xxiv instead of xii; others refer it to the general ignorance or carelessness of ancient writers. — minuente, at the ebb: intransitive, as if from the passive form used as a reflexive, as in case of deponents.

2. utraque re, in either case. — superati, agreeing with the subj. of coeperant. — his (aggere ac molibus) . . . adaequatis, when these were brought level with the walls. — defendebant: Et. 257.

General von Gölter explains the Roman works as follows: A dike was extended along each side of the isthmus in the direction of the town. While these were building, of course with each rise of the tide the space within would be overflowed. When the dikes were nearly completed, the Romans waited until the ebb had carried off the water, and then rapidly pushed their works to completion before the next turn of the tide. Thus the sea was shut out and the isthmus left dry. Meanwhile the dikes themselves, being raised to the height of the walls, served the purpose each of an agger for approach to the town.

3. haec faciebant, this they continued to do. — eo facilius . . . quod, the more easily, that, &c. — vasto mari, &c. (ablative absolute, denoting cause); in each of these points the ocean is contrasted with the sheltered and tideless waters of the Mediterranean.

Chap. 13. ipsorum, their own. — modum: Et. 238. — aliquanto (abl. of degree of difference) planiores, considerably more flat-bottomed. — navium, gen. depending on carinae understood. — quo . . . possent, that they might more easily stand the shallows and the ebb-tide; § 317. b; G. 545. 2; H. 497. 2.

2. admodum erectae, very high. — atque item puppes, and the sterns too: adaccomodatae (being adapted: Et. 338) standing as predicate. — robore, oak timber.

60. contumeliam, buffeting. — transtra, &c., the cross-benches (for the rowers) of timbers a foot thick, fastened with iron bolts the thickness of a [man's] thumb.

3. pelles, hides; alutae, leather. — tanta onera navium, ships of so great weight. — non satis commode, not very well: Cæsar does not like to say that anything is impossible.

4. nostrae classi (dat. of possession), &c., the encounter of our fleet with, &c. — una, only. — praestaret, had the advantage (i.e. our fleet). — pro loci natura, considering the nature of the place.

6. accedebat ut = there was this additional advantage, followed by ferrent, consistenter, and timerent. — se vento dedissent, ran before the wind. The phrase is nautical: hence the noun is repeated. The clause cum . . . dedissent is parenthetical. — consistenter, came to anchor; ab aestu relictae, &c., if left by the tide, had nothing to fear, &c. — casus, the chance of all these things.

Chap. 14. neque . . . posse, that the enemy's retreat could not be prevented by capturing their towns.

2. paratissimae, fully equipped; ornatissimae, thoroughly furnished. The battle was fought in the bay of Quiberon, off the heights of St. Gildas, on which Cæsar was encamped. The fleet of Crassus issued from the Loire and took a northwesterly course. Meanwhile the fleet of the Veneti came out of the Auray estuary, and passing through the Morbihan entrance to the bay, encountered the Romans directly opposite Cæsar's camp. The dotted line in Plan VII. shows the course of the two fleets. — neque satis Bruto . . . constabat, and it was not clear to Brutus (agerent and insisterent refer to Brutus and his officers). — tribunis militum centurionibusque: notice the military officers in command of the fleet.

3. excitatis, lifted up. — ex barbaris navibus, on the part of the enemy's ships (compare Bk. I. Chap. 22, note).

61. 4. magno usui, of great service, in fact turning disaster to victory: but Caesar will not use words that hint a possible defeat. — muralium falcium, wall-hooks, long poles with sickle-shaped hooks attached (like those used by "hook-and-ladder" companies) used to pull down walls (see Fig. 26): it limits formae (understood), dat. after absimili.

5. cum: See note on Chap. 9, "The Conjunction Cum," II. c. 1. — praerumpebantur, they [the halyards] were torn away. (Observe the position of funes in the clause with cum.)

7. paulo fortius factum, one of Caesar's mild expressions for an act of remarkable daring.

Chap. 15. cum: see note on Chap. 14. — singulas, &c., two or three ships about each one (of the enemy's). — contendebant, made repeated efforts: compare with contenderunt below, describing a single act.

2. expugnatis ... navibus, when many of their ships had been captured.

3. conversis ... navibus, i.e. steered so as to run before the wind. — malacia, calm (a Greek word).

The prevailing winds at present towards the end of summer in this quarter are from the east or north-east, — the precise winds needed for the two fleets to have met as indicated above. Further, when these winds have blown during the morning, it usually falls calm at noon. This is just what happened on the day of the battle. The calm was probably just after midday.

4. pervenerint, came to land: pervenirent would be equally correct, and is found in some copies; but the perfect conveys more distinctly the act of landing. — hora quarta, about 10 A.M.

Chap. 16. cum ... tum, while ... at the same time. The phrase is similar to a very frequent Greek construction (μὲν ... δὲ).
—convenerant, coegerant, i.e. for this war. — quod ubique, all there were anywhere, followed by the partitive gen. navium.

2. quo, i.e. [any refuge] whither; quem ad modum (often written as one word), how.

62. 3. eo . . . quo, the more severe, &c., in order that. — vindicandum (impersonal), punishment should be inflicted. — omni senatu necato, an instance of Cæsar’s clementia. — sub corona vendidit, sold [as slaves] at public auction: lit. under the wreath, since the captives "were crowned like an animal for sacrifice."

"This can hardly mean that Cæsar sold the whole nation by auction. The mention of the Senate makes its probable that the inhabitants of the capital Dariorigum [Vannes] are meant. Even so the rigor is terrible; and the more so, as regards the Senate, from the grim alternative which the next chapter suggests [of being massacred by their own people, Chap. 17?] as the only one open to these unfortunate rulers" (Moberly).

"He has not said, as he does on another occasion (Bk. II. Chap. 33), how many were sold, but we may infer that he depopulated the country of the Veneti at least; and it appears from a later book (Bk. VII. Chap. 75) that all the Armoric states must have been greatly reduced by this unfortunate war. The only naval power in Gallia that could be formidable to the Romans was totally destroyed, and neither the Veneti nor their allies gave the proconsul any more trouble" (Long).

Chap. 17. Unellorum, along the Channel coast of Normandy. Another form of the name is Venelli. — magnas copias, considerable forces (not supplies, as these fell short, see Chap. 18i), most likely meaning here irregular troops (perditorum hominum, see next section) as opposed to exercitum.

2. his paucis diebus, i.e. about the same time. — perditorum, desperate: it was now the third year of constant war in Gaul.

3. carperetur, was carped at, his reputation "picked to pieces."

4. eo absente, i.e. Cæsar. A legatus regularly had no imperium, or independent command, but served under that of his superior. — opportunitate, a favorable chance (opportunus).

Chap. 18. edocet, instructs.

2. pro perfuga, in the character of a deserter. — neque longius esse quin = not later than, i.e. the time was not farther off.
Notes: Cæsar.

63. 4. superiorum dierum, on the previous days. — confirmation, positive assertion. — parum diligentem, i.e. (in Cæsar's style) with too little diligence. — spes... belli (subjective genitive denoting the source) = hope founded on, &c. — fere... credunt = most men are glad to believe, &c.

5. non prius, ... quam, not ... until.

6. ut... victoria (abl. abs.) = as if victory were already assured. — sarmentis, sprouts; virgultis, brushwood.

Chap. 19. paulatim adclivis, gently rising. — magno cursu, on a full run. — que, and (consequently).

4. quos: the antecedent is eorum. — reliquos paucos, few of the remainder (§ 216. e; G. 368. R.2; H. 440. 2. n.2). — ac = but.

Southern Gaul. — The campaign in Aquitania was made merely for strategic reasons, was not provoked by any attack or threat of one, and appears to have been quite unnecessary (see note, Chap. II2) as well as difficult and dangerous. The Aquitani were not closely allied with the Gauls, took no share in their wars, and were at a secure distance. They had no strong military league or combination, but consisted of small isolated clans, and were besides of more industrial habit, being good miners and engineers. As a mere narrative, however, this is an interesting episode of the war.

64. Chap. 20. ex tertia parte (an idiomatic phrase) = as a third part, a greatly exaggerated reckoning. Many of Cæsar's geographical statements (e.g. the account of Britain, Bk. V. Chap. 13) are extremely ignorant or careless. — armis: Et. 333.

Praeconinus, Mallius: these defeats were 20 years before (B.C. 78), when the Aquitani united with the Marian leader Sertorius, who held Spain for six years against Rome.

2. Tolosa et Narbone (early editions add Carcassone): Tolosa was an old Gallic town; Narbo, a Roman colony established by the policy of Caius Gracchus, B.C. 118. It became the capital of the Roman province, to which it gave its name. — Sontiatum, south of the Garonne, S.E. of the modern Bordeaux: the name remains in the modern Sôs.

3. ostenderunt, showed.

Chap. 21. diu: Et. 224. — superioribus victoriis, i.e. those just related. — sine imperatore adulescentulo duce: an impera-tor is the chief commander of an army, holding the imperium, or power of military command conferred on him by regular formalities; dux is a general designation for any person holding a command, and might be given to a subordinate officer, like Crassus, who acted as an agent and under the imperium of his superiors. — perspici: the subj. is the indirect question quid . . . possent. — vertère, histor. infin. The perfect form in ère is very rare in early prose.

2. vineas turreisque egit: see note on Bk. II. Chap. 11, "The Siege."

3. cuniculis, mines, so called from their likeness to rabbits' burrows. The mine was intended to run under the Roman agger. The roof was carefully propped up with wooden posts, and these being finally set on fire, when they were burned through the entire mass of Roman works would fall into the pit. — aerariae secturaeque (hendiadys: see A. & G. p. 298; G. 695; H. 636. III. 2), copper mines. [The † indicates a corrupt or doubtful reading. Some editions omit the -que, and others have structurae, works.] — diligentia, through the watchfulness. The Romans doubtless met the attack with countermines. — faciunt, they do [it].

65. Chap. 22. soldurios, paid retainers ("soldiers"), from the root sold. It is related that these soldurii "were dressed in royal garments like their chief."

2. condicio: the same condition was found among the Germans (Bk. VI. Chap. 23), and was the foundation of feudal vassalage. — mortem: Et. 393.

3. cum his (repeated from cum devotis), with these (I say).

Chap. 23. Vocatium, &c., further west. — quibus, within which. — quoque versum, in every direction (quoque, the adverb of place formed from the distributive quisque; versum, the adverb of direction usually connected with prepositions, as ad . . . versum). It is often written quoquoversum.

2. Hispaniae: these Iberian populations were allied to the Aquitani (Bk. I. Chap. 18). Spain had been subject to Rome for more than 150 years, but was always rather mutinous, and had made several attempts at independence, especially under Sertorius (see note, Chap. 20). It was also the last stronghold of Pom-pey's party in the civil war, till finally subdued at Munda, B.C. 45.
— auctoritate, prestige.
3. omnes annos, i.e. B.C. 78-72. — consuetudine pop. Rom.: a custom which they had learned in the service with Sertorius. — loca capere, to occupy positions, &c., i.e. make systematic preparations for war. — instituunt, begin.
4. suas . . . augeri, &c. These infinitive clauses are in apposition with quod. — diduci, be scattered in various directions. — minus commode, less conveniently.

66. Chap. 24. duplici, i.e. two cohorts in depth. His numbers were too few to allow greater depth. — auxiliis: Et. 138. — in medium aciem, to the centre of his line, where they would be kept in hand by his legionaries (see Chap. 25'). — exspectabat, waited [to see] what, &c.
2. obsessis viis . . . potiri, in English, to block the roads, cut off supplies, and win the victory without a wound. — sese recipere, to withdraw from Aquitania. — in agmine, on the march. — infirmiore animo (abl. of quality) = dispirited, an adjective phrase in the same construction with impeditos (§ 179; G. 402; H. 419. II.). — adoriri cogitabant, had in mind to attack. — productis copiis, concessive (= although, &c.).
3. sua, their own. — opinione timoris, the notion [they had given] of their own cowardice. — expectari . . . iretur, depending on some word of saying implied in voces. — ad hostium castra: this is the only instance in the Commentaries of an attack by Romans on a fortified Gallic camp. — omnibus cupientibus = to the eager desire of them all.

Chap. 25. opinionem pugnantium, i.e. an impression as if actually engaged.
2. ab decumana porta, i.e. in the rear, where this gate was situated (see note on Bk. I. Chap. 49, "The Camp"): the Gauls appear to have adopted the Roman mode of constructing camps.

Chap. 26. 2. intritae, unworn. [Observe that while in the compound verb the preposition in has an intensive force (intero, to crumble), in the compound adjective it has a negative force. Many words have thus two exactly opposite meanings: as infractus, (participle) broken up, (adjective) unbroken.]
67. prius quam: this phrase is often used with the indicative to show that one actual fact precedes another, just as succession is denoted by post quam. Here the subjunctive subordinates the temporal clause to the main idea, just as with cum (§§ 325, 327; G. 579; H. 520).

5. apertissimis campis, i.e. the broad, treeless plains which abound in this part of the country. — consectatus (intensive from sequor), overtaking in hot chase. — Cantabris, a very hardy people of the western Pyrenees. — multa nocte, late at night (abl. of time).

Chap. 27. dedit: Et. 225. — Tarbelli, &c.: some of the names will be recognized in the modern Tarbes, Bigorre, Garonne. — ultimae, remotest.

Chap. 28. exacta: Et. 104. — omni pacata, while all the rest of Gaul was subdued. — Morini, &c., on the islands and low coasts of Flanders and further north. The Celtic mor signifies sea. — alia ac, different from.

2. continentes, continuous = far-stretching.

4. longius, too far (farther than was safe).

68. Chap. 29. deinceps, i.e. in the days next following. — caedere: Et. 244. — conversam, fronting, i.e. with the boughs turned towards the enemy. — pro vallo, as a palisade.

2. tenerentur, were just getting within reach. — ejusmodi uti . . . intermitteretur, such that the work was constantly interrupted (broken off would have been intermissum sit). — sub pellibus: the tents were of leather.

3. Aulercis, &c., along the Seine, near Evreux and Lisieux. — proxime, last.

The Legions. — In the campaign of the year 56 B.C., Cæsar had the same eight legions as in the year before. During the operations against the Veneti, the twelfth legion was with Galba, among the Allobroges (Chap. 64); Sabinus had three legions in Normandy (Chap. 113); Crassus had twelve legionary cohorts (not comprising any one entire legion, but being detailed from different legions) in Aquitania (Chap. 113); while the rest of the army, twenty-eight cohorts (i.e. four legions, less the twelve cohorts detached under Sabinus), were engaged with Cæsar.
Book Fourth. — B.C. 55.

Passage of the Rhine. — The year B.C. 55 appears to have been marked by a general movement in the migration of the German tribes. An advance, consisting of the two populations Usipetes and Tencteri, crowded forward by the more powerful Suevi, crossed the lower Rhine into northern Gaul. Cæsar assumed the defence of the country he had just conquered, drove them back across the Rhine, followed them up by an expedition into their own territories, and fully established the supremacy of the Roman arms. Another brief campaign in Germany two years later confirmed this success, and the Rhine became the military frontier, recognized for many centuries, between the Roman empire and the barbarian world. In the common opinion of France it is to this day the natural boundary, established, as it were, in perpetuity by the arms of Julius Cæsar.

Page 69. Pompeio, Crasso (the year 55 B.C.): the coalition between Cæsar, Pompey and Crassus, sometimes called the First Triumvirate, had been formed five years before. In carrying out the scheme, Cæsar held the government of Gaul, while the others took into their own hands this year the whole control of affairs at home (see Introd., "Life of Cæsar"). — Usipetes, Tencteri, from beyond the Rhine, a little below Cologne.

2. Suevis: this people (the modern Swabians) occupied the greater part of central Germany, and was made up of several independent tribes. The name is held to mean wanderers. — premebantur, had been crowded (§ 277. b; G. 225; H. 469. II. 2).

3. centum pagos (see Bk. I. Chap. 12): there is probably some confusion here with the ancient German institution of the Hundred, a division of the population giving its name to a district of territory. Each hundred seems to have sent 1000 men (singula milia) to the army. The term early lost its numerical value, and became a mere local designation. — manserunt: Et. 358.

4. alunt: Et. 426. — anno post, the year after. — in vicem (invicem), in turn. — ratio, theoretical knowledge, i.e. theory; usus, knowledge derived from experience, i.e. practice.
IV. 1, 2.]

Passage of the Rhine.

70. 5. sed: i.e. they attended to agriculture systematically, but, &c. — privati ... agri, i.e. the land was held in tribal communities,—a state of things almost universal among primitive nations. (But see Introduction, near the end.) — lougius anno: i.e. the community had no fixed possessions, but was transferred yearly from one tract to another, its place being taken by another community. As is shown in Bk. VI. Chap. 22, the community was composed of persons kindred by birth. The annual shifting of occupancy would prevent at once forming local attachments, building up large properties, and too rapidly exhausting the soil.

6. frumento, &c.: they were still in a half-nomadic state, though with some little advance in agriculture (compare Bk. VI. Chap. 22, and Tac. Ger. 26). — maximam partem (adv. acc.), for the most part. — quom (some copies read quod) . . . faciant; this clause is a parenthesis: since, having been trained from childhood to no service or discipline, they do nothing whatever against their will, — a lively contrast of barbarous manners with the severity of Roman family discipline. — alit, the subj. is quae res. — homines (pred.) efficit, makes [them] men, &c.

7. eam, correl. with ut. — locis (abl. abs., concessive) frigidis- simis = even in their extreme climate. — haberent, have; lavarentur, bathe (imperf. by sequence of tenses following adduxerunt: § 287. a; G. 511. r.²; H. 495. 1).

Chap. 2. eo, ut ... habeant, so (on this account) that they may have [some one] to whom, &c. — quam quo ... desiderent, than that they want, &c. (For the use of quo with the implied negative, see § 341. r.; G. 541. r.¹; H. 516. 2.)

3. eodem vestigio, on the same spot (footprint). — cum usus est, when there is need. See note on Book III. Chap. 9, "The Conjunction cum," II. c. 1. — ephippiis (a Greek word), housings, or horse blankets (see Fig. 6). There is no evidence of the use of actual saddles until the fourth century A.D.

4. quamvis pauci, however few. — importari: Et. 313.
Chap. 3. publice, i.e. to them as a community.—a sui finibus, on (back from) their boundaries.—una ... Suevis, extending from [the territory of] the Suevi in one direction.—agri, the region (nom. pl.).

71. 2. partem: Et. 313.—Ubii, along the Rhine, opposite Cologne.—captus, capacity, hence character.—paulo ... humaniores (omit the words in brackets), somewhat more civilized than the others of that race (Germans).

3. gravitatem, importance, referring to the warlike character and extensive resources of the people; while amplitudinem refers to their great numbers.—humiliores (pred.), sc. so as to be.

Chap. 4. in eadem causa, in the same case.—ad extremum, at length.

2. quas partes: North Brabant, with the north bank of the Rhine.—ad utramque ripam, along both banks.

3. vi contendere = to force a passage.—simulaverunt: Et. 377.

4. priusquam ... fieret, § 327; G. 579; H. 529.—eorum copiis, on their supplies (cattle and grain).

Chap. 5. infirmitatem, weakness of purpose = fickleness.—mobiles: Et. 379.—nihil ... committendum, no confidence should be placed in them. Observe that committendum (esse) is impersonal, while nihil is an adverbial accusative.

72. 2. est ... consuetudinis, it is [a point] of Gallic custom (§ 214. d; G. 365. r.1; H. 401).—vulgus circumsistat ... cogant, a crowd surrounds the traders, and compel, &c. With the former verb, the crowd is taken as a whole; with the second (in the plural), the inquisitive questioners are thought of.

3. rebus atque auditionibus, facts and hearsays.—in vestigio, on the spot, i.e. presently (sur-le-champ).—incertis: Et. 69.—serviant = are slaves to.—plerique, the travellers; eorum, the questioners.

Chap. 6. graviori bello, too serious a war (i.e. unmanageable).—maturius, earlier in the season.—ad exercitum: the army was now in Normandy (Bk. III. Chap. 29).
IV. 3-9.] Passage of the Rhine. 141

2. uti ... discederent, to withdraw from the Rhine further into Gaul. The Belgæ, it will be remembered, claimed kindred with the Germans, and were no doubt ready to retaliate their bloody defeat on the Romans. — postulassent, §§ 281, 316, 336; G. 236, 510; H. 525. 2.—fore parata, should be made ready (the regular fut. infin. passive, depending on some such word as promiserunt, implied in invitatos).

3. Eburonum, &c.: German tribes (see Bk. II. Chap. 9). —clientes: Et. 58.

4. quae cognoverat, the facts he had learned (the subj. cognovisset would make it an indir. question; and ea would then be out of place, as quae would be interrogative. Again, the subjunctive of characteristic is not used, as the facts to which ea refers have just been mentioned, in sections 2 and 3). —permulsis, calmed from their terror (lit. soothed by stroking, like a nervous horse).

Chap. 7. equitibus delectis: the quota of cavalry was required from each of the allied states.

2. a quibus refers to locis. —priores, first, or, as aggressors (compare the language of Ariovistus, Bk. I. Chap. 36). —neque recusare quin, they do not decline. —quicumque: the antecedent is eis (dat.) implied with resistere. —neque deprecari, and ask no quarter (lit. and not beg off).

3. haec tamen dicere, this however they did say [said they]. —iis, to the Romans. —adtribuant, subj. in ind. disc. for imperative of the direct. —eos, sc. agros. —concedere, yield, as inferior.

73. Chap. 8. quae visum est, as it seemed good (see Bk. I. Chap. 14. 43). —verum, reasonable.

2. injuria, injustice. —Ubiorum, see Chap. 32. —quorum sint, &c., whose envoys (he informs them) are now with him to complain, &c.

Chap. 9. post diem tertium (=tertio die), i.e. the next day but one. (The first and last day are usually counted in the Roman reckoning: so in French en huit jours = in a week.) —id, the two days' delay (ne ... moveret).
2. trans, i.e. westwardly. — exspectari, translate as active, they were waiting for.

Chap. 10. profluit: Et. 345. — Vosego, the Vosges: in fact, "from the plateau of Langres, the cradle of French rivers."— parte . . . recepta: the Rhine branches in these low, marshy regions, one branch (Vacalus, the modern Waal), uniting with the Meuse near Boîs-le-duc (see note, Chap. 15).

2. oritur: Et. 414. — Nantuatium: compare Bk. III. Chap. 1, where they are placed upon the Rhone, just above Lake Geneva; this was perhaps a branch, or kindred tribe. This list of names is incomplete. — citatus, with rapid course. — feris . . . nationibus: see the introduction to Motley's "Dutch Republic." — capitibus, mouths (usually sources).

Chap. 11. ut erat constitutum, as had been arranged (the return of the envoys). Either this is a careless expression, or Cæsar's consent is omitted in Chap. 9. It is there stated merely that they said they would return.

74. 2. eos (anteced. to qui), the cavalry who, &c. — potes-tatem faceret, would give authority. — condicione . . . usuros, would keep the terms offered by Cæsar.*

3. eodem illo pertinere, tended the same way (to the same point) (see Chap. 9), i.e. to gain time till the German cavalry should arrive. — aquationis causa: a small stream (the Niers) lay between him and the German encampment.

Chap. 12. ubi primum . . . conspexerunt, as soon as they came in sight. — amplius octingentos, more than 800 (§ 247. c; G. 311. R. 4; H. 417. 1. N. 2). Tacitus (Germ. 32) says that this tribe was distinguished for cavalry. — perturbaverunt, threw into disorder.*

2. resistentibus, sc. nostris. — subfossis, stabbed in the belly. — ita perterritos, so panic-stricken.

3. regnum obtinuerat, had held supreme power. — intercluso: Et. 56.

75. Chap. 13. neque jam, no longer*: knowing how little his own cavalry (of Gauls) were to be trusted, and that the arrival of... the main body of the Germans would put them at once to flight, Caeser resolved to attack at the first opportunity, right or wrong.—ab iis qui, from men who, &c. — insidias: Et. 234.
2. quantum auctoritatis, how great prestige the enemy had gained by one battle.—quibus, i.e. the enemy.
3. quaestore, see Bk. I. Chap. 521.—res, in apposition with quod ... venerunt.—mâne: Et. 386.—eadem perfidia: their perfidy Caesar takes for granted, as the best apology for his own; but the presence of the chiefs and old men looks more as if they came (as they said) to offer amends for the attack of the day before.
4. sui purgandi: § 298. a; G. 429. R.1; H. 542. 1. n.—contra atque, contrary to what.—si quid ... de indutiis = whatever (if anything) they could in the way of truce (de with the abl. is nearly the same as the part. gen.).—fallendo, i.e. by another trick.
5. quos, illos, both refer to the same subject.—quos oblatos gavisus, delighted that they were put in his power. By detaining their chief men, he would at once perplex and disable them.—subsequi, to follow in the rear; he could not trust them in the intended attack.

Chap. 14. acie triplici: this was a march in line of battle (see Fig. 33). — quid ageretur, what was going on.
2. ne ... an ... an (§ 211; G. 460; H. 353): the three infinitives all belong to praestaret (Et. 175), whether it were better.
4. quo loco = in this place.

76. reliqua multitudo: the presence of women and children shows that it was a migration for settlement, not a mere inroad for plunder.—ad quos consectandos (frequent. of sequor), to hunt them down, a fit business for the cowardly and treacherous Gallic horse. Referring to this massacre of helpless fugitives, Plutarch writes that, "when the Senate was voting public thanksgiving and processions on account of the victory, Cato proposed that Caeser should be given up to the barbarians to expiate that breach of faith, that the divine vengeance might fall upon its author rather than upon Rome" (Life of Caeser).
Notes: Caesar.

Chap. 15. Germani, i.e. those who were fighting; clamore (Et. 28), i.e. of those who were being massacred. — reliqua fuga, further flight.

The reasons are very strong against placing this action in the low lands at the confluence of the Rhine and Meuse (Mosa); among them the great distance, more than 120 miles, from the place where Cæsar actually crossed the Rhine. It will make the whole narrative much clearer, to regard this (with Groller) as the confluence of the Rhine and Mosella (Moselle) at Coblenz, the ancient Confluentes. In this view the text has been confused by the likeness of the names, while Chap. 10 appears to be a note added perhaps by some geographer.

2. ex . . . timore = relieved from [the apprehension of] so great a war.

3. discedendi potestatem, permission to depart. By this permission Cæsar practically acquires them of the charge of treachery (compare his dealings with the Veneti, Bk. III. Chap. 16). The attack and massacre were purely for "moral effect." — supplicia = vengeance.

Chap. 16. illa, the following. — justissima, most reasonable. — suis . . . intellegere, he wished them to fear for their own affairs also, since they would understand, &c. (cum intellegere is here nearly equivalent to a participle).

2. accessit quod = and besides. — quam . . . transisse, which, as I mentioned above (the conjunction that of indirect discourse cannot be used in English to introduce a relative clause). Observe that Cæsar the writer uses the first person (commemoravi); Cæsar the actor is always in the third. — Sugambrorum, just north of the Ubii.

3. qui postularent . . . dederent, to require them to surrender those who, &c. (observe the omission of ut: § 331. f. r.; G. 546. r.3; H. 499. 2). — finire, was the limit of (see introd. note, Bk. IV.). — se invito, without his own consent. — sui imperii (pred. after esse), under his power.

4. occupationibus reipublicae, by the demands of state affairs.

5. opinionem, reputation. — navium, boats.
Chap. 17. neque . . . esse, it did not belong to his dignity, &c.

2. latitudinem, &c. Cæsar’s passage of the Rhine was most probably at Bonn, where the high and rocky banks begin; or at Neuwied, 20 or 25 miles further south, where there is a break in the chain of hills (but here, it is said, the bottom is rock, and not fit for driving piles). The width of the river at either place is about 1400 feet; its depth is very variable. It is now crossed in these parts by floating bridges of boats.

3. rationem, plan. The brief description which Cæsar gives of his rough and ready but very serviceable engineering may be made clearer by giving its different points as follows (see Fig. 38):

1. A pair of unhewn logs, a foot and a half thick (tigna bina sesquipedalia), braced two feet apart, and sharpened at the end, are driven with rammers (fistucis) into the bottom, sloping a little with the stream (1).

2. A similar pair is driven in opposite, 40 feet below, sloping a little against the stream (1): the upper ends of the two pairs would thus be some 25 or 30 feet apart, the width of the roadway. Küstow thinks that the 40 feet refer to the top and not to the bottom of the piles.

3. A beam of square timber, two feet thick (trabs bipedalis), and about 30 feet long, is made fast at the ends by ties (fibulis) between the logs of each pair,—which are thus kept at a proper distance apart, while they are strongly braced against the current (5).

4. A suitable number (probably about 60) of these trestles, or timber-arches, having been built and connected by cross-ties,—this part of the structure must be taken for granted,—planks are then laid lengthwise of the bridge (directa materia), resting on the heavy floor-timbers; and upon these, again, saplings and twigs (longurii, crates) are spread, to prevent the jar and wear of the carts and hoofs of the pack-animals on the flooring (6).

5. Piles (sublices) are then driven in below, resting obliquely against the logs, to which they serve as shores or buttresses (pro ariete), and other heavier piles a little way above, to break the force of floating logs or boats sent down to destroy the bridge (7).

tigna, probably unhewn logs. — bina, two and two, i.e. in pairs.

lowered into the river by machines (boats fastened together in pairs).—sublicae modo, like a pile.—fastigate, sloping (like the rafters of a house).—ut . . . procumberent, so as to fall forward with the current.—ab inferiore parte, down stream.

5. haec utraque . . . distinebantur, these two sets (or pairs) were held apart by two-foot timbers laid on above, [in thickness] equal to the interval left by the fastening of the beams (quantum . . . distabat), with a pair of ties at each end. — quibus [tignis] . . . revinctis, which being held apart, and made fast again at the opposite end, i.e. the beams held them apart, while the ties kept them from falling asunder.

78. artius (= arctius), more closely.

6. haec . . . contexebantur, these (the framework of timber) were covered with boards lengthwise.—sublicae . . . agebantur, piles (or shores) were driven slanting on the lower side, so as to prop the bridge against the current.—pro ariete, as a buttress (abutting).

7. aliae item, other piles a little way above, to serve as a breakwater. There is nothing in the text to show whether these were attached to the bridge or not. Colonel von Cohausen, a Prussian engineer officer, who has made a careful technical study of this structure, thinks that they were, and that mediocri spatio refers to the bottom of the river.—deiciendi operis, genitive of quality expressing purpose (§ 298. R.; G. 429. R.²; H. 544. N.², last example), to throw down the work.—his defensoribus, by these defences.—neu . . . nocerent, and that they (trunci, &c.) might not harm the bridge.

Chap. 18. diebus decem (Et. 8), within ten days.—traducitur, the histor. present, resumed from 161.

3. hortantibus iis, &c., the few who had escaped the massacre of Chap. 15, and had taken refuge across the Rhine.

Chap. 19. succisis, cut down to the ground.

2. uti . . . convenièrent, clause of purpose (§ 331. a; G. 546. R.; H. 499) following the verbal phrase nuntios . . . dimississe. — omnes, sc. ut.—hunc, &c., this (the place of meeting) had been selected in the midst, &c.: medium, agreeing directly with hunc
79. ulcisceretur, chastise. — rescidit, broke up.

The Landing in Britain. — What is called the First Invasion of Britain, though it marks an interesting date in history, and gave fresh stimulus to Roman curiosity and ambition, was in itself an affair of small account. It was, in fact, only meant for a reconnoissance, or, perhaps, as opening the way to further schemes. Towards the end of summer, Caesar sailed across to the white cliffs of Dover, coasted a few miles towards the west, and established a camp on the British coast. His cavalry, meanwhile, had been weatherbound in their transports, and then, after crossing, were driven back by rough winds without even coming to land. After holding an uneasy and perilous position for about three weeks, he returned to Gaul, without accomplishing anything beyond a barren display of hardihood.

Chap. 20. exiguā . . . reliquā, when but little of the summer was left: ablative absolute (or it might be construed as simple loc. abl., in the brief remainder of the summer; illustrating the development of the one construction from the other). — etsi . . . tamen . . . contendit, though the winters are early, yet he made haste to set out, &c. — ad septentriones vergit, lies near the seven stars (the north).

2. omnibus bellis (loc. abl.), in almost all, &c. — hostibus, dat. after sumministrata, furnished to the enemy. — si . . . tamen, even if time should fail, still, &c. — magno usui, dat. of service. — fore: the subject is the clause si . . . cognovisset, he thought it would be of great advantage if, &c.; the pluperfect adisset, &c., representing the future perf. adierit, following arbitrabatur. [Observe in this sentence, that while Caesar's action is given in the perfect (contentit), his reasons are in the imperfect (intellegebat, arbitrabatur); while the conditional clauses si deficeret, si adisset, are strictly future conditions carried into the past by the sequence of tenses, § 307. f; G. 598. R.3; H. 509. N.3]. — quae omnia, all of which (§ 216. e; G. 368. R.3). — Gallis incognita. i.e. except to the secluded and jealous Veneti (Bk. III. Chap. 8).
3. neque enim (neg. of etenim, § 156. d; G. 500. r.3), to be rendered with quisquam, for no one.—temere, without good reason.—neque quicquam = and nothing.—iis, dat. after notum (§ 232. a; G. 352; H. 388. i).—Gallias, i.e. Celtic and Belgic Gaul.

4. vocatis mercatoribus, &c. = he called the traders, but could not, &c.—quem usum = what degree of skill.—quanta . . . portus [Et. 296]: these indir. questions follow reperire poterat. Notice that the imperfect poterat is used rather than potuit; calling attention to his repeated questions to the different traders.

Chap. 21. periculum faceret, making the trial.—idoneum, a fit person.—navi longa, see Bk. III. Chap. 91. —quam primum, as soon as possible.

2. Morinos, occupying the nearest point to Britain: in clear weather the British coast is in sight from these shores.—quam classem, the fleet which (§ 200. b; G. 618; H. 445. 9).—qui polliceantur, to promise (§ 317; G. 544; H. 497), followed by dare as complem. finit. (§ 330. f; G. 527. r.3; H. 537. n.), a rare use for se daturos [esse].

80. 4. ut permanerent, to remain, object-clause after hortatus. —Atebatibus superatis (see Bk. II. Chap. 23): the same people, it is said, occupied Berkshire in England, whence the supposed influence of Commius.—ibi, i.e. among the Atrebates (§ 207. a; G. 613. r.1; H. 304. III. 2).—magi, gen. of indefinite value (§ 215. c; G. 399; H. 404), of great account.

5. huic, indir. obj. of imperat; the dir. obj. is the whole clause, down to nuntiet.—fidem sequantur, i.e. accept the protection of, or submit to.—seque . . . nuntiet, and tell them that he is coming.

6. quantum (sc. tantum) . . . auderet, so far as opportunity could be given to one who did not venture, &c. (a bit of irony).—perspexisset, had investigated: for sequence of tenses, see § 287. e; G. 511. r.1; H. 495. II.

Chap. 22. superioris temporis, of the season before (see Bk. III. Chap. 28).—hominis barbari = being (as they were) barbarians.
2. satis opportune, seasonably enough.—has... anteponendas, that occupation about such little matters should be put before [the invasion of] Britain.

3. coactis, gathered from various quarters; contractis, brought together into port (at Boulogne, or possibly a few miles farther north, at Wissant).—duas legiones, the seventh and tenth.—quod... habebat, all the galleys he had besides.—ex eo loco, &c., eight miles from there, at the port of Ambleteuse.—tenebantur quo minus, were detained from.—equites, cavalry, of whom there were 450.

81. Chap. 23. idoneam tempestatem, favorable weather.—tertia vigilia, at midnight. The date was August 26, high water being about half past seven P.M.; the ships, therefore, would go out at about half-tide.—nactus: Et. 354.—solvit, loosed or cast-off the ships: used like our phrase weighed anchor.—equites: these were to embark at Ambleteuse, as above.

2. paulo tardius: they sailed after a delay of three days (Chap. 28).—hora quarta, about half past eight A.M., about an hour after high-tide. The landing was near Dover, where he lay at anchor till half past three.

3. montibus angustis, i.e. cliffs coming close to the shore.

4. dum... convenirent, until the other ships should come up (§ 328; G. 574; H. 519).

5. ut... postularent, as military science and especially seaman-ship require; relat. clause following monuit... administrarentur, enjoined that everything should be done promptly.—ut quae... haberent (§ 320. e; G. 637; H. 517. 3. 1), since they have, &c.

6. his dimissis, when they were sent to their posts (observe the dispersive effect of di-).—aestum secundum: the tide in this place would run west until about half past six.—ancoris: Et. 1.—aperto... litore: "at Lymne in Romney marsh, where the cliffs are far back from the beach, and there is a fine shingle."

Chap. 24. essedariis: the essedum was a two-wheeled war-chariot.—quo genere, i.e. both horses and chariots, making a sort of flying artillery.—copiis, abl. of accompaniment (§ 248. a; G. 391; H. 419. 1).—egrèdi, infin. for ne or quominus with subj.
2. nisi in alto, except in deep water. — militibus (dat. after desiliendum), the men had to leap down. — oppressis (taken with militibus), weighted as they were. — simul: Et. 377. — cum ... conicerent, while they (the Britons), &c. — arido, dry ground. — insuefactos, trained to it, i.e. to charge to the water's edge.

3. generis (gen. after imperiti, § 218. a; G. 373; H. 399): wholly unskilled in this sort of fighting.

82. pedestribus, on land, where the main strength lay with infantry.— uti, employ or exhibit.

Chap. 25. naves (obj. of jussit, and subj. of removeri: see § 240. f. note; G. 532; H. 534), ordered the vessels to be set back. — species, appearance. — insusitation, quite strange. — latus apertum, the exposed flank, i.e. the right, unprotected by their shields. — quae res, this manœuvre.

2. permoti, startled. — ac = atque, and besides. — paulum modo, just a little.

3. qui ferebat, the one who carried: the antecedent of qui is is, the understood subj. of inquit. — contestatus, appealing to. — legioni, dat. of reference.

4. prodere: Et. 225. — ego certe ... praestitero, I at any rate shall have done, &c. (see § 281. R; G. 236; H. 473).

5. inter se, one another (§ 196. f; G. 212; H. 448. N.). — universi, in a body. — ex proximis [primis] navibus, from the nearest ships (those in the front line). — adpropinquarunt: the subject is, [those] from, &c.

Chap. 26. pugnatum est = they fought (§ 146. c; G. 199. R.1; H. 301. 1). — ab utrisque, strictly, by those on both sides. — poterant ... submittebat: notice the numerous imperfects of this description, implying repeated or continuous action. — alius alia ex navi = from different ships (§ 203. c; G. 306; H. 461. 3). — quibus-cumque signis, dat. after occurrebat; the antecedent noun and pronoun (eis signis), if expressed, would be dat. after adgregabant. The clause from quod to adgregabant is a parenthesis.

2. singulares, in scattered groups. — adorietur [Et. 414], would attack. — ab latere aperto (see Chap. 251), on the exposed flank of the Romans. — in universos, upon the mass.
3. speculatoria navigia, swift, light boats for reconnoissance. Vegetius says that these were painted of a greenish-blue color, to escape notice. The sails and rigging, and even the dress of those on board, were of the same color.

4. simul [atque], as soon as.

83. quod equites, &c.; they were windbound at Ambleteuse (Chap. 22¹). — hoc unum...defuit: “in fact, a tide of disasters was now setting in to continue several years.”

2. oratoris modo, in the character of envoy (or spokesman). — ut [sibi] ignosceretur, that [this thing] might be pardoned: ignoscere [Et. 120] takes a direct object of the thing, with an indirect object of the person (§ 225. c).

3. bellum...intulissent: these barbarous people might well be pardoned for mistaking Caesar’s expedition as an invasion! — ignoscere: for the omission of the subject, see § 336. a; G. 527. R.² — arcessitam = when they should be fetched.

4. remigrare, to move back.

Chap. 28. confirmata: Et. 261. — post diem quartum, i.e. three days after. — naves, &c., see Chap. 22¹.

2. aliae...aliae, some...others. — sui (obj. gen. with periculolum), to themselves. — occasum, west. — cum...complerentur, since they were filling as they lay at anchor. — adversa nocte, in the face of the night.

Chap. 29. eadem nocte: this was the night of August 30; the moon was full at 3 A.M.

84. aestus maximos, spring tides. The ocean tides, rising here between 20 and 30 feet, were a strange phenomenon to those who had known only the tideless waters of the Mediterranean (compare Bk. III. Chap. 8¹). — naves, obj. of compleverat. — adflictabat (intensive), dashed about. — facultas, opportunity (to do a thing).

3. quod constabat, because it was settled: the subject is *oportere, of which the subj. is hiemari, that to winter in Gaul was needful. — his in locis: for the order of words, see § 345. a; G. 680. r.²; H. 569. II.

Chap. 30. principes, subj. of duxerunt. — hoc angustiora, so much the smaller: hoc is abl. of deg. of dif. (§ 250; G. 400; H. 423).
— optimum, in pred. agreement with frumento . . . producere. — duxerunt, thought. — frumento commeatu, corn and other supplies. — rem, the operations. — his . . . interclusis, abl. abs. of condition: if these should be overcome, &c. — rursus, not a second time, but back from negotiations to hostilities. — clam: Et. 29. — deducere, bring down towards the coast.

Chap. 31. ex eventu navium, from what had befallen the ships. — ex eo quod, from the fact that. — suspicabatur, began to suspect. — subsidia comparabat, made provision.
2: quae . . . naves, earum, &c., the timber and bronze of those ships which, &c. (§ 200. b; G. 618; H. 445. 9). — aere: the Romans used aes indiscriminately for copper and bronze. These metals were more common than iron in the Roman ships. They were employed to sheathe the rostrum, and in the spikes that held the timbers together. — materia: Et. 396. — quae . . . usui, whatever was of use: the antecedent of quae is ea, subj. of comportari.

85. reliquis . . . effecit, he managed so that they could sail (navigari, impers.) tolerably with the rest.

Chap. 32. geruntur, § 276. e; G. 220. r.¹; H. 467. III. 4. — frumentatum, to get grain (supine). — pars hominum, some of the people. — ventitaret, returned from time to time (frequent., § 167. b; H. 336). — pro, in front of. — quam . . . ferret = than usual.
2. id quod erat = what was the fact. — aliquid . . . consilii, that some new design was undertaken. — ex reliquis duas, two of the others. — armari, to arm; in verbs, thus used reflexively, English prefers the active and Latin the passive form.
3. paulo longius, some little distance. — premi . . . sustinere, were getting pushed, and hardly held their ground. — conferta legione (abl. abs.) = the legion was formed in solid square, while weapons were hurled, &c. Observe the force of Latin, in conveying a description, as here, by a participial phrase.

4. suspicati, supposing (§ 290. b; G. 278. r.; H. 550. n.1). — dispersos, occupatos, while scattered, &c., agreeing with milites, governed by adorti. — incertis ordinibus (abl. abs.), because the ranks were unsteady.

Chap. 33. ex essedis: these chariots are often represented with scythes at the axle, of which Cæsar makes no mention. They held six men (essedarii) each, besides the driver (auriga), and were drawn by two horses. — cum se insinuaverunt, when they have worked themselves among. For perf. indic. with cum, see “The Conjunction Cum,” note on Bk. III. Chap. 9.

2. equitum, the cavalry of the Britons. When the essedarii had dismounted, the British line was composed of alternate bodies of horse and foot (see Fig. 39). — paulatinim, little by little (§ 148. ε; H. 304. I. 1). — illi, i.e. the fighting men spoken of above. — expeditum receptum, a ready retreat.

3. praestant, exhibit. Cæsar was much struck with the efficiency of the German and British horse (see Chap. 12), and made it the basis of important changes in the Roman army. — uti. . . consuerint, clause of result following efficiunt. — declivi ac praecipiti [Et. 52] loco = a steep downward slope. — incitatos equos sustinere, to check their horses in full gallop (infin. after consuerint). — brevi, within a short space.

86. Chap. 34. quibus rebus, under these circumstances (loc. abl.). — nostris, dat. following tulit auxilium.

2. alienum . . . arbitratus, judging it an unfavorable time. For this force of alienum see note on Bk. I. Chap. 15.

3. quae continerent, so as to keep (§ 319; G. 633; H. 500. I.).

4. praedicaverunt [Et. 10], bragged about. — quanta . . . facultas daretur, what opportunity was offered (indir. question following demonstraverunt).

Chap. 35. ut effugere (in appos. with idem, the subj. of fore), namely, that if, &c. — effugerent, would escape: the future signification is from the effect of fore. — equites triginta: these few cavalry would be of no service in an engagement, but only in pursuit. To chase and cut down the beaten army was considered an essential part of the battle.

3. _tanto spatio, over as much ground_ (§ 257. b; G. 387; H. 379. 2).

Chap. 36. duplicavit: Et. 231. — _die aequinoctii_, the stormy season (Sept. 24). "Cæsar had therefore been nearly a month in Britain, without being able to advance a mile from the shore." Napoleon III. estimates that the return to Gaul occurred Sept. 11 or 12. This would make the stay about three weeks. — _hiemi, &c., thought the voyage ought not to be exposed to foul weather._

87. 2. _eosdem . . . portus_, the same ports with the others: reliqui is masc. (by _synesis_) as referring to milites; some editions have _reliquae_ [naves].

_paulo infra_: "the west current sets in on the French coast, while that to the east is still running in mid-channel."

Chap. 37. expositi, landed. — _circiter trecenti_: From this statement we may make a pretty close estimate of the number of men in a full legion. Cæsar tells us that he had 80 transports for his two legions. By the storm 12 ships were lost. These 12 were probably transports, as they were at anchor, and hence more exposed to danger. That would leave 68. From the two that were separated from the fleet, about 300 men were landed. At that rate, in the 68 ships there must have been 10,200 men. As the legions were without heavy baggage, there would have been no servants excepting for the officers. Allowing for these, and for the number of officers in the general staff, there would remain not much less than 5000 men in each legion. We see thus that Göler's estimate of 4800, as the normal number in the legion, was not far from the truth. — _non ita magno, not very large._ — _numero_: Et. 360.
2. orbe: the circle was formed by a small body of troops when entirely surrounded by the enemy. It was generally hollow, with officers and baggage in the centre.

3. horis, abl. of comparison with amplius: a more common construction would be horas.

4. postea quam = as soon as.

Chap. 38. siccitates: see § 75. c; G. 195. 5; H. 130. 2.—superiore anno, see Bk. III. Chap. 28: the tempestates of Chap. 34 were apparently merely gusty weather without rain.

3. supplicatio: compare end of Bk. II.

The crossing of the Rhine had strongly impressed the minds of the Romans, and so too the passage into Britain, though in fact a failure. This unprecedented thanksgiving of 20 days we must remember, however, was voted by Cæsar's own party, who now held all the offices, and who would wish to cover up the impression of any ill success. In fact, though he had added nothing to Roman power, he had opened a new world to Roman ambition.

The Legions.—In the campaign of the year 55 B.C., Cæsar had still under his orders the eight legions before mentioned. How many of these were engaged in the expedition against the Germans we do not know. Legions VII and X composed the detachment with which Britain was reconnoitred (Chap. 25, Chap. 32).
Second Invasion of Britain.—The landing of the previous year had been only a reconnaissance. Caesar now determines upon a regular advance and occupation. The earlier part of the season was chiefly taken up with naval preparations, the ships being apparently (Chap. 51) built on the inland streams, and the rigging and outfit brought from Spain (Chap. 13), which was considerably in advance of Gaul in civilization, abounded in metals, and, in particular, furnished the esparto, or Spanish grass, whose long, tough fibre made the best of cordage. Caesar sails (by the reckoning of Napoleon III.) on the 20th of July from Portus Itius, at or near Boulogne, drifting first with wind and tide some distance to the N.E., then returning to the locality of his former landing (Chap. 83).

88. Chap. 1. L. Domitio, &c. The consuls entered on their office Jan. 1, according to the official calendar; the real date appears to have been Dec. 12. Caesar's visit to Italy was probably later.—naves . . . curarent, have vessels built and the old ones repaired. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 13.—modum formamque, style of build (hend).

2. subductiones, hauling ashore: they were not left at anchor. (For the plural form, see § 75. c; G. 195. r.5; H. 130. 2.) Compare naves subducere, to haul ashore, and deducere, to haul down, i.e. to launch. See Chap. 21.—nostro: i.e. Mediterranean. —minus magnos seems to refer to the smooth ocean swell, compared with the angry "chopping seas" of the Mediterranean. —id, sc. facit (206. c; H. 368. 3. N. 1).

3. actuarias, driven by oars as well as sails, hence swift. The Gallic ships, it will be remembered, did not use oars. See Bk. III. Chap. 146.—humilitas: as compared with the high-banked galleys. These of Caesar had only one bank of oars.—armandas, rigging (see above).

89. 4. conventibus, proconsular or provincial courts; the same name is given to the districts. These courts were regularly held in the winter (compare Bk. I. Chap. 54).—Illyricum: Caesar's province included all to the N.E. as well as N.W. from Italy. — Pirustis: a tribe long allied with Rome, inhabiting the valley of the Drina. — civitatibus, § 225. c; G. 347; H. 384. 2. — certum, designated (cerno): observe the passive meaning.

6. perpecta, listened to attentively.

7. arbitros, umpires; litem, amount of damages.

Chap. 2. 2. circuitis, having inspected: see § 237. d; G. 330; H. 372. — studio, &c.: this abl. phrase qualifies instructas. — deduci, launched; lit. "hauled down" on rollers to the water.

3. Itium (see above): Boulogne, Wissant or Ambleteuse, no matter which (compare Bk. IV. Chap. 23). — triginta: a little less than 28 English miles.

4. Treverorum, a tribe reckoned as Gauls or Celts (see Bk. VIII. Chap. 25), but believed to be, in part at least, of German origin, and giving their name to the modern Trèves. Their chief town (Augusta Treverorum) was long the chief seat of Roman power in Northern Gaul. — concilia, assemblies, held by a province or confederacy for consultation or law-making. Cæsar appears to have organized such assemblies under his own authority in Belgic Gaul after its conquest. — veniebant, &c.: notice the imperfect tense. — dicebantur: for the personal form, see § 330. b; G. 199. 3; H. 534. 1. n. i.

Chap. 3. ut supra demonstravimus, Bk. III. Chap. 11.

2. alter, the latter, Cingetorix. — suos, i.e. clansmen, retainers, &c. Cingetorix offers to bring his nation under Roman authority on condition of ruling them himself as a subject or "friend" of Rome.

90. 3. Arduennam: this hilly and forest region makes the natural frontier between Gaul and the Netherlands, and is the seat of the famous Belgian iron-mines. — medios, see § 193; G. 287. R.; H. 440. N. i.

5. laberetur, fall off (from obedience). — imprudentiam, ill-judgment. — ita-que, and in consequence. — se permissurum, to put . . . under his protection.

Chap. 4. omnibus . . . comparatis, now that, &c.

3. cum . . . intellegebat, considered on the one hand. (See "The Conjunction Cum," note on Bk. III. Chap. 9.) — merito ejus = as he fairly deserved (see § 253; G. 398; H. 424).

4. suam ... minui, in appos. with id factum. — qui ... fuisse = while, &c. (see § 320. e; G. 637; H. 515. III.). — dolore, grievance.

91. Chap. 5. 2. in Meldis: these were on the Marne, near Meaux. The ships were built here, probably, for convenience of timber; they were low and of light draft (Chap. 1), and proved too frail for the Channel waters (Chap. 10; compare Bk. III. Chap. 9, where sturdier craft are built upon the Loire).

3. numero, abl. of specification; milium limits equitatus. — loco, in the condition (§ 254. a; G. 385. R.; H. 425. 2). — cum ... abesset, while he should be away (a fut. cond. following verebatur).

Chap. 6. Dumnorix: he appears to have been kept four years under close surveillance (see Bk. I. Chap. 20, end).

2. neque ... audebant, and yet dared not.

4. sollicitare; territare; esse: notice the different construction of these three infinitives. — causa, purpose. — fieri ut, it was coming to pass that, &c.

5. ex usu, to the advantage. — intellexissent here represents the fut. perf. of direct discourse.

Chap. 7. quod ... statuebat: the severity to Dumnorix was proportioned to the favor and consequence granted to his State.

92. 2. commoratus, i.e. during the delay (compare § 290. b; G. 278. R.; H. 550. N. 1). — Corus (or Caurus), the north-west wind. — omnis temporis, every season of the year: the windmills on this coast had their sails set permanently to the N.W. (Moberly).

3. milites equitesque: the milites were the legionary infantry.

4. pro sano, rationally. — neglexisset: the tense depends on arbitratus, which is, however, present in meaning (see note on commoratus).
5. enim = in point of fact. — liberum, &c. Cæsar takes no pains to conceal the violence of his own acts. He had no authority over Dumnorix except that of the stronger.

Chap. 8. 2. pari . . . quem, the same . . . as (i.e. 2000). — Africo, the south-west wind. — sub sinistra: i.e. he had drifted to the north-east (see map).

Cæsar weighed anchor at sunset (about 8 p.m.). A gentle breeze was then blowing from the S.W.; but at the same time a tidal current was setting towards the S.W. Under the impulse of these two forces, the fleet kept a north-westerly course until about midnight. The wind then died down, and the current also began to set in the opposite direction (N.E.). With this current the Romans drifted, and at dawn the British coast appeared on their left. They had passed by (relictam) the North Foreland, and were drifting farther away from the land. But at about this time (5 A.M.) the tide changed, and the current again began to flow towards the S.W. With its help, and that of the oars, the fleet now began to move towards the land, aiming to reach the same point that had been found in the previous expedition to be the most convenient for debarking. Here they arrived at about noon (Göler).

4. gravibusque = and that, too, heavy-laden. — navigiis, abl. of means.

93. 5. accessum est: the landing was at Romney. — annotinis, those built the year before. — sui commodi, sc. causā; or, commodi is a genitive of purpose.

Chap. 9. cohortibus decem, i.e. two from each legion.

2. flumen: the Stour, which flows north-easterly through Canterbury, forming at its mouth the Isle of Thanet. — superiore: the north bank is higher ground than the opposite.

4. testudine facta et aggere . . . adjecto:

From the rapidity with which this agger was completed, it is evident that it was not the elaborate structure required in attacking more formidable defences, as described in the note on Bk. II. Chap. 12. We may also infer that the British stronghold was only rudely fortified. The method of attack seems to have been as follows: —

The men in each file stood close together, but with a space of about 3 ft. between the files; excepting, of course, in the front rank, where the formation would be solid. This first rank held their shields in front of them. The other shields were held overhead, the length at right angles to the file. Thus between each two files a protected space, 3 ft. wide, was left, through which workmen could carry brush and fagots. This being rapidly piled, the soldiers kept mounting, stepping alternately to right and left, as the clear space was filled and the place where they were standing was needed. Thus in a short time the testudo was on a level with the top of the wall, and the ditch was filled up. Then a rush drove the enemy easily from their works, and the position was taken.

Chap. 10. tripartito, i.e. in three columns, following different roads.

94. Chap. 11. sic, &c.; i.e. true to the extent that, &c.

2. fabros deligit: a certain number of carpenters (fabri lignarii) was always attached to the engineer corps of the army. The use of deligit, however, seems to imply that there were too few for the present emergency, and hence there were selected from the ranks a sufficient number of men skilled in such work.

3. subduci, drawn up on the beach. See note on Chap. 12.

4. eodem; i.e. to the British defences on the Stour.

5. a mari, from Cæsar’s place of landing. The distance is reckoned, not in a straight line, but by the roads, as the army marched.

6. huic ... intercesserant: “The brave and cautious prince Cassivellaunus [Caswallon], who ruled in what is now Middlesex and the surrounding district,—formerly the terror of the Celts to the south of the Thames, but now the protector and champion of the whole nation” (Mommsen).

Chap. 12. natos in insula: they were not, however, indigenous, but a Celtic population following an earlier Iberian race—iis nominibus: for example, Atrebates and Belgae.

95. 3. Gallicis: brief references to the Gallic customs of building are made in Bk. V. Chap. 43†, and Bk. VI. Chap. 30†.—nummo aereo: this doubtful phrase is found in some good authorities, in the very doubtful form aureo.—plumbum album: Cæsar is mistaken in placing tin-mines inland and iron on the coast; it was just the other way. He does not say whether iron was used in the arts, which would imply a pretty advanced civilization.

4. fagum atque abietem: another error; the beech and fir are both native to Britain. — animi, fancy. — frigoribus, seasons of cold.

Chap. 13. 2. ad Hispaniam, &c. For this crude geography compare Tacitus (Agric. 34), who says that Ireland is between Britain and Spain. — atque, as, § 156. a; G. 646; H. 554. I. 2. N.

3. Mona, the Isle of Man. Tacitus, apparently, gives this name to Anglesea.

4. ex aqua mensuris: the clepsydra, or water-clock, measured time by the dropping of fixed measures of water through a small pipe, or aperture.

Chap. 14. 2. interiores: the ruder barbarians here described are probably represented by the later Picts, whose name (pictis) has been thought to denote their woad-staining.

“A painted coat King Vortigern had on,
Which from a naked Pict his grandsire won.”

3. parte, § 251; G. 402; H. 419. II.

96. 4. uxoribus habent, &c. This rude and early nucleus of the clan "was founded upon the intermarriage of several brothers to each other's wives in a group, and of several sisters to each other's husbands in a group. But the term brother, as here used, included the first, second, third, and even more remote male connections, all of whom were considered brothers to each other, as we consider own brothers" (Morgan's "Ancient Society"). One effect of the arrangement was a great check upon population,—an important point with all barbarians. — quo (adv.) here stands for ad quos (§ 207. a; G. 613. r. 1; H. 304. II. 3. N.).

Chap. 15. essedarii: see Bk. IV. Chap. 33. — fuerunt, § 287. c. with Rem.; G. 513; H. 495. VI.

3. atque his, and these, too. — primis: the first cohorts had the best soldiers. See note on the "Relative Rank of the Centurions,"
V. 12-19.]

Second Invasion of Britain.

Bk. I. Chap. 40. — per medios, i.e. through the interval between the two cohorts.

Chap. 16. cedentibus et inequentibus, agreeing with eis understood (abl. abs.), referring to the Britons. Whether advancing or retreating, the islanders were equally formidable.

4. stationes, supports. It will be observed that the Britons showed considerable military skill, and that their mode of battle somewhat resembled that of the Romans themselves. They used an open and flexible array, rather than the dense masses (phalanxes) of the Gauls and Germans.

97. Chap. 18. uno loco: somewhere between Brentford and the mouth of the Wey. The details of Cæsar’s march are here uncertain: as Mr. Long thinks, he went by the passage of the Mole through the chalk hills at Dorking.

2. sudibus: these defences, or palisades, have been thought to be indicated by the local name Cowey Stakes, near the junction of the Wey with the Thames. These, however, were at right angles with the bank, as if piles for a bridge; while those spoken of in the text were driven in along the bank— one of the rows at low water.

4. capite solo, a most hazardous depth. By the rule for modern infantry, a ford should not be more than three feet deep. But, says Merivale, “the swimming and fording of rivers were among the regular exercises of the Roman legionary. Though immersed up to his chin in water, he was expert in plying his hatchet against the stakes which opposed his progress, while he held his buckler over his head not less steadily than on dry land. Behind him a constant storm of stones and darts was impelled against the enemy from the engines which always accompanied the Roman armies.”

Chap. 19. locisque impeditis ac silvestribus: from this description we must infer that the British chariots were very narrow, to pass through the forest roads; and had very high wheels, to go easily over rough ground.

Chap. 20. Trinobantes: in Essex. Their chief place was Camalodunum, now Colchester. — Imanuentius: this name is found in later Mss., and is not given in Nipperdey's text.

2. qui praesit: this defection of Mandubracius was soon followed by the break-up of the Briton confederacy.

Chap. 21. Icani, &c. These local names vaguely hint at the petty populations of the vicinity. — oppidum Cassivellauni: thought to be the modern St. Albans.

2. oppidum, &c. The Britons, like the Germans, did not live in towns, but used these strongholds simply for defence against attack. — cum: see note on Book III. Chap. 9, "The Conjunction Cum," II. c. 1.

99. Chap. 22. regionibus: implying that Kent (Cantium) was divided into four recognized military commands.

4. neque multum aestatis. Cæsar had now apparently been in Britain about two months (compare Chap. 23). The dates assigned by Napoleon III. for his sailing and return are July 22 and Sept. 24; or, by the reformed calendar, July 20 and Sept. 21. — extrahi, protracted, i.e. wasted. Besides, Cæsar had just learned the death of his daughter Julia, Pompey's wife, threatening the dissolution of the triumvirate, and giving him strong reason for wishing to be nearer home.

vectigalis: this was mere form, as no means were left to enforce the tribute.

Fresh Risings of the Gauls. — The remaining events of this campaign are among the most critical of the entire Gallic war, and show to what extreme peril Cæsar had exposed his conquests by his nearly idle and fruitless expedition across the Channel. They serve, besides, to bring out, in very marked relief, the personal qualities of his several lieutenants. As a series of episodes, this Book is, in fact, the most interesting of the eight.

100. Chap. 24. Samarobriviae, the chief town of the Ambiani, whose name is found in the modern Amiens. — aliter ac: i.e. not where supplies were most abundant, but where there was chief danger of disturbance.
2. Q. Ciceroni, the younger brother of the orator, and a man of harder temper. He had joined Cæsar's army the present year, and taken part in the expedition to Britain.

3. proxime, latest. This was the 15th legion. — trans Padum, i.e. from Rome to the north.

Chap. 25. restituerat: this act of "restoring" chiefs exiled by the democracy of the tribes was peculiarly odious, as here appears.

2. auctoribus, either at their instigation, or at any rate with their full consent.

101. Chap. 26. diebus ... quibus, within a fortnight after, &c. — praesto, in attendance upon, as obedient subjects. — Indu-tiornari: for the bitter offence given him by Cæsar, see above, Chap. 4.

3. aliqui: the usual form is aliquis (§§ 104, 105. d; G. 105; H. 190. n. 2).

Chap. 27. eques, a knight, a member of the "equestrian order," the commercial aristocracy of Rome.

3. imperia, sovereignty. The word is used in English abstractly, referring to all cases; while in Latin each sovereignty is regarded as a separate imperium.

102. 4. humilitate, weakness.

6. pro pietate: pietas implies the love of a child to a parent; here, of course, to his native land. — rationem officii = regard to his duty. — conductam, hired, or subsidized.

Chap. 28. 2. consilium: as the two legates had 1½ legions under their command, the council of war contained, besides the legates, 9 military tribunes, and either 9 or 6 centurions, according as the half legion did or did not include the first cohort. Thus there were in the council either 20 or 17 persons.

103. Chap. 29. proximis, close at hand.

2. fuisse capturos: the direct discourse would have cepissent, and for venturos esse, venirent.
3. auctorem, as the informant. — spectare, sc. se. — ardere, is in a blaze. — Ariovisti mortem: he had, however, escaped after the battle (Bk. I. Chap. 53).

4. persuaderet: for the form of question, see § 338. R.; G. 468; H. 486. II.

Chap. 30. primis ordinibus = primorum ordinum centurionibus.

104. Chap. 31. 2. dat manus (a formal sign of surrender), gives in. — pronuntiatur, the order is given out.

4. ut quibus, &c. (§§ 320. e, 230; G. 637, 208; H. 515. III., 384. 5), as if, &c. — longissimo: the line of march was very long, and consequently very weak.

Chap. 32. convallem: a valley enclosed on all sides. In this sink of course the Romans were at a disadvantage.

105. Chap. 33. providisset: for the subj. see § 341. d; G. 636; H. 517.

3. in orbem: see note on Bk. IV., Chap. 37. A modern army would form a hollow square. The circle was hollow, having room within for the higher officers, the non-combatants, the wounded, &c.

Chap. 34. existimarent, for imperat. of direct discourse (§ 339; G. 655; H. 523. III.).

2. et virtute et numero, abl. of cause.

3. ad signa recipientes: the standards were fixed in the ground, thus indicating the alignment of the circle.

Chap. 35. cum . . . excederat, as often as, &c., equivalent to a general condition (§ 309. c; G. 585; H. 521. II. 1, with last example; also see "The Conjunction Cum," note on Bk. III. Chap. 9). — recipi: "recipe ferrum was the cry to a gladiator who was not to be spared" (Moberly).

4. qui . . . duxerat: as he had been chief centurion the year before, we infer that he was now serving in the corps of veterans called evocati. See Bk. VII. Chap. 65.

Chap. 37. ululatum: such a yell of triumph is described by
V. 29-40. Second Invasion of Britain. 167

Ammianus (XVI. 12, 43): "It began with a low humming, growing gradually louder and louder, until it was like the thunder of the waves, when they crash on a rocky shore."

107. Chap. 38. neque noctem neque diem intermittit. Ambiorix marched only one night and one day. More than that would have been expressed by nocturnis diurnisque itineribus (cf. Bk. I. Chap. 38).

2. in Nervios. Caesar had said (Bk. II. Chap. 28) that the Nervii were almost utterly exterminated (prope ad internecionem redacti) three years before. From this it is inferred that "he wrote his Commentaries at the time of the events, and did not correct them afterwards" (Long). Or they may have been drawn up from his despatches to the Senate, which were sent at the close of each campaign (Roscher). See note on Bk. II. Chap. 1.

3. oppressam... interfici: render by two verbs, to be surprised and slain (§ 292. R.; G. 667. R. 1; H. 549. 5).

Chap. 40. 2. turres: these "were open at the sides and behind, solidly timbered towards the enemy, and their object was, like that of the modern bastion, to shorten the length of wall to be occupied by the defence" (Moberly). Others think that their use was to give the soldiers a still higher position from which to throw their missiles. In this case, if made like those described by Pansa in Bk. VIII. Chap. 9, they would have been of not more than three stories, or perhaps 30 ft., high. Each story was floored with a platform, on which the soldiers stood. The front and sides of each platform were protected by a parapet (loricae) of hurdles, to the height of about 4 ft. Above this projected a sort of battlement of stakes (pinnae), or of hurdles standing erect, with spaces at intervals, through which the spears were hurled. The structure was square, of about 10 ft. on a side. Of these towers it appears that on the first night only the framework was erected. On succeeding nights they were completed.

108. 3. muralium pilorum, long pikes, to defend the wall.—contabulantur, floored with plank. Possibly also the towers were connected by galleries, one for each story.
Chap. 41. 3. nihil . . . recusent: i.e. they will be friends, but not subjects; they only refuse to admit a standing military force.

Chap. 42. fossa pedum quindecim: a ditch 15 ft. wide would be 11 ft. deep. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 49.

109. 3. quindecim: probably an error, as a circuit of 15 miles seems out of the question; perhaps pedum, or quinque.—falces, hooks, for tearing down the wall.—testudines, wooden galleries or sheds, to protect the undermining (see Fig. 26).

Chap. 43. casas, the huts of the encampment, thatched with straw.

110. Chap. 44. 2. locum, opportunity.

Chap. 45. 2. a prima obsidione, at the beginning of the siege.

111. Chap. 46. milia passuum xxv, i.e. from Amiens to Montdidier.

Chap. 47. 4. quos . . . sciret = cum eos sciret.—veritus ut, § 331. f; G. 552; H. 498. III. n. 1.

5. quanto . . . esset, indir. quest. depending on the verb of telling implied in litteras remittit.

Chap. 48. opinione, expectation.

112. 4. Graecis litteris, i.e. in Greek letters. The Gauls were well acquainted with the Greek characters (Bk. I. Chap. 29; Bk. VI. Chap. 14). According to Polyaeus the despatch contained merely the words, "Cæsar to Cicero. Be of good courage. Expect aid."

5. amentum: the amentum was a small strap fastened to the middle of a light spear. By its use the spear could be thrown twice as far without it, as has been proven by experiment.
6. biduo, within two days ($\S$ 256; G. 392; H. 429).
7. perlectam . . . recitat: he read it through (to himself), and then recited it aloud in the assembly of the soldiers.

113. Chap. 49. 2. Gallum . . . repetit, asks again for the Gaul.
6. milium septem: the legions averaged, then, 3500 men each, and this was less than the normal strength. The latter was quite likely at least 4800. See note on Bk. IV. Chap. 52. — angustiis viarum, i.e. narrow paths or streets within the camp. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 49.

Chap. 51. 3. nemo, not a man (emphatic by position).

114. Chap. 52. 3. pro ejus merito: Cicero's admirable conduct here receives as high praise as it was Cæsar's habit to give anybody.
4. laetatio: this word occurs nowhere else in any classical author.

Chap. 53. 3. trinis, see § 95. b; G. 95. r. 2; H. 174. 2. 3. — ad exercitum manere, contrary to his usual course, which was, for political reasons, to keep in near communication with Italy.

115. 6. longius, sc. quam (as after plus, minus, amplius).

Chap. 54. 2. adventu (loc. abl.) = at the time of, &c.
5. adeo (emphatic), in fact. — ei, nom. — praeferebantur, used to be held superior. The old terror of the Gallic name was, indeed, rather confirmed by the ferocity of the hostility which Cæsar met, especially in Britain, where his two legions had been cut down to "scarcely 7000 men" (Chap. 49).

116. Chap. 56. ultro veniri, a spontaneous rising for his support.
4. Senonibus, Carnutibus, Sens and Chartres.

117. Chap. 58. 3. praecipit refers to peterent; interdicit to neu vulneret. — morā reliquorum, by waiting to attack the others.

The Legions. — In the year 54 B.C., probably in the spring, Cæsar enlisted one new legion, the 15th. The 14th was divided. Five of its cohorts were scattered, the men being used to fill up the depleted ranks of the other legions. Thus Cæsar had in all eight and a half legions under arms. Of these, fifteen cohorts (legion XV and five cohorts of legion XIV) were destroyed with Sabinus, Book Sixth. — B.C. 53.

Second Passage of the Rhine. — The last campaign, including the bootless return from Britain, and the slaughter of the division of Sabinus, must have been in the eyes of the Gauls at least as good as a drawn battle, and have given them fresh hope in the struggle. The strength of their resistance was in the north and east, where they had the support of raids from across the Rhine, — a falling back on barbarism which it was especially the business of Caesar to check by a daring blow. Hence the policy of this new, but idle, advance into Germany. It may be borne in mind that this campaign was the more critical, as following closely upon the defeat and destruction of the Roman armies under Crassus in the East.

Chap. 1. multis de causis: viz. the desertion of Dumnorix, the loss of Cotta and Sabinus, and the sudden revolt led by Indutiomarus (see above). — dilectum, i.e. in Italy.

2. proconsule: Pompey had been consul B.C. 55. He was now nominally proconsul of Spain, with six legions; but remained in Italy, ruling his province through legati. It was at this time that he built his great wooden amphitheatre in Rome, capable of holding 30,000 spectators. — ad urbem (not in urbe): as long as he was in military command (cum imperio), he might not enter the city — which in such case had only been done by Sulla. — reipublicae causā, the superintending of the corn supply (cura annonae). — Cisalpina Gallia, Caesar’s own province. But Pompey and Crassus had received authority to raise troops where they pleased, and in whatever number. The jealousies arising from this transfer of troops had fatal consequences afterwards. — consulis . . . rogavisset: the verb rogare is used of the magistrate who puts a proposed law to vote; literally, “asks” the people if they will accept it (jubeatisne?); also of a commander who demands of his men whether they will be bound to him by oath. The genitive (consulis) indicates the magistrate or officer who imposes the oath; on the part of the soldiers the expression would be, in verba consulis jurare. — juberet follows petit (sc. ut); its object being the antecedent (eos) of quos, above.
VI. 1-4. Second Passage of the Rhine. 171

3. opinionem Galliae, reputation in Gaul (subj. gen.). — videri, be seen (not seem). — adversary refers not to "damage" (detrimenti), but to Caesar’s forces (implied). [This linking of different subjects under one construction is called zeugma.]

4. amicitiae: Caesar and Pompey were still openly friends, though by the recent death of Julia (Caesar’s daughter and Pompey’s wife), as well as by the death of Crassus, the political coalition which united them was dissolved, and an open rupture soon followed. The legion now forwarded to Caesar was demanded back two or three years later. — duplicat: 15 cohorts were lost under Titurius. The three legions now received of course had 30. The new legions sent by Pompey were known as the 1st and 3d. Another, raised by Caesar, was the 14th; taking the same number as the legion the half of which had been lost under Titurius at Aduatuca. The other half, it will be remembered, had been used to fill up the other depleted legions.

119. Chap. 2. In the details of this chapter, notice the formidable appearance, but the really long, weak and broken line of the Gallic confederacy.

Chap. 3. Nerviorum: the vitality of this tribe is remarkable, after its triple extermination. — prædā, as booty; ea (referring to magno ... numero) agrees by attraction with the appositive, § 195. d; G. 202. R. 5; H. 445. 4.

2. ut ... videretur: it seems more reasonable to read ne instead of ut. — Lutetiam (translated by Carlyle Mudtown): the first mention in history of Paris, which was a place of no importance until its occupation as a royal town by the Franks in a.d. 502. The original place of meeting had probably been Samarobriva (Amiens).

3. civitatem conjunxerant, i.e. with the Senones. This was a close political union, not a mere military league (foedus). — hoc consilio, the new confederacy (compare Bk. VII. Chap. 75). — hac re, the removal to Lutetia. — pro suggestu, in front of the platform; i.e. by public announcement, not special notification to the commanders.

Chap. 4. conantibus (sc. iis, abl. abs.), while they were attempting to effect the gathering.
2. fide, protection (implied by the act of trust), i.e. of the Romans. — libenter, &c. But Acco was afterwards put to death; see Chap. 44.

120. 3. equites: the cavalry of the Roman armies was wholly furnished by the subject-allies.

Chap. 5. Cavarinum, a chief appointed at Cæsar’s dictation, and odious to his tribe (Bk. V. Chap. 54). Hence his animosity (iracundia) against the State which had driven him into exile. — meruerat, implying a harsh and tyrannical rule.

2. pro explorato = ascertained.
4. haec auxilia, i.e. both the Menapii and the Germans. — lacesseret, subj. of relat. clause following existimabat.

Chap. 6. tripartito: in three columns, on different roads.

2. a (adverbial), away. — impedimentis, i.e. the greater part of the heavy baggage. He took a baggage-train with him (Chap. 8), probably merely what was necessary.

3. flumen, probably some stream flowing into the Meuse (Mosa), perhaps the Alzette. — spes, their (the Treveri) hope.

4. palam, freely or openly, but not in set speech. — castra moturum, feigning flight (see below Chap. 6, 7).

5. natura, their natural attachment to their own land.

Chap. 8. cum: see note on Chap. 7.

122. 3. imperatoris: Cæsar, who alone had the imperium, or military authority.

4. dirigi, i.e. to be formed and aligned; dirigo properly has only the latter meaning. There is an ellipsis of instrui et.

5. impetum modo, the mere onset.

7. comitati eos, in company with them (the Germans).—
demonstravimus: see Bk. V. Chap. 3 and 56.

Chap. 9. miserant, sc. Germani, implied in trans Rhenum.

2. paulum supra, a little above, or to the south, "apparently near Andernach." — nota ratione = on the plan already tried and approved (compare Bk. IV. Chap. 17).

123. 4- purgandi sui, § 298. a; G. 429. R. 1; H. 542. I. N. 1.

6. cognita, having inquired into.

Chap. 10. iis . . . imperio, subject tribes, not confederate allies. Tacitus, however (Ger. 38), represents the Suevi as a confederacy: its subjects may, after Cæsar's time, have been admitted to alliance. — peditatus, § 214. e; G. 359; H. 396. VI.

3. penitus, entirely.

4. silvam: this was the natural frontier (pro nativo muro) of the north German plain towards the south. A range of wooded hills still borders the Saxon duchies on the north. The Cherusci held the valleys of the Weser and Seine.

Chap. 11. locum, a "place" where there is really nothing to tell, as Cæsar found the country deserted (Chap. 29), and returned at once to Gaul. We owe to this void in the narrative a most curious and entertaining glimpse into the geographic and ethnog-graphic knowledge of the time.

124. 2. quorum: the antecedent is principes. The subjunctive redeat indicates the character of their authority (§ 320; G.
633; H. 503. I.). Or, by making eorum the antecedent, we should have the meaning that the party chiefs are designated (as in our political conventions) by a body, or council, to whom the decision is referred by general consent, — a plausible understanding of the passage.

3. ne quis, correl. with ita (in itaque); the clause ne . . .
egeret being in appos. with ejus rei, and the past tense (egeret) taking its time from institutum [esse]: § 287. a; G. 518. exc.;
H. 495. IV.

4. ratio, order of things. — in summa, in general, the gen.
Galliae depending on ratio.
Chap. 12. cum . . . venit. See "The Conjunction Cum," note on Bk. III. Chap. 9. — Sequani, who succeeded to the domination of the Arverni (see Bk. I. Chap. 31). — antiquus, really, only a little while before, as the Ædui had risen by favor of the Romans. — jacturis, sacrifices. — clientelae, dependents. These were the petty tribes, which grouped themselves about one or the other rival State.

3. Divitiacus: compare the note to Bk. I. Chap. 31. — infectare, without effecting his object (Kraner has imperfecta).

4. reliquis rebus, abl. of instr. with amplificata.

5. adaequare, were equal, i.e. to the Ædui. (The inferior clause depends on intellegebatur.)

125. Chap. 13. plebes (sing.), perhaps the scattered rural population (?). — nullo, either an older form of dative, or (more likely) an experiment in uniformity of Caesar's own, like alterae in Bk. V. Chap. 27, and paterfamiliae in Chap. 19, below.

2. cum . . . premuntur, indicative to express repetition, — a general truth. See "The Conjunction Cum," note on Bk. III. Chap. 9. — quae dominis (dat. of poss.), as masters have.

4. sacrificiis, abl. of separation; understand eos with interdicunt.

5. decedunt, sc. de viā (i.e. "cut" them in the street). — incommodi, part. gen. following quid.

7. Carnutum: this central spot was at or near the modern town of Dreux, where, it is said, traces of these assemblies may still be found.

126. Chap. 14. 2. ediscere, to learn by heart.

3. fas: the words fas and nefas refer to what is religiously right and wrong, in distinction from jus and injuria, which refer to human obligations only.

4. litteris confisos, by trusting to written words, — a useful hint to teachers.

5. hoc (acc.; more usually illud) refers to what follows; hoc (abl.) to what has just been said.

6. mundi, the universe (system of things); terrarum (cf. orbis terrarum), the world.
Chap. 15. equitum: these made a sort of military nobility. It is interesting to compare the two "upper classes" here described with the ecclesiastics and feudal noblesse of France before the Revolution. — cum est: notice the force of the indicative. See "The Conjunction Cum," note on Bk. III. Chap. 9. — versantur, engage, or are employed.

2. ut quisque . . . ita, the more . . . the more (§ 93. c. at end; G. 645. r. 2; H. 458. 2). — ambactos: this Celtic word was known as the equivalent of servus, "slave," as early as the time of Ennius, 150 years before (compare Chap. 13).

Chap. 16. hominæ immolant: the practice of human sacrifice is thought (by Thierry) to have been obsolete at this time in Gaul. Caesar appears not to have known any actual instances of it.

127. 3. supplicia, i.e. as sacrifices. The word ("downbent") refers to the attitude of the victim, who is bound and kneeling to receive his doom. The choice of criminals for this purpose may remind us of that latest form of human sacrifice, the punishment of death for heresy. — defecit: § 279. b; G. 228. r. 2; H. 471. II. 3. See "The Conjunction Cum," note on Bk. III. Chap. 9.

Chap. 17. Mercurium: the name of the god whom the Romans identified with Mercury is lost (Teutates?); but it appears from inscriptions and images that his worship was very widespread and important throughout the period of the Empire. The other deities here mentioned appear under numerous epithets. Jupiter was probably the Gallic Taranis, whose name appears to indicate that he was a god of thunder. He has been identified by some with a statuette bearing in its hand a long hammer or mallet, like the Scandinavian Thor. (Esquisse de la Religion de Gaulois, by Henri Gadioz.)

5. capta, taken as spoil; posita, consecrated as a gift.

Chap. 18. Dite = Pluto, the god of Darkness, or the Underworld (see § 244. a. r.; G. 395; H. 415. II. n.). — ob, translate in keeping with, as it cannot be the true reason, — the fact being common to most primitive peoples: e.g. the Germans (Tac. Germ. ii). Our word "fortnight" is a relic of this early use. — ut . . . subsequatur, i.e. the day began at sunset.

2. fere ab reliquis, from most others. — suos liberos, &c. The Romans, on the other hand, accustomed their sons to public life, and in early times even took them with them into the Senate. — cum, &c. See last note on Chap. 15.

128. Chap. 19. quantas . . . communicant: the husband deposits, in a common fund, an amount equal to the wife's marriage-portion.

2. ratio habetur, a reckoning is kept. — fructus, revenues, or profits.

3. viri in uxores, &c.: compare the Roman patria potestas; the rank of the wife was much higher among the Germans. — cum, &c. See last note on Chap. 15. — de uxoribus: this is thought by some to imply polygamy among the Gauls. — in servilem modum, after the manner of slaves, i.e. by torture.

4. pro cultu, considering the degree of refinement: "not up, perhaps, to the Roman ideas as to gladiators and the like" (Moberly). — hanc = nostram (cf. Bk. II. Chap. 45). — justis, right, by conventional rule. When these had been fulfilled, the sacrifice was added.

Chap. 20. legibus sanctum, established by law, agreeing with the clause si . . . communicet (obj. of habent). — quo, indef., any one (nequis).

2. quod saepe, &c. Compare the lively account in Bk. IV. Chap. 5.

3. quae visa sunt, what they think fit to conceal (understand occultanda, and compare & dòxēi abōtōs). — per concilium, by means (or, in the proceedings) of the public assembly.

Chap. 21. neque Druides habent: they had, however, both priests and priestesses, with religious forms public and private. Cæsar's contact with the Germans, it is to be remarked, was only on their unsettled military frontier.

2. deorum numero, &c. In this, Cæsar's testimony is directly contradicted by Tacitus, who speaks (Germ. 9) of their worship of Mercury, Mars and Hercules. This is almost the only contradiction between these writers, in whose accounts of political and other institutions there is a striking agreement.

3. ab parvulis, from childhood (compare “from a child,” 2 Tim. iii. 15).

129. 4. qui . . . permanserunt, strictly, “who are slowest to outgrow” their boyhood. Compare Tacitus: sera juvenum venus, eoque inexhausta pubertas; and contrast the premature debaucheries of the Roman youth.

5. nulla occultatio, like the English there is no hiding.—rhenonum, i.e. reindeer’s hide.—magna . . . nudā (abl. abs.), i.e. in battle, where Cæsar would chiefly meet them.

Chap. 22. agriculturae: as to this chapter, compare what is said in the general Introduction to the volume, and in Bk. IV. Chap. 1, where it is shown that the soil was tilled, not by the labor of old men, women, or slaves, but by that of the fighting men. In other words, the Germans were, though “barbarians,” not (in one sense) a barbarous people.

2. neque quisquam, &c. This temporary and shifting occupation of land, as well as the holding of it by the family or clan (cognitionibus), is characteristic of a primitive society. But compare the Introduction, as above.—fines proprios, private boundaries, or landmarks.—qui una coierunt: in the general gathering for this assignment, each clan must have met by itself, and been represented by its chief.

3. agricultūra: notice the use of the ablative (§ 252; G. 404; H. 422. N. 2), here to be rendered “for.”—ne . . . expellant: this was a flagrant evil in Italy, which Cæsar had attempted in his own consulship to check (by the lex agraria), following the precedent of the Gracchi. There the potentiores had already succeeded in ousting the humiliores from their estates, and creating enormous plantations, latifundia, cultivated by slaves, in place of the earlier peasant freeholds.—cum . . . videat: this looks as if the land was portioned in equal shares to rich and poor alike, unless we take aequari in the sense of a conative present, implying only tendency, or opportunity.
Chap. 23. maxima laus: so in Bk. IV. Chap. 3. — virtutis, § 218. d; G. 356. R. 1; H. 391. II. 4. — prope, near; consistere, to stay or settle; observe the reduplicated form, with the force given by con.

2. cum . . . infert: note force of pres. indic. with cum. See "The Conjunction Cum, note on Bk. III. Chap. 9. — magistratus . . . deliguntur, by lot, according to the Saxon Bede, from among existing magistrates. The Goths, Burgundians, Franks and Lombards, on the other hand, had real kings.

3. principes . . . pagorum; these local and village chiefs, forming a sort of governing body, were probably the "natural leaders" each of his own district. They are said, however, to have been elected, no doubt for life, by an assembly of the tribe or nation (Tac. Germ. 12).

4. latrocinia . . . extra fines, "cattle-lifting raids," like those of the Scottish Borderers.

130. 5. ubi quis (indef.), &c. This is how volunteers were mustered for the raids in question. — omnium rerum fides, confidence in anything.

2. Hercyniam silvam, the great wooded range extending from the Black Forest to the Bohemian Highlands. — Volcae, &c., occupying the southern part of Gaul, about Narbonne or Toulouse. A portion, only, had migrated to Germany; or, as some hold, had staid behind from an early Celtic migration westward.

Chap. 25. expedito (dat.), "with free foot," i.e. unencumbered with baggage. — non noverunt: so at the present day, in the mountain regions of Germany and Switzerland, distance is measured by "hours" (stunden) instead of miles.

2. Nemetum, &c., along the middle course of the Rhine, where it flows northward from Bâle. — recta . . . regione, i.e. parallel. — Dacorum, &c., occupying the eastern and western portions of Hungary. — sinistrorsus: in reality, it is the river which leaves the course of the forest or highland, bending abruptly to the right, or southward. The ancients had no compasses, and were careless observers of direction (compare Bk. V. Chap. 13).
3. hujus, that familiar to the Romans, viz. western.—initium, as we should say the end, eastward, where it is lost in the Carpathian range. Its extent, in a direct line, is stated as 1600 miles.—procererit, acceperit: subj. by indir. disc. for perf. indic. See last note on Chap. 15.

131. Chap. 26. bos: this name seems to have been given loosely to any large-horned, unfamiliar beast, even to the elephant; here it is probably the reindeer, which had anciently a wide-scattered range.—unum cornu: perhaps the specimen described had lost a horn; or, more likely, the expression refers to the long projection from which both branches spring, instead of growing independently, like the horns of an ox. The description of the horn might, however, rather suggest the moose or Irish elk.

2. palmae ramique (hend.), branching antlers.

Chap. 27. alces: this name is undoubtedly elks, but the description is widely unlike ("a little bigger than goats!") and quite unrecognizable. If it were correct, the creature would be well entitled to the name "wretched animal" (elendthier) bestowed upon it in German.—crura . . . habent: the same yarn is told by Pliny, H. N. viii. 16, 39.

3. cum. See last note on Chap. 15.—subruunt, undermine; accidunt, cut into. —summa species, the surface look.

4. cum. See above.

Chap. 28. uri: this name is generally understood to refer to the German Urochs (the primitive or wild ox, probably buffalo), said still to be found in the forests of Lithuania.* Caesar evidently describes a very different animal, with great spreading horns like those of a reindeer or moose; but the whole description must have been derived from a confused account.

4. ne . . . excepti, not even when caught quite young.

132. 5. ab labris, around the rim.

* The buffalo of Eastern Europe, domesticated in Transylvania, where the cows are valued for their milk, is long and rather low in form, with depressed and flat horns, like those of the musk-ox.—J. H. A.
Chap. 29. Caesar, &c. This chapter directly follows Chap. 10, the intervening passage being a digression.

2. barbaris, dat. (§ 229; G. 344. R. 2; H. 385. II. 2). — ne... tolleret, as would be done by completely destroying the bridge; ut tardaret, by making it practically useless. — in extremo ponte. There seems to have been an island in the river at this place, so that the bridge was in two sections. The section between the island and the right bank was destroyed, and at what was now the end of the bridge (extremo), on the island, the tower was built. There was probably a redoubt, as usual, at the entrance to the bridge on the mainland. — cohortium duodecim: these were auxiliaries, as it appears in Chap. 33 that he had all his legions with him.

3. maturescere, i.e. early in August. — Arduennam, the modern Ardennes (Shakspere’s Forest of Arden). — quingentis: an obvious mistake, possibly of some copyist. It should be centum et quinquaginta.

4. si quid... possit (interrog. § 334. f; G. 462. 2; H. 529. 1. n. 1), to see whether, &c. — subsequi (pres.), i.e. is already on the road.

Chap. 30. 2. multum potest, has great power. It has been observed that Caesar, since his failure in Britain, harps much on the favor of Fortune (compare Chaps. 35, 42), and seems to waver in his confidence in Destiny. — ipsum (twice), referring to Ambiorix. — prius... quam, render as one word, before, — English omitting the relative particle. — magnae fortunae (pred. gen.), a great piece of luck; or, mere luck.

133. 3. hoc, abl. of means, explained by quod... sustinuerunt. — sunt fere, generally are.

4. his pugnantibus: notice the force of the Latin order. While these were fighting, time was given for the chief to be placed on horseback by some of his followers, and, as soon as he actually got away, he was covered by the woods.

Chap. 31. judicione... an, whether by design... or, &c. — existimarit, crederet: in direct discourse, existimavit (an act of decision) and credebat (a state of opinion).
2. quas aestus, i.e. islands only at high tide. — alienissimis, entire strangers.

3. precibus detestatus, cursing with formal imprecations, which, from a dying man, were thought to have efficacy with the gods.

Chap. 32. unam esse causam, that the case was the same, i.e. that they were all included in the league.

2. convenissent, reducerentur, in dir. disc. converyerint, educantur.

134. 3. id castelli nomen est, that is the (German) name of (for) a stronghold. It will be remembered that the Aduatuci were of German descent; and it is thought that Aduatuca is an old German word, meaning a stronghold. Then the Aduatuci were the people who held such a place of safety. There were several towns of this name, which fact adds force to the conjecture. — Titurius, &c. (Sabinus and Cotta). See Bk. V. Chap. 24.

6. Q. Ciceronem: this post was forced upon him "to keep him from the ranks of the republican opposition at Rome," of which he was afterwards an obstinate adherent. He was at this time a legatus of Pompey.

Chap. 33. ad . . . versus, towards. — Scaldem, the Scheldt. There seems to be some confused geography here.

2. post diem septimum, the seventh day after. — quam ad diem, compare Chap. 35 (quem ad diem).

3. commodo (abl.), to (in accordance with) the advantage (reipublicae is gen.).

Chap. 34. supra, in Chap. 31. — quod se defenderet, capable of, &c. (subj. of characteristic).

2. cuique, to any. We should put the distributive with the leading verb (consederat), each had taken position where, &c.

3. universis, to men gathered in one body. — ex parte, in a measure.

135. 5. hominum sceleratorum, those scoundrels; an expression of temper which Cæsar does not often permit himself towards his foes, whose crime was (says Kraner) "that they dared to maintain their independence." — ad signa = in camp.
6. neceretur, harm should be done to the enemy, through the animosities of their own countrymen. — ulciscendum, to avenge the destruction of the force of Sabinus and Cotta (Bk. V. Chaps. 27-38).

Chap. 35. 2. possit, adferat: present tense to express a general truth; though usually in Latin such expressions follow the sequence of tenses.

3. ultro, freely, i.e. any that would; as a general invitation, extending beyond those immediately concerned.

4. supra ducuimus, see Bk. IV. Chap. 16.

5. primos fines, the nearest limits.

136. 7. fortunatissimis: § 272. a; G. 535. r. 2; H. 536. 2. 3). — Aduatucam, see Chap. 32. — tantum, only so much, really, so scanty. — cingi, surrounded (with a line of defenders).

8. duce, as guide (pred. appos.).

Chap. 36. Cicero. See Chap. 32, with note. — continuisset (concessive subj.), while he had, &c. — de, &c., construe with fidem.

2. iius, &c., who called his quiet waiting a blockade. — siqui-dem, since: with subj., indicating the ground of their complaint. — quo (following ejusmodi, of such sort that), with posset as subj. of result. — offendi (impers.), an attack could be made.

3. hoc spatio, since Cæsar’s departure. — sub vexillo: the vexillum was a little scarlet flag (quite distinct from the metal signum), used by small bodies detached for some special service. The name vexillarii was given to the soldiers of such a corps. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 25. — jumentorum, to bring in the expected supplies. — subsederant, had stayed behind when Cæsar left. — facta potestate, obtaining leave.

Chap. 37. ab decumana porta, at the rear gate (see Fig. 15). The camp fronted in the direction where the enemy were supposed to be — i.e. the Gallic tribes; so that its more exposed part lay nearest the German attack. — neu prius . . . quam, not till. silvis: it was considered bad management to place a camp so near the woods as to conceal the approach of the enemy. The pickets, too, must have been either very carelessly stationed, or very negligent. — usque eo, so close. — qui . . . mercatores, the traders

137. 2. circumfunduntur (the middle or reflexive use of the passive, rendered in English by the active form), pour on, or about.

3. reliquos aditus, any other way of approach.—quisque conveniat, each soldier (= all the soldiers) shall get together for defence.—provident: the plural here seems to imply that they were without a commander,—a grave military fault.

4. imperatore, Cæsar. Observe the force of atque: and the general too!—novas religiones, a sudden superstition, as if the spot itself were unlucky to the Romans (see Chap. 32).—qui occiderint, who (as they recalled; hence subj.) fell.

CHAP. 38. ad Caesarem, at Cæsar's side.—proeliis (loc. abl.), see Bk. II. Chap. 25; Bk. III. Chap. 5.

2. consequuntur hunc: as primus pilus, he had authority to command all other centurions; although generally, as here, he really only formed a rallying point. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 7.

3. relinquit animus, breath (or consciousness) fails him (he faints).—per manus tractus, dragged along from hand to hand by his comrades.

CHAP. 39. 2. hic, in the open field.—modo . . . exspectant: the Roman discipline was so perfect that, in general, every man knew just what to do in any emergency (as in the fight with the Nervii, Bk. II. Chap. 21); but these new levies are helpless till the exact order has been given, even the boldest of them (nemo est tam fortis, &c.).

138. 3. legiones: those of Trebonius, which had been sent to lay waste the territory (Chap. 33).

CHAP. 40. in signa manipulosque, among the cohorts and maniples. In their panic the servants not only rushed through the intervals between the cohorts (signa), but many of them also poured through the narrower spaces between the maniples.—alii . . . alii: these were the men in the ranks, who seem to have had time for cool deliberation, as is implied in the expression censent, the regular expression for voting in a public assembly.
3. hoc: the latter counsel, which was that of the raw recruits. — docuimus, Chap. 36. — C. Trebonio: compare Chap. 33; his relation to Q. Cicero in this command is not quite clear.

4. militum virtute: i.e. of the infantry; the cavalry, it will be remembered, were not Roman, but Gallic allies. — nullo usu percepto, having gained no experience. — eo consilio, in appos.
with ut . . . defenderent. — demiserunt: se has already been expressed with recipere.

5. ex inferioribus ordinibus: the officers of a new legion were usually obtained in this way, being promoted from the lower grades of veteran cohorts. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 40, "Relative Rank of the Centurions."

Chap. 41. constitisse, &c., had now gained position within the works.

2. fidem non faceret, did not gain belief.

139. 3. alienata mente, beside themselves with terror.—
deletis . . . recepisse, obj. of dicerent.— incolumi exercitu (abl.abs. denoting condition), in case the army were safe.— oppugnaturos fuisse, the regular form in indir. disc. for oppugnavissent.

"Where Q. Cicero was all this time, we are not informed. He probably lost his head with the rest, but Caesar passes it over in silence, probably in consideration for his brother." — Kraner.

"Brave as they were, the Roman soldiers seem to have been curiously liable to panics of this kind. The faith with which they relied upon their general avenged itself through the completeness with which they were accustomed to depend upon him. He returned on the day which he had fixed, and not unnaturally was displeased at the disregard of his orders.
He did not, or does not in his Commentaries, professedly blame Cicero.
But the Ciceros perhaps resented the loss of confidence which one of them had brought upon himself. Quintus Cicero cooled in his zeal, and afterwards amused the leisure of his winter quarters with composing worthless dramas." — Froude's "Cesar."

Chap. 42. eventus (acc. plur.) belli the fortune of war (in general). — unum, only one thing. — minimo, in the slightest degree; casu is to be rendered as dat. with relinquii. — avertisset, sc.
fortuna.
2. videbatur: the subj. is quod ... obtulerunt. — Ambiorigi: this object of Cæsar’s special animosity and eager pursuit was never captured.

Chap. 43. 3. in eum locum = so close upon him. — ut ... contendere, that prisoners who were brought in looked round among themselves for Ambiorix, whom they had just seen in flight — supposing that he must have been taken also — and insisted that he was not yet quite out of sight. — paene ... vincerent, almost surpassed the bounds of nature in their eagerness. — summam felicitatem, i.e. the prize offered for his capture.

Chap. 44. more majorum: the ancient Roman mode of punishment was to fasten the head in a sort of stocks or pillory (furca), then flog the person to death, after which he was beheaded. It was an extraordinary sentence to pronounce on a prisoner of war. Conspicuous resistance (conjuratio) had come to be regarded as a flagrant crime, and its penalty was more and more bloody as time went on — as we see in the two succeeding Books (see especially Bk. VIII. Chaps. 39-44).

2. aqua ... interdixisset, i.e. banished them, forbade them to return to Gaul.

The Legions. — At the opening of the campaign of 53 B.C., Pompey loaned Cæsar two legions (I and III). One new one was raised, which received the same number (XIV) as the one Cæsar had divided (see note on “The Legions,” end of Bk. V.), and of which five cohorts were lost with Sabinus. Hence the number of legions in Gaul had now reached ten.
BOOK SEVENTH. — B.C. 52.

WAR OF VERCINGETORIX. — The last three campaigns had been conducted wholly in the north, with a view either to crush the bolder and more restless northern populations, or to overawe the more barbarous Britons and Germans beyond the frontier. It is not quite clear why the discontented spirits of the south did not seize the occasion to join forces with the formidable Belgian revolt. At all events, they seemed quiet and submissive after their defeats in the earlier campaigns, and might have continued so but for the news from Rome, where "the discomfiture of Crassus had been more pleasant news to the Senate than the defeat of Ariovistus; and the passionate hope of the aristocracy had been for some opportunity which would enable them to check Cæsar in his career of conquest, and bring him home to dishonor and perhaps impeachment." — Froude.

This opportunity might seem to offer in the disorders which followed the death of Clodius. Clodius was a bully and professional politician belonging to the popular party, a bitter enemy of Cicero, whom he had succeeded, a few years before, in driving into exile. He was killed in a street brawl on the 20th of January of this year by Milo, a ruffian of the senatorial or aristocratic party. For the time, all regular and orderly government was at an end, till at length Pompey was invested with dictatorial powers, and quiet was restored. The news of these events coming to Gaul, gave the native leaders reasonable ground to hope that a new uprising might be successful. Their plan, it will appear, was, by a sudden movement, to cut off Cæsar's communications with his military posts in the north, which would thus be speedily starved into surrender. This plan Cæsar foiled by striking, with his usual rapidity, through their line, and through the neutral or hostile populations of Central Gaul, and so advancing upon his assailants with the support of his legions from the north. His campaign of this year was the most fiercely contested, as well as the most important and decisive, of the entire war.

CHAP. 1. QUIETA GALLIA: compare Bk. II. Chap. 35; Bk. III. Chap. 28. — UT . . . CONJURARENT (clause depending on SENATUS CONSULTO): this was not an ordinary conscription, but a levy in mass, in which the entire population of Italy liable to military duty (the juniore, between 17 and 46) took the oath of service. In addition, Cæsar orders a levy throughout his own province (totâ provinciâ), in which were included Gallia Cisalpina, Gallia Transalpina and Illyricum.

2. quod . . . videbatur: it naturally seemed to them impossible for Cæsar to quit Italy at this crisis (urbano motu).

142. 4. Acconis, see Bk. VI. Chap. 44.
5. ut . . . intercludatur (see introductory note) depends on rationem, the plan of campaign.

CHAP. 2. Carnutes: this name is represented by Chartres, S.W. of Paris. — principes ex omnibus = first of all.
2. ne res efferatur, as the exchange of hostages would be a notorious and public act.

CHAP. 3. Genabum (or Cenabum), now Orleans, on the Loire. — negotiandi: their business was "money-lending (unrestrained by Roman usury-laws), the farming of taxes, purchase of slaves or corn, and the like." Cicero had said, some years before, that business affairs in Gaul were wholly controlled by Roman citizens. — constiterant, had settled.
2. clamore, a sort of vocal telegraph, by which, as also by signal-fires, messages were conveyed "from towers 500 yards apart."

143. 3. ante . . . vigiliam, between 9 and 10 at night; the message thus occupying about sixteen hours, being carried by foot-runners from post to post. — Arvernorum, i.e. Auvergne, a region always noted for the vigor and hardihood of its population, who now became leaders in the great revolt, and furnished its dauntless chief Vercingetorix. It is noticeable that the present uprising was confined to western central Gaul, and did not include either the Aquitani or Armorici, who had both been too thoroughly subdued.

CHAP. 4. Vercingetorix, a name or title explained as meaning "very brave lord," and well calculated (says the historian Florus) to inspire terror. — principatum, &c. See Bk. I. Chap. 313. — Galliae totius, i.e. all Celtic Gaul.
2. prohibetur, conative present. This discouragement of the elders was of evil omen to his enterprise from the start. — Gergovia the chief town of the Arverni, on an eminence near Clermont.—

perditorum, men of ruined fortunes, desperate.

3. Senones, &c. Several of these names are preserved in the modern Sens, Paris, Poitiers, Tours, Limoges. The league included all Celtic Gaul south of the Seine and west of the loyal (or doubtful) Aedui and Bituriges, who were drawn into it later on.

6. quod (interrogative) agrees with tempus, and before what time.

Chap. 5. Rutenos: these, as well as the Cadurci, lay between the Arverni and the Roman province. It was important, therefore, to secure them as a frontier defence.

144. 2. de consilio, at the advice.

3. qui agrees with the persons implied in equitatus pedita-

4. quod (adv. acc.) because (the reason for non videtur, &c.) — junguntur (reflex.), join.

Chap. 6. virtute = vigor.

2. qua ... posset, indir. question following difficultate.

3. nam si, &c. See the introductory note, above.

Chap. 7. Nitiobriges et Gabalos: these completed the Arvernian frontier, the Volcae and Helvii being within the limits of the Province. — Narbonem, Narbonne, the chief town of Gallia Nar-bonensis, founded by C. Gracchus.

2. antevertendum [esse] has for its subject ut ... proficis-eretur, and is followed by the dat. consiliis.

3. provincialibus: a portion of the Ruteni had been incorporated in the Province.

145. Chap. 8. quod ... putabat, referring to Lucterius.

2. durissimo, &c. Pompey was put in authority Feb. 25;
Caesar, who left Italy directly after, probably crossed the Cevennes early in March. — summo sudore: “these admirable soldiers were worthy of the genius of their chief.”

3. singulari homini, “a solitary wayfarer.”

Chap. 9. usu ... praecesperat, had suspected would come to pass. — per causam, on the pretext (so elsewhere in Caesar): his real motive was to join his force.—Brutum, Decimus Junius Brutus, afterward one of Cæsar’s assassins.

2. Viennam, Vienne, a little below Lyons on the Rhone.

3. de sua salute, affecting his own safety.

5. Gorgobinam: this was situated probably on the Allier, a southern confluent of the Loire.—quos, &c.; see Bk. I. Chap. 28.

146. Chap. 10. stipendiariis, the Boii, who were in the pay of the Ædui.—amicis, &c., since his friends would find there was no help for them in him.—ab, in respect to his supply of corn.

4. Agedici, now Sens, the chief town of the Senones. It is often written Agendicum, or Agedincum.

Chap. 11. altero die, on the second day of the march.—circumvallavit: the circumvallation (properly speaking this was a contra-vallation) consisted of a line of wall and trench surrounding the town.

2. Genabum, Gien, a little above Orleans, on the Loire.—quod mitterent, to send.

3. continebat, was close to. The town being on the north bank, the bridge would admit its defenders to the friendly Bituriges.

147. 6. diripit: compare the fate of Avaricum, Chap. 28.

Chap. 12. ille, Cæsar.

2. qua, whereby, referring to celeritate.

5. omnes incolumes (acc.): see line 16, above; constr. with receperunt, got them all back safe to Cæsar’s camp.

Chap. 13. Germanos: for the training and efficiency of the German horse, see Bk. I. Chap. 48; also Chaps. 70, 80, below.

2. quibus, and these (the Gallic horse).—eos, i.e. the leaders in the sudden movement described above, Chap. 12.

3. Avaricum, the modern Bourges, an important town of 40,000 inhabitants, the geographical centre of France.

148. Chap. 14. 2. longa alia ratione atque, in a way quite different from, &c.; by purely defensive or guerilla war.—anni tempore, the early spring, long before harvest; all supplies must be got from granaries or storehouses (aedificia) which might easily be destroyed.
3. incendi: compare the course of the Helvetians, Bk. I. Chap. 5. — hoc spatio, the range of the Roman foraging parties. — quoque versus, in every direction.

4. neque interesse, and it made no difference. — ne . . . ne, whether . . . or.

5. sint receptacula, serve as retreats; proposita, offered as spoil.

Chap. 15. urbes: Caesar more commonly calls them oppida. Rome alone is always urbs.

2. amissa = all they had lost (obj. of recuperaturus). — explorata (compare Bk. III. Chap. 18; Bk. V. Chap. 43) = sure, i.e. to which the way is clearly seen.

4. flumine: the city was just above the junction of the Auron with the Yèvre (see Plan VIII.).

149. Chap. 16. longe* = distant.

Chap. 17. quae . . . habebat*, i.e. the neck of the peninsula on which the town was situated (Chap. 15†). — intermissa, left free. — aggerem, &c. See note on Bk. II. Chap. 12.

Between the Yèvre and the Auron was a plateau, some 1200 to 1600 ft. high, with rather steep banks. As this plateau approached the town, it narrowed to a ridge only about 400 ft. wide, with the Auron on one side, and a swampy brook, the Yèvette, on the other. From the Yèvette to the Yèvre extended a morass. At a distance of about 300 ft. from the city wall the ridge was intersected by a sudden depression like a trench, perhaps 50 ft. deep (see Plan VIII. 4). Caesar pitched his camp on the plateau just back of the ridge, a little over half a mile from Avaricum. Along the ridge, right across the intersecting ravine, he built the agger.

2. alteri, the Ædui, already wavering in their allegiance: alteri, the Boii, a fragment of the defeated Helvetians (Bk. I. Chap. 28).

3. caruerint, sustentarent: notice the change of tense, — the lack of corn was incidental or occasional; hunger the constant condition.

150. Chap. 18. qui ... consuissent, see Bk. I. Chap. 46.
4. sarcinas ... conferri, the change from marching to fighting order.

Chap. 19. difficilis, hard to cross; impedita, entangled with brushwood, &c.
2. vada, saltus, fords and open spaces, where the way seemed practicable. — haesitantes, struggling in the mud or bushes, obj. of premerent (which is apod. of a future condition) would rush.
3. prope. &c., on nearly equal terms; iniquitatem, unfair advantage, showing that their offering battle was insanis simulacor.
4. quod ... possent follows indignantes, chafing that, &c.

Fig. 40. Ground Plan of Gallic Wall.

151. Chap. 20. disseisset and remissent refer to the action in Chap. 18.
1. qui se ... defenderet, which was its own defense.
3. mollitiem, unsteadiness or impatience. — laborem, hardship.
4. fortunae (dat.), as well as hunc (referring to alicujus), sake with gratiam habendam, thanks were due.
5. imperium, the same as regnum Galliae, above. — remittere is ready to resign: in direct disc., remitto, I resign.

152. 7. si = to see if. — posse, sc. quemquam.
8. quem, construe with me ... recipiat, subj. of provisum est.

Chap. 21. suo more: compare Tacitus, Germ. 11. frumentos consumuen. — summum: this word is often used where we should say "a great."
Notes: Cæsar.

2. si...retinuissent, in appos. with eo.

Chap. 22. occurrebant, worked against, or frustrated. — atque ...aptissimum, compare Bk. IV. Chap. 5.
2. laqueis, &c. See Fig. 16. — cuniculis, by mines ("rabbit-burrows"). — ferrariae: so of the copper-mines of the Aquitani, Bk. III. Chap. 213.
4. commissis malis, by fastening posts: these were the high corner-beams of the towers, by which they were raised in successive stages, so that each increase in the height of the Roman works was met by a corresponding increase in the height of the defences. The towers on the walls were probably connected by covered galleries, one for each story.

153. Chap. 23. directae, at right angles with the course of the wall; perpetuae, &c., the whole length. — revinciuntur, are fastened by beams some 40 ft. in length, running lengthwise of the wall, to steady the entire work (section 3).
2. neque...contineantur: so alternating, in the successive layers, that beams rested on stone, and stone on beams.
3. deforme, irregular or ill-looking.

CHAP. 24. latum: as a width of over 300 ft. is incredible, some have supposed that this is an error for longum; others, that the numeral should be xxxx.

2. turrium, the Roman towers, mounted on wheels or rollers, and here placed on the agger (see note on Bk. II. Chap. 11, "The Siege," 5). — altum pedes LXXX: it must be remembered that the height of the agger had to equal the depth of the ravine it crossed, and also the height of the Gallic wall. The latter may have been 30 ft. Göler supposes that the agger sloped gradually up towards the enemy (see Fig. 42). But the construction of Rüstow and Napoleon III. (Plan VIII. 4) seems simpler.

154. 4. partitis temporibus, i.e. in their turn. — interscindere, i.e. they cut away the unfinished end of the agger, which was in flames. Thus the rest was saved.

Chap. 25. pluteos, see Figs. 20–22. — nec ... animadvertebat = and noticed that relief did not easily arrive, exposed as the men were by the burning of the defence.

2. scorpione: this was a powerful cross-bow, for hurling darts or “bolts.” (See Fig. 18.)

Chap. 26. 3. quos refers to se as well as to liberos.

155. 4. non recipit, does not admit.

Chap. 27. suosque: the que connects arbitratus est with jussit and ostendit (notice the tense).

2. intra vineas: it would be impossible for legions to find room inside the vineae (see note on Bk. II. Chap. 12). Either legiones here refers to the storming columns, or intra vineas means among and around the sheds. — expeditis, put in fighting order (see Chap. 18\(^4\)).

Chap. 28. cuneatim, in compact body (“wedge-fashion”), implying excellent discipline.

2. circumfundi (impers. pass.) = that men were pouring on. — continenti impetu, in one mass.

4. quae pars refers to those implied by suos, and is explained by Chap. 19\(^2\), where it is said that the Gallic forces were arranged generatim.

156. Chap. 29. 2. errare si qui = that those were wrong who, &c.

3. Biturigum: see Chap. 15\(^4\). — obsequentia, yielding, or deference.

5. impetrari: notice the modesty of this phrase, appropriate to the great disaster just suffered.

Chap. 30. re integra, while his force was still unbroken (Chap. 15).

3. de reliquis, &c., follows in spem. — hominis insueti, understand "although."

Chap. 31. 2. capere = gain over ("catch") the neutral states.

157. 3. sagittarios: apparently the Gauls had trusted too much, in the siege especially, to hand-to-hand fighting.

4. quos conduxerat, whom he had hired; i.e. mercenaries.

Chap. 32. 2. confecta: it was now about the end of March, or a little later. — sive . . . sive, understand "to try," or some such phrase.

3. annum: see Bk. I. Chap. 15.

4. proximo anno, the year before. — clientelas, armed followers (Bk. VI. Chap. 15).

5. positum [esse], depended on.

158. Chap. 33. minus [sibi] condideret = felt itself weakest.

2. quos inter = eos inter quos.

3. renuntiatum: renuntiare is the technical term for the act of a magistrate who, after an election, formally declares the result, and thus "creates" the new official. — intermissis magistratibus: this phrase signifies that an interval occurred between the term of one magistrate and the due election of his successor. In such a case at Rome (as had recently occurred twice, B.C. 55 and 52), the patrician senators appointed an interrex by virtue of the sacred authority residing in them. Cæsar here, accordingly, recognizes the likeness to a Roman precedent. — obtinere, to hold against (ob) the rival claimant. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 14.

Chap. 34. 2. secundum flumen, along the stream (construe with duxit).

3. ab altera parte: Cæsar being on the right or eastern bank, Vercingetorix on the western, on which the town of Gergovia lay.
Plan IX. Siege of Gergovia. Bk. VII. Chap. 36-53.

1. Cæsar's large camp.  2. The double trench connecting the camps.  3. The small camp.
Chap. 35. e regione castris (dat.), over against the [other] camp.

159. captis: this word (marked as doubtful or corrupt) is no doubt an error for some word signifying "set in position."

3. pars inferior: the lower end of the piles, which (being under water) was not burned or cut away, served as a support to the new bridge hastily constructed for the crossing.

Chap. 36. quintis castris, at the fifth encampment, or end of the fifth day's march. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 103. — expugnatione, taking (it) by storm, without a formal siege.

2. qua despici poterat, where a view could be had from above.

3. collis: the so-called Roche Blanche ("White Rock"), at whose foot flows the only sufficient stream of water (see Plan IX.). Caesar's larger camp, it will be remembered, lay towards the south-east of the town (Plan IX. 1), and the smaller towards the south (Plan IX. 3); while the forces of the Gauls (Plan IX. 7) lay on the gentler southern slopes of the hill (measuring nearly a mile from east to west, and a third as much from north to south) on which the town was built (see Chap. 462). — duodenum pedum (Plan IX. 2): see note on Bk. I. Chap. 49, "The Camp," 3.

160. Chap. 37. 2. imperio natos, born for command (dat.).

3. unam civitatem, the one only state. — traducta, carried over to the patriotic party. — beneficio, a friendly act, i.e. deciding in his favor; but this (he claimed) was only his due, — sic . . . obtinerit.

5. vel principes, not mere followers or adherents.

Chap. 38. 2. principes civitatis: see Chap. 39.

161. 5. consilii res, a matter for deliberation.

7. fiducia, under the protection, to bring in supplies. — una (adv.), with him.

Chap. 39. genere dispari, of lower birth. — traditum is here equivalent to commendatum — "presented" as suited for public service.

4. levi momento, of light account: momentum (from moveo) is strictly the weight which "moves" the balance-scale.
162. Chap. 40. 2. contrahenda: as only two legions were left behind, the camp should have been "contracted," so that these few might be equal to the task of keeping and relieving guard. The danger to which the situation exposed them is related in the next chapter: propter magnitudinem castrorum (Chap. 41).

4. necessario ... labore = by the hardship of a forced march. It is worth while to notice the frank terms on which Cæsar stands with his citizen-soldiers.

Chap. 41. 3. tormenta: see note on Bk. II. Chap. 8.

4. discessu eorum, at the suspension of their attack when night came on: his messengers had apparently set out about midnight.—obstruere, &c. These present infinitives show that his preparations are still going on.

Fig. 43. Sections of the Double Trench
Connecting the two camps at Gergovia; as shown by the excavations under Napoleon III.

163. Chap. 42. levem auditionem: see Bk. IV. Chap. 5.

3. proclinatam, "leaning forward" like a wall just ready to fall = in itself perilous.

4. fide data, giving pledges of security.—idem facere, i.e. to come out and put themselves in their power.

Chap. 43. capti, &c., tempted (as they had been) by the profit of the plunder. —ea res, i.e. responsibility for it.

4. ab, away from (the neighborhood of). — contraheret, i.e. join his forces with the four legions of Labienus (Chap. 34).
164. Chap. 44. 2. dorsum, &c. (observe that the word is here masculine): the hill (collis) was south-west of the town and north-west of Cæsar's smaller camp (see plan); while from it a narrow wooded ridge (dorsum), nearly level, gave easy access to the town at its western side. Most of the Gallic force had been transferred to that side from the eastern and southern defences.

3. uno...occupato: see Chap. 36.

Chap. 45. 2. impedimentorum, beasts of burden.—stramenta, the pack-saddles, which would prevent the animal from being ridden on conveniently.—collibus (loc. abl.) circumvehi, i.e. towards the westerly side.

6. raros, a few at a time.

165. 8. ab dextra parte, from the larger camp, to the east.

Chap. 46. recta regione, in a straight line.—huc, to this amount.

2. in longitudinem, &c. = lengthwise of the hill.—murum: traces of this wall are still found, at some distance down the slope, parallel with the town wall (see Plan IX. 5).—castris (see Plan IX. 7): the separate camps of the several Gallic states, set close together, of which three (trinis) were taken.

Chap. 47. receptui: Cæsar appears to have found the enemy here in greater force than he expected, though (as usual) he claims to have gained all he wanted.

2. reliquarum, i.e. those engaged in the assault just described.—retinebantur, conative: the officers tried to hold them back.

5. Avarici: see Chap. 28.

166. Chap. 48. supra: see Chap. 44.—oppidum...teneri depends on nuntiis as a word of telling.

3. sustinebant, by serving as relief or reserves.

Chap. 49. sub infimo colle, at the foot of the main hill (Chap. 46), not that on which was the smaller Roman camp.—ab...hostium, i.e. on the Roman left; Cæsar, meanwhile, was posted considerably to the right (eastward).

Chap. 50. latere aperto, the exposed flank of the Romans, i.e. the right flank.—manus, scattered forces of the Gauls.
167. 2. in signe pacatum (other editors have pacatorum), a friendly signal.

4. excidere, to cut away; it does not appear whether from within, to gain his own escape, or from without, to relieve those who were being slaughtered in the town.

Chap. 51. aequiore loco, on more level ground, farther back from the town.

2. locum superiorem, higher ground, in the direction of the larger camp. The retreat was made in good order, as is shown by what immediately follows.

Chap. 52. cupiditatem, eagerness for battle.

2. ad Avaricum, referring to the operations in that neighborhood described in Chap. 19. Compare also Chap. 45.

168. Chap. 53. virtuti hostium: a change in Cæsar's feeling towards his foes has been noticed here, as if after his reverses he grudged them his former praise of their bravery. — eadem . . . senserat: he returns to his former plan of falling back (compare Chaps. 43 and 44).

2. secundo, favorable to the Romans. By this slight success, and the refusal of Vercingetorix to meet him in the plain on even terms, Cæsar avoids the appearance of a compulsory retreat.

Chap. 54. Viridomaro, &c.: see Chap. 39.

2. perfidiam . . . habe bat; see note on coactum habe bat, Bk. I. Chap. 15.

3. discendentibus (dat.), as they were setting out.— quam humiles: see Bk. I. Chap. 31.

169. 4. mandatis: this word implies that what he has just said to them is to be repeated to their countrymen at home.

Chap. 55. Noviodunum, the modern Nevers, on the right bank of the Loire (Liger), just above its junction with the Allier (Elaver). The Noviodunum of Chap. 12 is probably Sancerre.

2. civitatis: the Aeduan commonwealth. The status is described in the clause which follows, down to missos.

4. in Provinciam: Cæsar was now on the western or further bank of the Loire, which he would thus be obliged to follow up towards its source, thence crossing over to the Province.

Chap. 56. si esset, &c. = in case (i.e. lest) he might have to risk a battle while the bridge-building was under way.

170. 2. Labieno, legionibus, datives following timebat.
3. pro rei necessitate, considering the emergency, difficult and hazardous as it was. — disposito equitatu: just above the ford a line of cavalry was formed, in the water, reaching across the river.
By this barrier the violence of the current was checked.

Chap. 57. eo supplemento: see Chap. 1, 75. — Lutetiam, Paris: see Bk. VI. Chap. 3 and note.
2. Aulerco: this tribe was the next westerly, south of the Seine (see map).
3. perpetuam paludem, the marsh ground along the little river
Essonne, which flows into the Seine on the south a little above Paris. Labienus was proceeding on the left or southerly bank of the Seine. See Plan X.

Chap. 58. aggere, a mass of earth for a causeway. — confieri, rare for confici (the form fieri is regular only in compounds — not with prepositions — which retain -facio). — Melodunum, Melun: here Labienus crosses to the right bank.
3. eo, aboard (= in eos).

171. 4. secundo flumine, following the river-course down the right bank. Having boats or pontoons, he would easily cross the Marne just above Paris.
5. projecta palude, a marshy ground south of the river.—
e regione, over against.

Chap. 59. secundo, successful. — confirmabant, kept asserting.
2. qui refers to Bellovaci.
4. alterā, alteram: the Bellovaci were on the north of the Seine, Camulogenus was (Chap. 572) on the south. — quae civitas: see Bk. II. Chap. 4. — praesidio, &c.: these were at Agedincum (Sens), far up the Seine.

Chap. 60. equitibus, not cavalrymen, but unattached officers of equestrian rank (tribuni militum, comites imperatoris, &c.) put in charge each of a single vessel.

2. adverso flumine, a feint, the real attack being made below. — imperat, gives orders (followed by the acc. and infin. instead of the usual ut-clause).

172. Chap. 61. 2. tumultuari: the magno tumultu (Chap. 60). — paulo infra, about four miles below.
4. castrorum, the Roman camp. — naves, the lintres.

173. Chap. 62. neque potuerunt, but could not.

Chap. 63. circummittuntur, &c.: these are the acts of the Ædui.
2. quos Caesar, &c.: see Chap. 55. — supplicio, i.e. by threats; compare Chap. 47. — rationes communicet, not simply consult, but share the direction of affairs.
5. illi, the Remi (see Bk. II. Chap. V.; Bk. V. Chap. 54), and the Lingones.
6. requirunt = recall with regret (compare the French regretter).
7. summæ spei, of high ambition (Chap. 39).

Chap. 64. hac, at Bibracte (Chap. 63). A better reading of this clause, though having less authority, is diemque huic rei constituit.

174. 3. aequo modo animo, without complaint, meanwhile.
4. finitimi: see Introduction, p. xv.
5. altera ex parte: as the Roman frontier was bent into an irregular curve by the line of the Cevennes, the Gauls would strike the Province in two directions, the Ædui from the west, the Ruteni, &c., from the north.
6. superiore bello, the war of eight years before, in which the Allobroges had been subdued by Pomptinus (Bk. I. Chap. 6).

Chap. 65. cohortium, not legionary troops, but auxiliaries levied in the Province. — L. Caesare, a cousin of Julius, consul B.C. 64.
2. Donnotauro, a brother of Procillus (Bk. I. Chap. 47); the Roman name (C. Valerius) is regularly taken in compliment to his Roman patronus (see also Bk. I. Chaps. 19, 53). — muros, strong-holds — not simply the walls of the oppida.

4. inter eos proeliari: see Bk. I. Chap. 485.

5. sed et: these words should probably be omitted.

175. Chap. 66. equites: see Chap. 641.

2. per . . . fines, bearing from near Agedincum (where he had been joined by Labienus, Chap. 62) toward the east, and so leaving the hostile Āedui to the south. This movement, checked by the attack of Vercingetorix, explains how the crisis of the campaign came to be the siege and capture of Alesia (see map).

4. adorirentur (subj. for imperat. of direct discourse), charge upon them! — pedites, the Roman foot; Vercingetorix knew Cæsar's weakness in cavalry, and did not suspect the German reinforcement. To infantry, any delay in defending whatever part might be attacked (suis) would be fatal. — dignitate, &c.; i.e. the dishonor of retreat with loss of baggage.

5. de, as to — quin . . . audeat follows ne . . . dubitare. — ipsos quidem = such men as they — victorious as they were just now at Gergovia. — et quo: another reading is Id quo, beginning a new sentence, and making the passage from si pedites to dubitare parenthetical. — pro castris, in front of the camp, by way of defiance.

Chap. 67. primo agmine (loc. abl.), at the front of the [Roman] line of march. Some copies have a primo agmine.

3. aciem constitui: by a change of front turning the line of march to a line of battle.

176. 5. quo duce, &c. (see Bk. I. Chap. 31): this was seemingly another Eporedorix, not the rival of Viridomarus.

Chap. 68. Alesiam: this famous fortress (now called Alise St. Réine) was on the territory lying just north of the Āeduan frontier. Its natural advantages — summed up in the succeeding chapters — are thus described:

"Alesia, like Gergovia, is on a hill sloping off all round, with steep, and, in places, precipitous sides. It lies between two small rivers, both of which fall into the Brenne, and thence into the Seine. Into this peninsula, with the rivers on each side of him, Vercingetorix had thrown himself with 80,000 men. Alesia as a position was impregnable except to famine. The water-supply was secure. The position was of extraordinary strength. The rivers formed natural trenches. Below the town, to the west, they ran parallel for three miles through an open alluvial plain before they reached the Brenne. In every other direction rose rocky hills of equal height with the central plateau, originally perhaps one wide table-land, through which the water had ploughed out the valley. To attack Vercingetorix where he had placed himself was out of the question; but to blockade him there, to capture the leader of the insurrection and his whole army, and so in one blow make an end with it, on a survey of the situation seemed not impossible." — Froude's Caesar.

Chap. 69. 3. quae pars has for an antecedent hunc locum.

4. munitionis: Caesar constructed a line of contravallation; i.e. a series of works entirely surrounding the town, so as to resist a sortie. — milium: this genitive requires some such word as spatium to be understood after tenebat. Some editions read milia. In the remains of these works traces have been found of four infantry and four cavalry camps (see Plan XII.).

5. stationes, &c.: in the daytime a mere picket-guard occupied each redoubt; at night it was necessary to station in them strong garrisons with numerous sentries (excubitoribus) on their walls.

177. Chap. 70. pro castris: these were on the high ground south of the city (see Plan XII.); castris is plural, camps.

3. angustioribus, too narrow, either from unskilful construction, or more easily to prevent the enemy's entrance. — relictis: it is conjectured that this word does not belong here, being an error of some copyist, whose eye caught the same word two lines below.

5. portas, town gates; these were closed, lest those who manned the exterior defences (the fossa and maceria) should rush into the town in a panic.

Chap. 71. 4. ratione inita, having taken an account.

5. opus, the Roman works of contravallation, still unfinished.

6. copias omnes: not those that held the fortification east of the town, but the outlying pickets on all the other sides.
War of Vercingetorix.

178. Chap. 72. pedum viginti, i.e. in breadth. — directis, vertical, the bottom (solum) being as broad as the top. The ditch was usually dug with sloping sides; the object here was (as it was probably shallow) to make it harder to cross. See note on Bk. I. Chap. 49, "The Camp," 3. This was the contravallation, the interior line of defence, against the town.

2. totum corpus, the entire work, eleven miles in extent, according to Chap. 69. — operi, take with destinatos.

3. eadem altitudine, of equal depth. — interiorem: i.e. nearer the town. — locis, loc. abl.

4. loricam, pinnas: see Bk. V. Chap. 40, and also note on Bk. I. Chap. 49, "The Camp," 8. — cervis, stumps with roots, or trunks with branches, projecting like stags' horns. — ad, at. — pluteorum: the lorica was really a series of plutei, arranged side by side on the wall and bound together. — turres: if these were 10 ft. wide at the base, there must have been at least 400.

Chap. 73. 2. truncis arborum, &c.: trunks of trees having very stiff boughs were cut down, the boughs being trimmed and sharpened at the ends, and then planted in five rows in trenches five ft. deep (quinos pedes), and perhaps one and a half ft. wide.

179. 3. quini . . . ordines: these five rows of chevaux-de-frise, interwined so as to be continuous, covered a space perhaps 25 ft. wide, so that, even with the help of a pole, an enemy could not easily leap over them. — cippos, "boundary-stones," so called jestingly by the troops.

4. scrobes, little pits, with sloping sides, three feet deep, dug in eight rows, arranged, as we should say, in diamond-pattern, or as trees were planted in an orchard (in quincuncem), so that each should be equally distant from the six adjacent. A stout, sharp stake was set in each, packed with a foot depth of earth, its point projecting four inches, the pit being then loosely filled with twigs and brush. This elegant funnel-shaped trap for man or beast the soldiers called a "lily-cup" (liliunt).

5. teretes, round, like a stick, while the word rotundus means round like a ball.

6. totae, their whole length, so that only the hooks projected.

Chap. 74. regiones ... aequissimas: the line of circumvallation (see Plan XII.) was parallel with the works just described, and distant from it about 700 ft. It was protected by a single ditch. — XIV milia: of course the works of circumvallation included all the Roman camps, and must have had a greater circuit than the inner line of contravallation (see Chap. 69†). — diversas, facing the other way. — si discessu: this passage is irregular in syntax and confused in meaning; doubtless corrupt. The sense is, perhaps, that he might not be driven to a retreat by ever so great an attacking force. — habere ... convectum: see note on compertum habere, Bk. I Chap. 44.

180. Chap. 75. Boiis: the blank is conjecturally filled by bina. — quo in numero: compare Bk. III. Chap. 7.

3. pro, in consideration of. — una, along with the rest.

Chap. 76. operā Commii: see Bk. IV. Chaps. 21, 35; Bk. V. Chap. 22. — civitatem, the Atrebates. — immunem, free from tribute. — ipsi, sc. civitati. — attribuerat, had annexed as a subject state.
3. Vercassivellauno: in this word, as in Vercingetorix, the prefix Ver is probably a title, like the modern "Sir."

5. ancipiti, with double front, having to be fought behind and before.

181. Chap. 77. 3. deditionis, a mere "laying down of arms."

4. mollities, compare Chap. 205.

5. atque, and then, too.

6. quid animi, what heart?

8. animi causā, for the pleasure of it.

9. illorum, the Gauls; his, the Romans.

182. 11. illi bello, dative after *simile."

13. finitimam, "over the border" — the Province. — securibus, the lictor’s axes, the sign not simply of military rule, but of bloody execution (as a servile insurrection would be revenged).

Chap. 78. 2. prohibebat: "cruel, but war is cruel; and where a garrison is to be reduced by famine, the laws of it are inexorable."

Chap. 79. colle: this hill is south-west from Alesia, beyond the Brenne.

183. Chap. 80. 4. complures, of the Roman cavalry.

5. neque . . . ac, perhaps a misreading for neque . . . nec.

Chap. 81. atque, and even. — harpagonum, iron hooks fastened to poles, for tearing down the defences.

184. campestres munitiones, the works in the plain; i.e. the line of circumvallation in the Plain of Laumes, south-west from Alesia.

2. crates, hurdles of woven twigs, to fill up the trenches.

4. librilibus, heavy stones fastened to a thong, by which they were hurled with great force. — glandibus, leaden bullets.

Chap. 82. 2. superioribus, on the higher ground to the north and south (see next chapter).

3. fossas: this word should probably be fossam. It seems to refer to the ditch 20 ft. wide.
Chap. 83. 2. collis: the camp of these two legions (Plan XII. D) was on the southern slope of Mont Rea.

185. Chap. 85. 3. iniquum . . . fastigium, the unfavorable downward slope of the ground (see Chap. 83²).

186. 4. agger, earth.

Chap. 86. Labienum: he was encamped on the heights of Bussy (Plan XII. C).

3. interiores, the Gauls within the town.— loca praerupta : probably the Heights of Flavigny.— ex ascensu, by assault.

Chap. 87. integros, i.e. troops that had not yet been engaged. The cohorts of Brutus and Fabius were probably of those that had been defending the works in the plain.

2. eo, &c.: i.e. in the works on Mont Rea.

Chap. 88. ex colore, the purple paludamentum. — insigni, as a badge. — de locis superioribus, from the high ground occupied by the Gauls. — declivia, on the downward slope.

187. 2. equitatus, who had been despatched as told in Chap. 87².

5. crebris subsidiiis, the constant sending of relief.

Chap. 89. Vercingetorix deditur: the fate reserved for this gallant and ill-fated chieftain was to be kept for six years in chains, and then, after being led in Cæsar's triumphal procession, to be put to death.

From 1862 to 1865 careful excavations were made under direction of the emperor Napoleon III. on the site of the works at Alesia. The discoveries that resulted were most interesting. There were found the remains of Cæsar's four infantry camps (Plan XII. A B C D) and of his four cavalry camps (G H I K). Of the 23 redoubts, remains of only 5 could be traced. It is likely that the rest were mostly of wood, so that they soon crumbled entirely away. The trench 20 ft. wide (f f) remains in its entirety. Of the pits (lilia) in which the sharp stakes were buried, more than 50 were discovered. They are all 3 ft. deep, 2 ft. wide at the top, and 1 ft. wide at the bottom. Of course they do not retain the original dimensions. In the trenches was found a great number of coins, Roman and Gallic, swords, daggers, spear-heads, and the like. The result of these researches was a very striking corroboration of Cæsar's narrative.

Close of the Campaign. — If Cæsar was merciless in war, he was wise and humane in victory. Even in the moment of the fall of Alesia, he uses his prisoners to make terms with the more important states (si per eos, &c.). His aim was "not to enslave the Gauls, but to incorporate them in the Empire; to extend the privileges of Roman citizens among them, and among all the undegenerate races of the European provinces. He punished no one. He was gracious and considerate to all, and he so impressed the central tribes by his judgment and his moderation, that they served him faithfully in all his coming troubles, and never more, even in the severest temptation, made an effort to recover their independence."*

Cæsar's own narrative closes with the great and decisive victory at Alesia. The short remainder of the story is told by his faithful officer and friend, Hirtius Pansa, in the Eighth Book. A rising of the Carnutes and Bituriges in the west, undeterred by the fate of Avaricum, was crushed by a rapid winter march across the Loire. The Remi in the north, who alone of the Gauls had been steadily true to Rome, were attacked in retaliation by the Bellovaci under Commius, but were crushed in a single battle, and Commius fled to Germany. The final rally of the patriot party was made at the stronghold of Uxellodunum, on a branch of the Garonne, in the southwest; but this was also reduced by a siege of extreme difficulty, and the one act of vindictive barbarity which stains Cæsar's record was inflicted after its fall by cutting off the hands of the desperate defenders who had held out to the last for the independence of Gaul. Cæsar then "invited the chiefs of all the tribes to come to him. He spoke to them of the future which lay open to them as members of a splendid imperial state. He gave them magnificent presents. He laid no impositions either on the leaders or their people; and they went to their homes personally devoted to their conqueror, contented with their condition, and resolved to maintain the peace which was now established,—a unique experience in political history."

The Legions. — In the operations of this year (52 B.C.) Cæsar used the 10 legions with which the previous year saw him provided. Legions I and III had been loaned him by Pompey (see note on Bk. VI. Chap. 1*).

* The student of Bk. VII. will do well to read, in connection with it, the admirable condensed narrative given in Froude's "Cæsar," from which the above extract is taken.
Legions VII, VIII, IX and X Caesar found stationed in his provinces when he assumed the proconsulship in the year 58. Legions XI and XII he enrolled in Hither Gaul in the spring of that year, to operate against the Helvetians. Legion XIII was raised in Hither Gaul in 57. Legion XIV was raised in 53. The previous (half) Legion XIV and Legion XV had perished with Sabinus in 54 B.C.

GEOGRAPHICAL INDEX.

PREPARED BY H. P. JUDSON.

The approximate latitude and longitude refer to Map 1.
The figures next following show on what other map or maps the name is found.
The book and chapter are then cited for each occurrence of the name in the Gallic War.

Aduatucu:a Lat. 50°-52° N., Long. 4°-6° E.; 4; VI. 32, 35. A fortified town of the Eburones (probably the modern Tongres). To be distinguished from (Aduatucorum) oppidum, q. v.

Aduatucu: Lat. 50°-52° N., Long. 4°-6° E.; 4; II. 4, 16, 29, 31; V. 27, 38, 39, 56; VI. 2, 33. A Belgic tribe of German descent.

Aedui: see Haedui.

(Aduatucorum) oppidum : Lat. 50°-52° N., Long. 4°-6° E.; II. 29. A fortified town of the Aduatucu: Napoleon III. considers it to have been on the hill where the citadel of Namur is now situated (see Plan VI.), at the confluence of the Sambre with the Meuse. Göler places it at Mount Falhize, opposite Huy, on the Meuse some distance below Namur. By the context (II. 29) the circuit of the Gallic fortifications was 15,000 (Roman) feet; quindecim millia (sc. pedum) = about 2 5/6 (English) miles. But the circuit of the Gallic fortifications on the plan of Napoleon III. is less than 3 of a mile (English); and on the plan of Göler about 5 miles. Of course in the lapse of centuries the hill may have changed its form and size; but we do not know any reason sufficient to make so great a change in either of the two. Hence we can hardly regard the precise situation of this Aduatucu: as satisfactorily proven. On Map 1 the town is placed at Falhize; on Plan VI. near Namur. Thus the two situations are both seen.

Age(n)dicum: Lat. 48°-50° N., Long. 2°-4° E.; 4, 6; VI. 44; VII. 10, 57, 59, 62. The chief town of the Senones, now Sens, in Champagne.

Alduas dubis: see Dubis.

Alesia: Lat. 46°-48° N., Long. 4°-6° E.; 2, 6; VII. 68, 69, 75, 76, 77, 79, 80, 84. A town of the Mandubii, now Alise Ste. Reine.

Allobroges: Lat. 44°-46° N., Long. 6° E.; 2, 6; I. 6, 10, 11, 14, 28; III. 1, 6; VII. 64, 65. A powerful Celtic tribe, conquered by Fabius Maximus, 121 B.C.

Alpes: Lat. 44°-46° N., Long. 6°-8° E.; 2, 6; I. 10; III. 1, 2, 7; IV. 10. The Alpes, mountains dividing Italy from Gaul and Germany.

Ambiani: Lat. 50°-52° N., Long.
2° E.; 4, 5; II. 4, 15; VII. 75. A Belgic tribe. Their chief town, Samararobriva, is the modern Amiens, so called from the name of the tribe.

Ambibarri: Lat. 48°-50° N.,
Long. 0°-2° W.; VII. 75. A tribe of Aquitania. In some texts called Ambiliati.

Ambilareti: VII. 90. Probably the same as the Ambarri, q. v.

Ambiliati: see Ambibarii.

Ambivariti: Lat. 48°-50° N.,
Long. 6°-8° E.; IV. 9. A Belgic tribe.

Ambluareti: VII. 75. Probably the same as the Ambarri, q. v.

Anartes: VI. 25. A Dacian tribe, at the eastern end of the Hercynian forest.

Anicalites: Lat. 50°-52° N., Long
0°-2° W.; 5; VI. 21. A tribe of Britain.

Andes: Lat. 46°-48° N., Long.
6°-2° W.; II. 35; III. 7; VII. 75.
A Celtic tribe.

Aquilia: I. 10. A city of Hither Gaul, near the modern Trieste.

Aquitania: Lat. 42°-46° N.,
Long. 2°-6° W.-2° E.; I. 1; III. 11, 20, 21, 23, 26, 27; VII. 31. The southwestern part of Gaul, inhabited principally by people of Iberian stock.

Arar (-aris): Lat. 46°-48° N., Long. 4°-6° E.; 2, 6; I. 12, 13, 16;
VII. 90. The River Saône.

Arduenna (Silva): Lat. 50° N., Long. 4°-6° E.; V. 3; VI. 29, 31, 33. A mountainous region covered with forest, in the N.E. part of Gaul;
the modern Ardennes.

Arecomici: Lat. 44° N., Long.
4° E.; 6; VII. 7, 64. See Voleae.

Armoricae (civitates): Lat.
46°-50° N., Long. 0°-5° W.; V. 53;
VII. 75. The Gallic states on the seacoast, between the Loire and the Seine.

Arverni: Lat. 44°-46° N., Long.
2° E.; 6; I. 31, 45; VII. 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 34, 37, 38, 64, 66, 75, 76, 77,
83, 88, 89, 90. A powerful Celtic tribe.

Atrebates (or Atrebatī): Lat.
50°-52° N., Long. 2°-4° E.; 3, 4;
II. 4, 16, 23; III. 27, 35; IV. 21;
V. 22, 46; VI. 6; VII. 75, 76. A Belgic tribe.

Aulerci: II. 34; III. 17, 29; VII. 4, 57, 75. A Gallic people in four tribes: —

1. The Aulerci Brannovices: Lat.

2. Aulerci Cenomani: Lat. 48°

3. The Aulerci Diablintres:
Lat. 48°-50° N., Long. 0°.

4. The Aulerci Eburovices:
Lat. 48°-50° N., Long. 0°-2° E.; 4.

Ausci: Lat. 42°-44° N., Long.
0°; III. 27. A tribe of Aquitania.

Axona: Lat. 48°-50° N., Long.
4° E.; 2, 6; II. 5, 9. The River Aisne, a confluence of the Isara, now the Oise.

Bacenis (silva): Lat. 50°-52°
N., Long. 8°-10° E. VI. 10. A forest of Germany.

Baleares: II. 7. People of the Balearic Islands, in the Mediterranea nean, east of Spain.

Batavorum Insula: Lat. 50°- 52° N., Long. 6° E. IV. 10. The passage (IV. 10) is rather obscure.
It seems to mean that the Waal (Vacalus), a branch of the Rhine, falls into the Meuse; that the island of the Batavians is formed by the Waal, the Meuse, and the Rhine; and that then at a distance of 80 miles from the ocean, the Meuse finally empties into the Rhine. At present the Meuse, empties into the ocean. There is no doubt that the shifting sands of these oozy lowlands have made and unmade many river channels in the nineteen centuries since Caesar's day; so that it is perhaps not unlikely that his account was substantially correct. It must be remembered, however, that he wrote only from hearsay; and that such topographical information as he could gather in that way would perhaps be quite as vague as the rumors of rivers and lakes that came in our own day to Livingstone in the heart of Africa.

Belgae: I. 1; II. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6,
14, 15, 17, 19; III. 7, 11; IV. 38;
V. 24. A general name given to the tribes of the northern part of Gaul.
Many of them were of German descent.

2° E.; 3, 5, 6; II. 4, 5, 10, 13, 14; V.
24, 46; VII. 59, 75, 90. A Belgic tribe.

Bibracte (-is): Lat. 46°–48° N.,
Long. 4°–6° E.; 2, 6; I. 23; VII.
55, 63, 90. The chief town of the Haedui, now Autun.

Bibrax (-etis): Lat. 48°–50° N., Long. 4°–6° E.; 3, 4; II. 6. A town of the Remi.

Bibroci: Lat. 50°–52° N., Long.
0°–2° E.; 5; V. 21. A tribe of Britain.

Bigerriones: Lat. 42°–44° N., Long. 0°–2° E.; III. 27. A tribe of the Pyrenees.

2° E.; 6; I. 18; VII. 5, 8, 9, 11, 12, 13,
15, 21, 29, 75, 90. A Celtic tribe.

Boii: Lat. 46°–48° N., Long. 2°–
4° E., also 8°–10° E.; 6; I. 5, 25, 28, 29; VII. 10, 17, 75. A Celtic tribe. A part of them accompanied the Helvetii in their migration, and, at the request of the Haedui, were allowed by Caesar to settle in Haed-uan territory.

Branovices: VII. 75. See Aulerci.

Branovii: Lat. 46°–48° N.,
Long. 2°–4° E.; 2, 6; VII. 75. A Celtic tribe, clients of the Haedui.

Bratuspantium: Lat. 48°–50°
N., Long. 2°–4° E.; 3, 4, 5; II. 13.
A fortified town of the Bellovaci.

Britannia: maps 1, 4, 5; II. 4,
14; III. 8, 9; IV. 20, 21, 22, 23, 27,
28, 30, 37, 38; V. 2, 6, 8, 12, 13, 14,
22; VI. 13; VII. 76. The Island of Britain.

Cabillönum: Lat. 46°–48° N.,
Long. 4°–6° E.; 2, 6; VII. 42, 90.
A town of the Haedui, now Chalonssur-Saône.
